'Profit' Trend Leading to Depression, Murray Says

Green Joins Attack On New Labor Law; Both Union Leaders Urge Election Fight

By The Associated Press

President Philip Murray of the CIO said yesterday that the country is headed for a severe depression unless there is a reversal of what he called the trend to higher profits and smaller purchasing power.

Murray spoke from Kansas City over an ABC network, saying that "American workingmen and women celebrated Labor Day today in a fighting mood."

At Chicago, meanwhile, President William Green of the AFL said that organized labor would fight its foes "not with ill considered strikes, but with ballots."

Both labor union leaders attacked the new Taft-Hartley labor law for its restrictions on strikes and other union activities.

In another Labor Day address, Undersecretary of Labor David A. Morse said in a New York broadcast over CBS that American workers should resolve to achieve three things in the year ahead:

"(1) High production and productivity; (2) Maintenance of balance in price-wage relationships; and (3) Stability in labor-management relations."

Murray, in his angrily worded speech, said that organized labor's position in favor of continued price control had been proved right by "the high prices and enormous profits of today." He added:

"I want to say right here—and say most emphatically—that the Nation is heading toward another depression — a depression that could easily make the last one appear to be only a minor economic setback.

"I am not saying that another depression is just around the corner. I am saying that the present trend of higher and higher profits and smaller and smaller purchasing power must be halted and reversed if we are to avoid economic chaos in the future. Of this you can be certain."

Taft-Hartley Law Assailed

Murray said the Taft-Hartley law "was designed to take away many of the gains labor had secured over the years through free

Washington Escapes Heavy Holiday Toll

Washington returned from its three-day weekend last night, sunburned and holiday-worn, but generally free from the heavy toll of casualties which usually marks the Labor Day respite.

Trains, buses, planes, boats and the family car began disgorging humanity by late afternoon, but the numbers didn't hit a peak until near midnight.

Nationally, railroads, airlines and bus companies reported more Americans on the move yesterday than have ever been recorded on a single holiday.

Despite traffic-lined highways, thronged beaches and well-filled public carriers, the immediate Washington area kept its Labor Day casualties to a low mark.

A Washington man, Richard G. Pace, 2703 Hamlin st. ne., a 27-year-old Army veteran, drowned off Chesapeake Beach, Md. Saturday. His body was washed ashore yesterday.

A second drowning victim, Albert Raymond Bryan, 42, an itinerant carpenter, was taken from the Washington Channel at 12th st. sw., Sunday. A certificate of death by drowning was issued yesterday.

At Bethesda Naval Hospital, a 19-year-old sailor, Francis Tenborg, of the Navy's torpedo testing range at Piney Point, Md., died of injuries suffered Saturday when struck by a hit-run driver near Dentsville, Md. Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County coroner, said death was due to lobar pneumonia which developed as a result of his injuries. The driver has not been apprehended.

Another auto victim, Vaughn Doggett, 36, of 916½ Liberty st.

D. C. Colonel Wins Jet Race; Cleland Takes Trophy Event

Andrews Field's Officer Averages 503.9 Miles an Hour

Cleveland, Sept. 1 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Benjamin S. Preston, jr., of Washington, D. C., flashed around the 22-mile jet course at the National Air Races seven times today at an average speed of 503.9 miles an hour to win the jet division of the Thompson Trophy for Air Force P-80 Shooting Stars.

One pilot was killed as four planes crashed during the main Thompson Trophy dash, outstanding event of the races, while Cook Cleland of Cleveland, roared to victory with a new record speed of 396.1 miles an hour.

Officials announced that the dead flier was Tony Jannazo of Cleveland, flying a big Corsair Navy Fighter, entered by Cleland. Jannazo, a Navy combat pilot during the war, crashed near the No. 2 pylon.

Rees Attacks Agency Totals Of War Help

Committee Head Says 44 Per Cent Still Holds Jobs

Representative Rees (R., Kans.) yesterday termed it "incredible" that Federal payrolls should contain 911,119 temporary and war service employes nearly two years after the war's end.

The chairman of the House Civil Service Committee said that despite a 15 per cent cut in appropriations for the fiscal year, which began in July, the number of civilian Government workers dropped "less than 2 per cent" from June.

The number in July, Rees added, was 2,086,980, compared with 2,129,566 in June and the wartime peak of 3,770,000 in June, 1945.

"Poor Management"

The Kansan's statement described as "poor management" the "not substantial" June to July drop in Federal employment, adding:

"It is apparent the agencies are relying upon their past success in securing huge deficiency appropriations later in the fiscal year. The fallacy of this procedure will be demonstrated when the deficiency requests are made."

(Deficiency appropriations are those made late in the fiscal year to cover expenses above those provided for in regular appropriation bills.

Saying that the number of war service and temporary employes still holding jobs represent 44 per cent of the total, Rees declared "the executive branch is making little progress toward the reduction of the wartime Federal payroll."

He said the Civil Service Commission requested Government agencies, "without success, to find employment for nearly 10,000 loyal, qualified and efficient career employes, including many veterans who were displaced by the reduction-in-force program."

The commission reported to his committee several days ago, he added, that its efforts to "displace war service and temporary appointees by career employes were without result, particularly in the Washington area."

"This is inexcusable," Rees said, "and I am directing the committee staff to investigate the situation immediately.

"Through refusal to reemploy these career employes while retaining nearly a million war service and temporary appointees, the agencies are endangering the Civil Service merit system.

"Many of these efficient and experienced displaced career employes are losing their savings, homes and faith in their Government. They are becoming bitter and disillusioned."

Leave Bond Cash Flow Starts Today

A stream of new spending money that may swell to a flood of well over a billion dollars will start flowing into the channels of trade today, first day when nine million veterans can cash terminal leave pay bonds.

Under congressional mandate the Government is ready to pay, but reluctant unless the veteran really needs the cash.

Officials would rather see as many as possible of the former GIs keep the 2½ per cent obligations as an investment.

In Washington, most banks plan to set up special windows to take care of the bond conversions, although a rush was not anticipated.

Bankers warned, however, that veterans must appear in person and be sure to bring along original discharge papers with them for proper identification.

The Veterans Administration estimated that there are about 58,200 veterans in the District holding bonds worth $12,571,200.

Economists will keep close watch on the cashing of the $1,830,000,000 issue, both for inflationary effect on prices and as a barometer of the economic situation of the former servicemen.

Officially yesterday was the day Congress set for banks to start paying off bondholders who call for their money, but the Labor Day holiday held up the actual transactions.

The administration opposed the Man Responsible For Longer Skirts Now Talks Ankles

New York, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—The man responsible for longer hemlines predicted today that no amount of feminine or male opposition will stop the fashion "from sweeping America." If anything, he said, skirts are going to drop to the ankles.

French Designer Christian Dior who originated the new "covered leg" styles was informed of the American revolt when he arrived aboard the Queen Mary.

"I am not alarmed," the middle-aged fashion expert said. Then, through an interpreter, he suavely added:

"I feel women in the United States are so well built, my new fashion will be particularly adaptable to them."

Dior hinted that his own designs for fall may expose nothing more than a modest ankle.

Judge Gives Gun Toter Limit: Year in Jail and $1000 Fine

The maximum penalty under the District's new gun-toting law was imposed yesterday on Oscar Eugene McDaniels, 26, of 1313 Riggs st. nw.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson sentenced McDaniels to one year in prison and fined him $1000. At the same time he was ordered held on $1000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of housebreaking.

McDaniels was picked up Sunday near his home. Police charged he had a cocked and loaded .45 caliber automatic in his belt under his coat when arrested on a tip to police.

The gun, they said, was part of the loot obtained in a housebreaking at the James Halcomb residence, 634 O st. nw. Halcomb's present address is 1362 Kenyon st. nw. McDaniels pleaded not guilty to the housebreaking charge; said the gun had been given to him by a friend. Loot in the Halcomb theft also included $100 cash.

McDaniels was the third person to be arreested under the city's new weapon law, and is the first to receive a maximum sentence.

George Washington Hawkins, 29, of 1327 10th st. nw., is awaiting a jury trial October 16 on gun-carrying charges. He was the first man arersted under the act.

A second man was freed when Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court granted a motion of acquittal due to a flaw in the indictment.

Rebels Take Chief Port Of Ecuador

Counter-Revolt Against Mancheno, Who Grabbed Power, Spreads Rapidly

Quito, Ecuador, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Junior army officers today seized control of Guayaquil, Ecuador's biggest city and chief seaport, in a spreading counter-revolt against Col. Carlos Mancheno, the new dictator-president who himself grabbed power from the constitutional government only nine days ago.

The garrison at Tulcan seized that city and the army air base near the Colombian frontier and sent planes to drop leaflets over Quito, the capital, rejecting the Mancheno government.

Throughout the provinces the situation was confused as the counter-revolt spread.

In the first hours of the revolt, the rebels had seized Rio Bamba, Ecuador's fourth city, and the towns of Ambato and Guaranda.

Espinoza Flies to Guayaquil

A dispatch from Guayaquil, the rebel stronghold, said Mancheno's interior minister, Julio Moreno Espinoza, had arrived there by plane from Quito and gone into conference with junior army officers who sparked the uprising.

Mancheno imposed a nation-wide state of siege and press gag, but the movement continued to spread, and tonight—more than 48 hours after it started Saturday with an uprising in the provincial capital of Rio Bamba 120 miles south of here—the anti-Mancheno forces said they were in control of five towns strung along a 350-mile front from the northern border to Guayaquil on the southwest coast.

Colonel Mancheno's forces here said that they had made contact with the rebels at Yambo, near Ambato, defeated them in skirmishes, and then entered Ambato.

But the rebels claimed the victory—which would mean they had possession of the main north-south railroad at a key point midway between Quito and Guayaquil, not far from 20,700-foot Mount Chimborazo.

Mancheno had been rushing troops southward over the railroads, and counter-revolutionists had been tearing up the tracks in their path.

To Support Constitution

A communique issued by the junior officers who took control in Guayaquil said they would support the constitution—meaning they were loyal to President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, whom Mancheno sent into exile August 23—and that they had taken the "necessary measures" to counteract any "surprise."

These measures, it was declared, included disarming the senior officers and putting them under guard.

The junior officers said they expected a tank unit garrisoned at San Antonio, in Eastern Ecuador on the other side of the Andes, to join them.

Guayquill was reported quiet, with about half the stores open but the streets closed.

Reasonably normal activities were revived here today.

Holdup Man Flees With $5000—Into Arms of Police

A lone, unmasked bandit held up the Masters Liquor Store, 714 K st. nw., about 7 p. m. yesterday and walked out with about $5000—directly into the arms of two policemen.

Fleeing after two shots had been fired at him by Louis Deckelbaum of 9302 St. Andrews Way, the store owner, the bandit ran across K st., just as a scout car was driving past.

The man entered the store. Deckelbaum said and told him to "go in the backroom and shut up." Then he asked the owner to open the safe. Deckelbaum's reply that he couldn't open it was met with the man's snarl: "You'd better open it or I'll kill you."

Deckelbaum stalled for time before opening the safe, then grabbed a pistol from under the counter and fired as the man with the money fled. He missed both shots.

German Bread Grains Underestimated by 62%

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 1 (AP).—United States Military Government investigators have found 62 per cent more bread grain on the German firms of Wuerttemberg-Baden than the German officials reported, Sumner Sewell, Military Government director, announced today.

Sewell told German officials to "review" their faulty estimates and to establish new collection quotas "reflecting actual production"—thus perhaps reducing the amount of grain it will be necessary to import from the United States.

Hungarians Say Frauds Were Minor

Communists Given 1 Out of 5 Ballots; Americans Confirm Widespread Abuses

Budapest, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Hungarian government admitted tonight there were abuses in Sunday's parliamentary elections, but said they did not affect the outcome in which the Communists won almost one out of every five votes cast.

In reply to charges of fraud—some voiced by the allies of the Communists—a statement by Ivan Boldiszar, official of the Ministry of Interior does not deny there were abuses but they were very few and had no influence on the outcome at all."

The statement, given out at a news conference, said "at the most" there were 20,000 "abuses" in which voters had documents which entitled them to cast a ballot outside their legal residences. Opposition parties had charged that between 50,000 and one million "false" votes were cast by the Communists.

U. S. Observers Report Frauds

[The United Press quoted American observers as saying they watched squads of Communist repeaters vote again and again, and as calling the election "the greatest vote fraud ever perpetrated." That opinion was shared by at least four cabinet members who hitherto had gone along with the Communists.

[The four Ministers, members of the Social Democrat Party, told their party, according to United Press, that they were resigning because the election was too much for them to stomach. But Premier Lajos Dinnyes said he had not received their resignations.]

The Foreign Ministry released figures showing the Communists received 1,082,597 out of a total of 4,933,683 ballots, the virtually complete total vote.

Earlier, the Information Ministry said the four-party government coalition — Communists, Social Democrats, Smallholders and National Peasants—received 63 per cent of the vote.

Parliament Lineup Forecast

(The Moscow radio forecast that the coalition parties would hold 270 seats, or 65.3 per cent of the strength in the new Parliament. They gave the breakdown as Communists, 97; Smallholders, 68; Social Democrats, 66, and National Peasants, 39.

(The People's Democratic Party of Istuan Barbankovics will receive 59, Hungarian Independence Party 53, Independent Hungarian Democratic Party 18, Hungarian Radical Party 6, Citizens Democratic Party 3 and the Christian Women's Camp 4, the broadcast added.)

(The distribution of the seats of the coalition in the Parliament chosen in 1945 was Smallholders 222, Communists 70, National Peasants 22, Social Democrats 69.)

Foreign Office figures said the anti-Communist group headed by Barankovics, a Catholic, was second with 804,950 votes. The Smallholders was third with 757,082, followed by the Democrats with 732,178 and the Hungarian Independence Party with 718,193.

In the 1945 election the Smallholders received 57 per cent of the 4,717,2456 ballots cast.

Cohen Says He'll Back Quoddy Plan By 10-Million Bond

Frank Cohen, New York industrialist who has sought Federal approval of a plan to train displaced persons in Quoddy Village, has offered to back his training plan pledge with performance bonds of up to 10 million dollars if necessary.

He told The Washington Post that he had already offered to post personal bond up to five million dollars, in a telegram sent to Ugo Carusi, then United States Commissioner of Immigration, on August 20. Others, he said, would join him to raise the surety back of the bond to 10 million.

Reiterating earlier statements that he did not conceive of Quoddy as a profit-making venture, Cohen said: "For anyone to dream that a manufacturer could possibly earn a profit from the work of untrained people spending only six months at five hours a day in a pilot plant is sheer nonsense and I am sure no other manufacturer could invent such a dream and hurl such accusations."

The city council at Eastport, Me., according to the Associated Press, still is hopeful of getting War Assets Administration to turn over the Passamaquoddy housing at far less than its appraised value of $392,000. So far WAA has objected to the Cohen plan as more industrial than educational and hence ineligible for public benefits allowances.

The Associated Press reported that Eastporters in debating the Quoddy project over the Labor Day holiday, were also still discussing a proposal under which the United Lithuanian Relief Fund would use the village as the seat of Baltic University, now at Hamburg, Germany.

Direct Hand for Washington

U. S., Britain Near Agreement On Joint Ruhr Mine Control

By Robert J. Donovan

The Anglo-American coal conference in Washington is nearing final agreemeent on a plan to shift supervision of the Ruhr coal mines in Germany from British hands to joint United States and British control, it was learned yesterday.

The plan would scrap the present North German Coal Control, the management agency which now operates the mines under the supervision of the British military government.

This agency, manned by the British with the aid of a German staff, would be replaced by a new control board on which the United States and Great Britain would have coequal authority.

That would for the first time give United States authorities a direct hand in the operation of the mines with a consequent opportunity of pressing for introduction of any methods American experts might consider more efficient than those now employed.

An important feature of the plan is that in order to give the Germans greater incentive it would turn over to them a larger share in the management of the mines than they now enjoy. One official said that the actual on-the-scene administration of the mines might be placed in German hands.

But whatever authority the Germans exercised would be under the close supervision of the United States-British board.

Full details of the plan are expected to be announced later this week, possibly on Thursday. Delegates expressed hope yesterday that the conference, which began August 12, would end this week.

The meeting has been regarded as part of the necessary spadework for the eventual operation of the Marshall Plan for European economic recovery because of the great need of Europe's key industries for more coal.

The aim of the conference has been to find ways of increasing the output of the Ruhr's soft coal mines through more efficient management, improved techniques and machinery and through provision of food, clothing and housing for German miners.

A sharp increase in Ruhr coal production is essential also to the Anglo-American plan, announced last Thursday, for raising the level of production in the American and British zones of Germany to about the 1936 level.

Before the war, the Ruhr mines yielded about 440,000 tons a day. At present the production rate is running at around 240,000 tons daily. An official who has been attending the Washington conference said the delegates have not attempted to set any specific per-

Royal Family Of Iran Has Reunion Here

By Ruth Brigham

International News Service Staff Writer

It was a real family reunion for five members of the royal family of Iran, who met in Washington yesterday for the first time in three years.

Hamid

Included in the group was the youngest member of the family, 14-year-old Prince Hamid Reza Pahlavi, who hit the front pages a few months ago when he ran away from New York and flew to Paris "because he was homesick."

The older brothers and sisters smiled affectionately at the "runaway prince" who is "a good boy now," and ready to remain at school in the United States.

Princess Arrives

The reunion was occasioned by the arrival last week of Princess Ashraf Pahlavi in this country. She plans to make a study of social welfare, at the invitation of the American Red Cross.

The others are all students here. They are Prince Abdorreza Pahlavi, Prince Mahmoud Reza Pahlavi, and Princess Fatemah Pahlavi.

And when they met, it was even as you and I—with everybody asking questions at once and all in-

Nine-State Alarm Broadcast for Mother, Daughter

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 1 (U.P.).—A nine-state police alarm was broadcast tonight from Mrs. Harriet L. Moon, 33, and her three-year-old daughter, Carol, who have been missing since Friday.

The alarm was sent at the request of her husband, James Moon, a Bridgeport engineer, after the missing woman failed to keep an appointment with him in Philadelphia.

Moon said he received a phone call from a friend who reported seeing Moon's automobile, which Mrs. Moon had been driving, at Atlantic City, N. J.

Moon said tonight he was certain it was not "a case of her just going off for a weekend, I'm convinced that she didn't leave of her own free will."

In Reconstructing Europe

Establishment of Trade Pacts Viewed as Vital Goal at Paris

By Alfred Friendly

Post Reporter

(Fourth and last of a series)

Paris.—Europe's reconstruction does not depend merely on increased production within each individual country. There must be measures of cooperation so that produce of one country can contribute to the building up of its neighbor.

For this reason the third key subject in the report to emerge from the Paris Conference on the Marshall Plan is expected to be a group of commitments toward increasing international trade. It is believed this will take its place along with anticipated programs for increased production and for international financial stability.

It is still too early to say what and how good the measures to be proposed will be. But the conferees are seeking:

1. As a minimum, agreements to remove the host of export-import restrictions which plague intra-European commerce.

2. As a maximum, an agreement on a future West European Customs Union.

Several steps can be taken on the first point. Nations are attempting to reach an agreement on wiping out scores of licensing requirements, quotas, paper procedures, permits financial hocus-pocus, and other restrictions which now make European trade such a nightmare that it is in-

President Gets Roaring Welcome on Arrival in Rio

Million Brazilians Line Capital Streets In Record Ovation For Foreign Visitor

By Merriman Smith

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept 1 (AP).—President Truman arrived in this Brazilian capital today on a state visit and received a welcome which Brazilians said was the greatest ever accorded a foreign visitor.

An estimated one million Brazilians smiled, waved and cheered along every foot of the route from Guanabara Bay, where the President landed after a 4500-mile flight from Washington, to the United States Embassy, seven miles away.

President Truman, with Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, came in his new "Flying White House," the Independence, to address the closing session of the Inter-American Defense Conference, speak briefly at a joint session of the Brazilian Congress Friday and attend a Brazilian independence day celebration Sunday.

Parade of Open Cars

President and Mrs. Eurico Gasper Dutra welcomed Mr. Truman and his family at the Touring Club on the mainland shore after they landed at Galeao Airport on an island in the bay.

The official procession paraded in open cars through the heart of the city.

Tons of confetti was showered down from office buildings along the blue bay shore. Children waved United States and Brazilian flags. Two divisions of Brazilian troops lined the route. The cheers were frenzied and emotion reached such a pitch that some women spectators burst into tears.

President Truman tried to sit quietly beside President Dutra, but before seven blocks had been passed, the roar of cheers was so great that Mr. Truman was compelled to climb upon the rear of the car. Sidewalks jammed from curb to building front, paper filled the air and the skyscraper windows seemed to bulge with people. Mr. Truman smiled, waved, bowed, and clasped his hands over his head in acknowledgment of the cheers.

Carnival of Color

The President and his party left port of Spain, Trinidad, where they spent the night at the United States Air Force base, Waller Field, at 2:04 a. m., EDT, just before the humid tropical dawn. It was raining hard. Military policemen held umbrellas over the heads of the presidential party.

Skirting the northeast coast of South America, the President's new DC-6 crossed the Equator at high altitude and landed at Belem, below the mouth of the Amazon, at 7:25 a. m. EDT.

The President was up early to

Storm Gathers In U. N. Over Partition Plan

Most Jews Pleased By Proposal But Arabs Promise Resistance

Lake Success, Sept. 1 (AP).—Battle lines were being drawn rapidly tonight for a heated fight in the United Nations General Assembly over a plan to divide Palestine into Arab and Jewish states and admit 150,000 Jewish immigrants during the next two years.

Arab spokesmen promised that the seven-state Arab League would oppose the plan, recommended by an 11-nation UN special committee on Palestine last night. One Palestine Arab threatened forceful resistence.

Jews both here and in Palestine, however, unofficially accepted the committee report as "favorable" although there was some skepticism.

The U. N. committee recommended that Palestine be carved into two states—one Arab, the other Jewish—to become fully independent September 1, 1949. During the two-year transition period British would continue to administer the Holy Land for the United Nations, but the report said one or more U. N. members might enter into the interim administration.

British Won't Act Alone

In this connection, Britain is already on record before the United Nations, Sir Alexander Cadogan, chief British delegate, said during the U.N. Assembly session on Palestine that his government refused to spend unlimited British pounds or lives in enforcing a U. N. Palestine decision.

Some sources believed in view of this statement and the committee's recommendation that Britain might accept the plan and ask for help in administering the Holy Land. They said Britain might ask the United States to join her in this task.

Meanwhile, there was no official statement on what position the United States would take in the forthcoming Assembly fight.

It was recalled, however, that President Truman was on record for prompt admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine and for a Jewish state in an "adequate area" of Palestine.

Not Acceptable to Arabs

The majority of the U. N. committee would give the Jews eastern Galilee, the central coastal plain, taking in Haifa, Jaffa and Tel Aviv and the Beersheba subdistrict, including most of the Negreb—the southern desert.

It would allot the Arabs western Galilee, the Samarian and Judean hill country and the southern Minneapolis, Sept. 1 (AP).—Three Army Reserve officers, all Minnesotans, were killed today in a collision of two Army AT6 training planes as their flight of 16 ships was returning to base after giving an aerial salute to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at the Minnesota State Fair.

McCarran May Leave Hospital in 2 Weeks

Reno, Nev., Sept. 1 (AP).—Senator P. A. McCarran (D., Nev.) continued to show steady improvement today and may be able to leave the hospital in two weeks, his physician said.

Dr. A. L. Stadther said the 71-year-old veteran Senator, who has been hospitalized since suffering a heart attack nine days ago, may receive additional blood transfusions to combat an anemic condition, but that he has passed the danger stage.

Tsaldaris Cabinet Called Temporary

Meets Stop-Gap Need; MacVeagh Gives Gen. Zervas a Lesson in Democracy

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece—(By Airmail)—The Tsaldaris government is regarded by American authorities here as purely temporary.

Immediate action was necessary to get the wheels of government turning, and Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh reluctantly agreed to the Populist slate with Tsaldaris in the role of premier and foreign minister.

Announcement of the new government came as a surprise, for only a few hours before, King Paul had conferred with Dimitrios Maximos and leaders of other parties, and it was announced that Maximos had agreed to serve and name a cabinet.

But Tsaldaris had never relinquished the King's mandate, and he insisted that only he could name a cabinet.

The only important change in the cabinet is the elimination of Gen. Napoleon Zervas as minister of public order. Zervas has been the storm center of protests by the Republicans and the left wing for his so-called "dynamic policy." Zervas was responsible for the mass arrests of thousands of Republicans.

When it became obvious that Zervas was not to be included in the cabinet, he went to see Ambassador MacVeagh. It can be stated that MacVeagh gave him a very forceful lesson in democracy. He told the dashing Zervas that the press and the public in the United States were overwhelmingly of the opinion that he had dictatorial and fascist tendencies, at variance with our ideals of democracy. He told Zervas that whether or not this opinion was correct was beside the point, but that his presence in the cabinet as minister of public order did not inspire confidence in the United States.

MacVeagh did not issue any statement on his session with Zervas, but it can be stated that he told him further that if he (Zervas) wanted to look for reasons for American opinion on his activities he could review his own stand on the activities of right wing bands, his use of the local gendarmes and the discrimination he has shown against the Republican elements of the population.

The general asked the ambassador to authorize a statement that he had not pressed for the exclusion of Zervas from the cabinet. MacVeagh told him that he had not participated in the selection of any individuals—that the viewpoint of the United States was that it wanted a government that fully represented Greece and one that would make it possible to go ahead with the reconstruction work. General Zervas then asked him what he could do to change the United States' opinion about himself. The Ambassador is said to have replied that a good start would be to treat American journalists better and to stop calling them Communists when they were not Communists. Zervas then asked how he could go about winning the confidence of the Ambassador reports to the United States Government, and that journalists report to the people, and the people elect the Government.

Thus the colorful Zervas learned about the way the American democracy operates. The elimination of Zervas will remove much of the public discontent, but it still remains to be seen if the Tsaldaris cabinet will live for any length of time. It is strictly a Populist cabinet and presents only the extreme right wing and the King. Unless some of the temporary appointments are eventually turned over to the Republicans and representatives of other parties, there will be another crisis in a short time.

Proposed Slicing of Holy Land

COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATIONS—United Nations Special Committee on Palestine has recommended that the Holy Land be divided into Arab and Jewish states. coast from Isdub to the Egyptian frontier. The ports of Jaffa and Haifa would be operated "in the common interest" under an economic union of the two states.

Arab spokesmen said this was not acceptable. They said the Arab League would fight the report in the General Assembly through its five U. N. members—Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia.

In Jerusalem, Emile Ghoury of the Palestine Arab Higher Committee declared that no Arabs anywhere would accept partition.

"If Great Britain tries to force it," he said, "we will oppose it by force."

The Federation of American Scientists warned yesterday that military preparedness will not give the United States national security and called for continued efforts to set up an international system of atomic energy control.

Dr. Robert E. Marshak, chairman of the federation, made public a statement commemorating the second anniversary of VJ-Day. It said, "We do not have security if, at the same time we destroy our enemies, they destroy us."

Calls for Continuation

In releasing the statement, which was adopted by the federation at a meeting in New York August 10, Marshak called for continuation of the work of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

He said the forthcoming report of the commission to the U. N. General Assembly will leave "important segments" of the control problem still unsolved.

The scientists' statement emphasized that other nations soon will have atomic bombs and "there is no adequate defense" against them and "there will be no defense."

Since "true national security means that the Nation and its people are secure against the loss of their lives, their liberties and their property," it said, "a strong science will not, in itself, give the country national security.

"Inescapably then, national security lies in world security and that can be attained only by international action. As a Nation we have not learned this lesson. There is a tendency to accept military preparedness as a guarantee of national security."

The scientists supported the U. S. policy in the United Nations on atomic control and said that "discouragement must not cause us to substitute national half-measures for the goal of international cooperation."

Apelike Pelvis Found in Africa May Be Relic of 'Dawn Man'

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 1 (U.P.)—The pelvis of the "Dawn Man," found in South Africa August 1, may close one of the links between ape and man, Prof. Wilfrid E. Le Gros Clark of Oxford University held today.

Dr. Clark, a professor of anatomy, said the fossils, of which the pelvis is one, showed a remarkable combination of human and simian characters. The fossils have been named Australopithecinae.

"It is not easy to define precisely what the real status of Australopithecinae may be," he said.

Status In Question

"Are they to be regarded as 'apes' with limb structure and bodily posture approximating those characteristics of man, or are they perhaps to be regarded as astonishingly small-brained 'human beings' of exceedingly primitive types?

"The very fact that these are now questions for serious discussion is sufficient to emphasize the remarkable nature of the South African discoveries."

(Some American anthropologists disagree with Professor Clark and say the age of any missing link between ape and man would be found in fossils millions of years, not mere hundreds of thousands, old. They do agree that the South African finds are important. In fact, an American expedition is in the area now, seeking more fossils.)

Clark implied the pelvis might prove the climax to the finds in South Africa in 23 years of search of fossil beds. These finds approximate 250,000 years in age.

Definitely Human

The pelvis is of particular importance, for it is definitely human in its general character and is entirely unlike that of anthropoid apes," Clark said.

"The evidence is now complete. It can no longer be doubted that these extinct ape-like creatures stood and walked in an erect position approximating that characteristic of man, while their brains in actual volume had still hardly surpassed those of apes.

Clark said he believed the South African fossils did what the Java and Chinese fossils of pithecanthropus (an extinct intermediary between man and existing apes) failed to do. The Java and Chinese Dawn Men lived 500,000 years ago. Of them, Clark said:

"These earlier fossils provide confirmatory evidence for the thesis of human evolution, but it can hardly be said that they bridge the gap between the simian level and the human level.

"The discoveries made in South Africa go a considerable way toward filling this morphological gap. For these fossils show a remarkable combination of human and simian characters."

He added that finds now being made in Lake Victoria were likely to throw light on the origin of the whole group of hominidae, the group which includes man and the anthropoid ape.

Mechanized Farms Create Own DP Problem in U. S.

By The Associated Press

The United States is facing a serious "displaced persons" problem of its own, the House Agriculture Committee reported yesterday.

The problem relates to farm labor shoved aside by mechanization and other agricultural developments, the committee said in a preliminary report on its study of a long-range farm program.

Noting that last year's record-breaking crop production was achieved by a farm population of only 26 million persons—some 3 million fewer than that of 1940—the report stated:

"There can be no doubt but that mechanization, new crop practices, elimination of marginal farms, consolidation of uneconomic farm units will mean further displacement of people now making some kind of a living from the land.

"In some sections—as in the cotton and sugar beet areas—this situation already threatens to become acute, as hand labor is replaced by machines."

Terming the situation of the displaced farm workers "one of the most serious human problems to be faced in our agriculture program," the committee said it is only one of several for which a solution has yet to be found.

In fact, the committee added, its entire study so far has raised more questions than answers, among them:

What is the actual productive capacity of American agriculture?

How much food can the American people consume?

What is the world's capacity to consume American farm products?

How can agriculture production be shifted from surplus crops to those that are in demand?

Are price supports a legitimate part of a sound, long-range program?

The committee said it will resume hearings in Washington October 6 to try to find some of the answers.

As for American and world food consumption, the report described past experience as "almost worthless as a guide to the future."

"If the war has proved anything, it is that prewar conceptions of the quantity of food Americans would consume were hardly worth the paper they were written on," the committee stated.

"Since 1940, Americans have demonstrated an appetite for meat, eggs, fruits, dairy products, and other foods that disregarded all previous conceptions of what they ought to want. At present the only answer seems to be that no one knows how much food the American people will consume if they have the money to buy it and it is offered to them in a marketable form."

More Pressure Put on Tsaldaris To Broaden Greek Cabinet

Athens, Greece, Sept. 1 (U.P.)—Pressure increased today for Premier Constantin Tsaldaris to broaden his shaky new Populist-dominated government.

American officials, who have openly expressed their desire for a broadened government, conferred with Tsaldaris in what was officially described as a courtesy call.

Loy Henderson, the State Department representative who attended the conference with Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh, said the talks were on a global basis and did not concern Greek internal affairs.

Six political leaders outside the Populist Party informed King Paul they would not tolerate a one-sided government and urged him to name a premier who would bring unity to Greece.

U. S. Repeal Urged For Reparation Plan

Held Since War

Industrialist, 22 Other Japs Are Released

Tokyo, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Chikuhei Nakajima, one of Japan's industrial giants and the manufacturer of almost all her military aircraft, was among 23 Class "A" war crimes suspects released from arrest over the weekend, the international prosecution section of the War Crimes Tribunal announced today.

Included in the 23 were former cabinet ministers, government advisers, industrialists, one admiral, one general, and several leading journalists and radio executives.

Fifteen of the top war crimes suspects were released from Sugamo Prison where they have been held since the Japanese surrender. The other eight were under house arrest, which has now been lifted.

Nakajima, one of the top-ranking members of the Zaibatsu industrial empire, was at one time minister of munitions and held several other cabinet posts during his career.

12-Country Body Sought To Boss Japs

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 1 (AP).—British Commonwealth nations indicated today they would seek formation of a 12-country commission to police enforcement of the Japanese peace treaty.

This was disclosed in the official report of a week's secret business sessions by the Commonwealth Conference, whose final public session will be held tomorrow. Attending are Australia, the United Kingdom, Burma, Canada, India, New Zealand, Pakistan and South Africa.

One authoritative report said the delegates envisaged a "supervisory commission" sitting in Japan for several years to see that the Japanese fulfill treaty obligations.

Commonwealth representatives were said to have expressed the view that the commission likely would have to be backed by some military force, although substantially smaller than the present occupation forces.

Nations Wanted

Countries which the Commonwealth would like to see represented at the peace conference and on the supervisory commission were reported to be the 11 now on the Far Eastern Commission—Australia, Britain, Canada, China, France, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, the Philippines, Russia and the United States—plus the new dominion of Pakistan.

Authoritative information was that the delegates hoped Russia would sit at the peace sessions and not insist that the treaty be drawn up by the major powers.

According to an authoritative source, the following would be the broad post-treaty status of Japan if Commonwealth ideas are incorporated in the peace treaty:

The supervisory commission would keep an eye on Japan. It would encourage the Japanese government to take the initiative, interfering as little as possible and stepping in only when the Japanese were not doing what the source called "the right thing."

A comparatively small military force would back up the commission. There also would be an Allied staff of inspectors who would, among other things, watch imports of potential war stores.

The conference also reportedly discussed whether any military force should be stationed in Japan or adjacent islands, such as Okinawa.

Jap Forces Barred

All Japanese armed forces would be prohibited.

Internal order would be maintained by an unarmed Japanese police force.

Japanese territory would be limited to the four main islands and to minor islands awarded by the final conference.

Armament and aircraft manufacture would be prohibited, together with uneconomic strategic materials.

Naval shipbuilding would be prohibited, and commercial shipbuilding would be restricted as to tonnage, speed and operations.

Democratic institutions would be encouraged.

Terms for Japan Too Drastic, Says War Dept. Aide

Clifford S. Strike, chairman of a special War Department committee on the Japanese situation, yesterday urged repeal of the Pauley plan for Japanese reparations despite possible protests from Russia and China.

Declaring that the plan, already approved by the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission, is too drastic, he said it must be canceled by the United States even if such action "means making a separate peace with Japan." Gen. Douglas MacArthur and "others in high position," he said, believe the plan is too severe "and hope that it can be revised."

Strike, president of F. H. McGraw & Co., contractors and engineers, served as deputy chief for reparation in Germany before heading the committee sent by the War Department to appraise conditions in Japan.

Writing in the current issue of American Magazine, Strike said that the plan of Edwin W. Pauley, President Truman's personal reparations representative, would take from Japan "about 30 per cent of her peacetime industrial capacity" through the loss of 1100 plants.

"We are in grave danger of bankrupting ourselves in an attempt to rehabilitate the conquered nations," he wrote.

Appear Little Better Off

He criticized Russia sharply for looting not only Germany but parts of Manchuria, Formosa and Korea. In spite of a 14 billion dollar contribution for United States taxpayers for foreign relief, he said, Europe and Asia appear to be little better off than when the war ended.

"Russia appears to be gratified by this situation," he wrote. "The more chaos there is in the world, the greater the opportunities for Communist penetration.

"The more money the United States gives away, the less we shall have to fight a world depression—or another world war."

Strike said the only way to repeal the Pauley plan was for the United States to overrule the Far Eastern Commission since "Russia and probably China would veto a revision that would reduce reparations from Japan."

"In that case, to get our way, we would have to exercise our right to overrule the FEC, which would cause political complications. But I believe we should act, even if it means making a separate peace with Japan."

He emphasized that he did not want to rebuild Japan as a possible war threat and said that his committee found that "even if we left almost everything as is, Japan would never be able to make war again and would barely be able to struggle back to its feet in a few years."

He said the committee recommended for reparations the removal of some excess steel-making capacity, oil-storage capacity, and petroleum refining plants; all machine tools from army and navy arsenals; special-purpose machines from aircraft plants, and excess shipbuilding plants.

He said this would be a small percentage of the plants earmarked in the Pauley plan.

Virginia Pupils Lead Trek Back to Area Schools This Week

By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

PICTURE OF THE "R" MONTH—The "R" month rolled in yesterday and in the suburban counties of Greater Washington mothers and their children were thinking of the three "R." This deals with an "R" for ready. Mrs. G. Edward Mehleck, of 1642 Mount Eagle pl., Parkfairfax, Va., runs through a rehearsal for the first day of school with daughter, Carolyn, 5½, who will start at St. Mary's Academy on Russell rd., in Alexandria Tuesday. Public schools in nearby Virginia open Thursday; nearby Maryland September 10, and in the District September 22

With sharpened pencils but wits dulled by a carefree summer holiday, the vanguard of some 137,000 Greater Washington area school children will begin their back-to-school trek this week.

Parents by the tens of thousands will heave a mighty sigh of relief when the school bells ring. Dad has taken pencils to the office for sharpening and mom has been arguing with her junior miss over whether the new or old hemline shall prevail.

The biggest batch, some 73,000 District children, have until September 22 before school opens. New District students may register beginning today through the 21st at their respective schools.

Pupils in Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax will officially start school on Thursday. Registration of new pupils in Arlington will take place tomorrow. In Fairfax, they will register Thursday, same day as school opening, and Alexandria new students will register today and tomorrow.

Approximately 7000 pupils are expected to enroll in Alexandria schools with an estimated 10,800 reporting in Fairfax and 12,750 in Arlington.

In both Prince Georges and Montgomery opening school bells will ring September 10. Registration for new pupils in Montgomery will take place September 8 and 9 and in Prince Georges they will register at school opening.

Almost 23,000 are scheduled to jam Prince Georges schools and more than 16,000 are expected in Montgomery.

All Maryland Catholic schools will open their doors tomorrow. District and Virginia Catholic schools will ring opening bells on Monday.

Typical complaint of mothers preparing for the back-to-school movement came yesterday from Mrs. G. Edward Mehleck, 1642 Mount Eagle pl., Alexandria.

Her daughter, Carolyn, 5½, enrolled at St. Mary's Academy, 2404 Russell rd., Alexandria, has grown three inches since purchase of her new spring clothes. But she doesn't know about the new hemline yet.

Carolyn will start at St. Mary's on Tuesday with the rest of the kindergarten, the day after the rest of the school's students report.

No Predictions on Enrollment

Mrs. Mehlick, whose presence here is explained by the housing shortage between here and Chicago, where her husband works, says Carolyn is "feeling quite superior" because she has lost four baby teeth—a feat unequaled by her kindergarten colleagues.

Few school officials interviewed yesterday were willing to predict much of an increased enrollment this fall. Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendnet, said one factor in D. C. enrollment might be a recent ruling requiring non-District residents who work in Washington to pay tuition in District schools for the first time.

Nationally, 24 million youngsters are expected to enroll this fall. The National Safety Council has set today as the beginning of a month-long "Back to School Safety Campaign."

Japan Free of Much Unrest

Tokyo (Tuesday), Sept. 2 (AP).—General MacArthur declared today on the second anniversary of Japan's formal surrender that Japan had become "one of the few places in a distraught world where, despite an economy of critically short supply, there is a minimum of fear, of confusion and of unrest."

In a statement, he attributed this to an occupation policy in which "right, rather than might, has been the criterion" and urged that a peace treaty "be approached in the same tolerant and just atmosphere."

The treaty should insure "that this defeated country has the opportunity to become self-sustaining, rather than reduced to a condition of mendicancy," he said. "A post-treaty Japan should not become a burden upon the economy of any other country."

Japan, he added, "is in no danger of economic collapse" and if "given a just opportunity to live in freedom and peace with her neighbors in the community of nations, there will be no threat to the survival and strengthening of the democratic processes here inaugurated under the occupation."

Jean Ziegler of Kenmore, N. Y., who parachuted about midway in race, in full sight of the grandstand.

Jack B. Hardwick of Arcadia, Calif., who crash-landed his P-51 Mustang at the start of the big race, but walked off with torn clothing as his only apparent personal damage.

Woody Edmonston of Lynchburg, Va., who was injured in a parachute landing and taken to a hospital, where attendants said his condition was fair.

Cleland's average speed was announced as 396.1 miles an hour, a new world record for official closed-course racing. The previous record was set at 384 miles an hour yesterday in a special race for P-51 Mustangs.

Cleland also was announced as having flown the fastest lap in the history of the Thompson when he turned the eighth lap at 404 miles an hour.

Richard M. Becker of Willoughby, Ohio, averaged 390.1 miles an hour in placing second and Jay Deming of Niagara Falls, N. Y., turned in 389.8 miles an hour for third place. He flew the same P-39 Aircobra with which Tex Johnston of Niagara Falls, won the Thompson last year.

[First-prize money for the Thompson was $16,000, according to the United Press, with $2000 extra for setting a new record.]

While the winning speeds for the jets were being announced, William Brennand of Oshkosh, Wis., sped across the finish line to win the Goodyear Trophy and $7000 in the contest for midget planes weighing 500 pounds.

Brennand flew a red ship in which his boss, Steve Wittman, set an international speed record for light planes in 1937. The fuselage is the same, but the wing and engine have been changed.

Tiny Paul Penrose of North Hollywood, Calif., flying "Swee' Pea," the entry of Art Chester of Los Angeles, himself a famous racer of prewar meets, tailed Brennand every foot of the three-mile race, finished in second place and assured himself $4000 second money.

Leave Bonds To Free Cash

bond cashing legislation, largely with arguments on the inflationary possibilities. Congress, however, sided with those who argued that veterans need the money and that former enlisted men, who hold the bulk of the bonds, should be put on a level with former officers who already were getting cash.

The bonds cover pay for unused leave accumulated by the ex-soldiers and sailors. It was stipulated originally that the bonds could not be cashed for five years.

President Truman, in signing the bill to allow immediate cashing, urged those who do not actually need the money to keep it for a future nestegg.

Other officials have voiced the same plea, the most recent being Senator Myers (D., Pa.).

The Senator announced last night that he will push at the next session of Congress for enactment of his bill to raise the interest rate on the bonds to 6 per cent. He said his idea is to give the veterans a "compelling incentive" to hold the investment.

"I am afraid," he said, "that the sudden conversion of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of terminal leave bonds into cash may result in a further rise in prices for those things the veteran needs, on the theory that the more money the veteran has the more he can afford to pay."

Truman Gets Big Welcome

view the Brazilian jungle and to see the yawning mouths of the Amazon as his plane flashed thousands of feet above them.

After refueling at Belem, the plane took off on its final leg to Rio de Janeiro.

21-Gun Salute Fired

Chief Presidential Pilot Lieut. Col. Henry T. Myers set down the Independence at Galeao Airport, beside Rio de Janeiro's Guambanara Bay, at 2:47 p. m. (1:47 p. m. EDT).

Foreign Office Attache Thompson Flores welcomed the presidential party, a company of the Brazilian air force presented arms and an air force band played the Brazilian and United States national anthems. Secretary of State George C. Marshall, attending the Inter - American Conference, stepped forward to greet the President as did Ambassador William D. Pawley and Stanley Woodward, protocol chief of the State Department.

The presidential party were conducted to a special launch for the brief cruise to the Touring Club on the mainland shore where President Dutra awaited his fellow American Chief Executive.

Brazilian shore and naval batteries, and the giant United States battleship Missouri in which the President will return home, fired 21-gun salutes as the launch sped across the bay.

It was 2:41 p. m. (EDT) when the presidential launch arrived at the Touring Club dock. As the gangplank was laid, President Dutra went halfway up it to greet President Truman with a handshake of the heartiest cordiality.

Balmy Winter Day

It was a balmy winter day, with the sun breaking through a slight overcast.

With President Dutra and Mrs. Dutra in the welcoming party were Vice President and Mrs. Nereu Ramos; Samuel Duarte, president of the Chamber of Deputies, and Mrs. Duarte; Fernando Mello Vienna, president of the Senate, and Mrs. Melio Vianna; president of the Supreme Court Jose Linhares and Mrs Linhares, members of the cabinet and his officers of the army, navy and air force with their wives.

As official greetings were exchanged, an army band played the United States and Brazilian anthems and the guns boomed again in a 21-gun presidential salute.

President Dutra led President Truman to the first of a fleet of motor cars for the parade up the Avnido Rio Branco, through the business district and along the beautiful shores of the inner bays of Flamenco and Botafogow to the United States Embassy in Sao Clemente st. Mrs. Dutra and Miss Truman were in the seventh car with Mrs. Joaquin de Sousa Leao, wife of a foreign official.

Dines At Embassy

President Dutra left President Truman at the embassy. Later Mr. Truman visited President Dutra briefly and returned to the embassy to dine with Pawley.

Tomorrow Mr. Truman will attend the closing plenary session of the Inter-American Conference and address it at 9:30 a. m. (EDT.)

The President will entertain conference delegates at luncheon aboard the Missouri and then attend the formal signing of the Inter-American defense treaty in the afternoon.

President Truman will be host at a reception tomorrow evening aboard the Missouri. Wednesday and Thursday will be free days. Friday President Dutra will give a state dinner at the Itamarty palace, the foreign office.

Saturday the President will be host at a banquet at the American Embassy.

Sunday Mr. Truman will review the parade in celebration of Brazilian independence day and he then will leave for home aboard the Missouri, arriving back in Washington between September 16 and 20.

Flier Too Successful In Producing Rain

La Junta, Colo., Sept. 1 (AP).—Amateur Flier W. J. Black reported too much success with his rain-making today—his wife's washing was soaked by showers he said he started with dry ice.

Black found the missus quite irate when he came home after sowing four pounds of dry ice in clouds at a 17,000-foot altitude.

He said subsequent showers fell for 20 minutes in a square-mile residential area, including the Black backyard aflutter with drying clothes.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT
Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress
Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.
Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

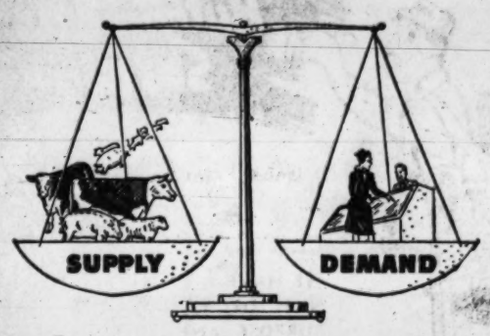
ABOUT THE PRICE OF MEAT

More Meat Coming



More meat is on the way : : : perhaps 15 per cent more this fall and winter. Meat animals that have been growing on America's farms and ranches soon will be coming to market in larger numbers.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says that with the public's purchasing power and demand for meat remaining about the same, "a moderate seasonal decline in prices" may be expected. This is the law of supply and demand in operation.

Whatever the price, and whether prices go up or down, total net profits, after all expenses, of the meat packing companies have practically no effect on the price you pay for a pound of meat.

As a matter of fact, the earnings of the meat packing industry for buying livestock, processing it and delivering it under refrigeration—a thousand miles or a few blocks—to your store actually amount to less than 7 cents a week for an average family of four.

Best advice for right now: Look around in your store for the best buys in meat. For example, juicy hamburger and tender pot roasts are available in many stores at half the price of fancy steaks. Other relatively good buys await careful shoppers.

Mine Control Accord Near

centage increase as a definite goal for the mines under the new plan.

The North German Coal Control agency was organized by the British military government to supervise mining operations and management.

As a result of the merger of the American and British occupation zones of Germany last January 1, Unnited States authorities acquired a voice in matters relating to over-all policy in the Ruhr mines. They did not, however, obtain membership in the control agency and they have had no direct managerial authority.

Persons like Robert Moses, New York City construction co-ordinator, who have inspected Ruhr operations have pictured the British as controlling the management and the Americans as giving advice.

Under the new plan as described by officials in a position to be familiar with it, the United States and the British would have direct equal authority.

These officials, in alluding to the proposed new arrangement, referred to the two-nation group as an authority, which suggests plans previously advocated by various persons, including Moses, who made an inspection tour of Germany in July at the request of General Lucius P. Clay, American military governor.

How closely the new plan in all its details might resemble what Moses advocated could not be ascertained, but if it does set up an authority similar in a general way to his proposal the road might be opened for large new investments to spur coal production.

Moses, in a report suppressed by the State Department on the eve of the conference because it was critical of British mine management, pointed out that an authority could borrow money from the World Bank, from the United States and British governments and from fiduciaries and private investors.

At a press conference in Washington last Wednesday, John J. McCloy, president of the World Bank, indicated that the bank might look with favor on a loan to boost Ruhr coal production so long as the money was lent to a non-enemy agency and the participating governments would guarantee repayment.

The Gallup Poll

French Support Marshall Plan But Some Question Motives

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 1.—"Le Plan Marshall," as the French call it, has wide popular support throughout France. But some Frenchmen are suspicious of American motives in proposing the plan.

A poll by the French Institute of Public Opinion shows that nearly two thirds of the French people think France was right to take part in discussions of the Marshall Plan, which is a plan for European self-recovery with American aid. Nearly half say that Russia was wrong in refusing to participate.

Yet a substantial number in France—47 per cent of those polled—think that America proposed the Marshall Plan mainly because the United States needs foreign markets to avoid an economic crisis.

Representatives of 16 European nations are now sitting in Paris drawing up a consolidated "budget" of their economic needs. When this is completed and the total cost estimated, the United States has promised to study the requirements and see what it can do to help the needy nations with loans, shipments of machinery and goods, and other means.

Shortly after the Paris Conference began the French Institute, one of the 11 members of the International Association of Public Opinion (Gallup) Institutes, questioned a cross section of French voters on the following:

"Sixteen European nations are meeting in Paris to discuss the Marshall Plan. The following nations have refused to participate in the discussion—Albania, Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Russia and Yugoslavia. Do you think that the Marshall Plan can succeed in spite of this?"

Can succeed	46%
Cannot	22
No opinion	32

Do you believe that France was right or wrong to participate in discussions of the Marshall Plan?"

Right	64%
Wrong	8
No opinion	28

"In your opinion is the Marshall Plan any threat to the independence of France?"

Yes	23%
No	38
No opinion	39

"In your opinion was the proposal of Mr. Marshall dictated by:

"1. The desire of America to intervene in internal affairs of Europe 17%
"2. A sincere desire to aid Europe's recovery 13

A STUDY of the reactions of people in the Netherlands was conducted in July by the Dutch Institute of Public Opinion. It found that more than 7 in every 10 had heard or read about the Marshall Plan, and that 75 per cent of these wanted Holland to cooperate with the plan.

American sentiment was measured in July by the American Institute, which showed that approximately one half the Nation's voters had heard or read about the Plan and that a substantial majority (57 per cent) of this group expressed opinions favorable to it.

Dig More Coal, Union Urges British Miners

London, Sept. 1 (U.P.)—While Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, completed his plan for squeezing unessential industry out of the British economy today, the powerful Trades Union Congress called upon miners to work longer and dig coal without waiting for the benefits of nationalization.

Cripps' plan will be presented to the cabinet Thursday or Friday, when it holds its third emergency crisis meeting. Purpose of the Cripps plan is to force workers from industry the labor government considers unessential into work it believes essential to the national welfare.

Represents 7,500,000

The Trades Union Congress, representing 7,500,000 unionized workers, took up the national state of near bankruptcy in the first session of its annual convention at Southport.

Delegates adopted a declaration warning that "an economic crisis of unprecedented gravity imperils the safety of the nation." Speakers explained that a shortage of coal was the main reason for the lag in British industry and said there was no justification for a general strike of miners in the South Yorkshire fields.

That strike defied both the government and union leaders. The 2300 strikers at the Grimethorpe pit, where the strike started 21 days ago, voted to remain out despite Fuel Minister Emanuel Shinwell's plea that the nation's economy was "hanging by a thread."

About 500 sympathy strikers in two other mines also decided to remain out, but 13,700 who had been sympathy strikers voted to go back to work. Having heard that the Grimethorpe miners had decided to stay out, 1500 of those who had returned walked off their jobs again tonight.

Diplomats Discuss Crisis

The crisis was discussed by three high American diplomatic officials, who conferred in London.

The three were Ambassador Lewis Douglas, George Kennan, head of the State Department's planning staff, and Charles Bonesteel, special assistant to Undersecretary of State William Clayton. They discussed the British economic situation as it relates to the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe.

Under the Cripps plan, industries that the Labor government deems unessential would be forced to close by the government through the expedient of denying them coal and raw materials.

Workers thus left jobless would be "directed" by the government into more essential industries, i.e., those producing for export.

Minister of Food John Strachey announced yesterday that Britain had stopped buying food from the United States because of the dollar shortage.

He said Britain would manage for some time, if it had to, without food from the United States and he believed the present ration could be maintained for a long time, "but that will depend on availabilities elsewhere."

French Theater Owner Held in Death of 87

Paris, Sept. 1 (U.P.) — Antoin Mouillade, owner of the suburban Rueil Theater where 87 persons died in a fire Saturday night, was held today on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Mouillade also was charged with failure to observe safety precautions.

The 550-seat theater was reported jammed to the limit, with folding seats in the aisles and three exit doors partly blocked when the fire broke out.

N. C. Man Dies In Automobile

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 1 (AP). Charles Arthur Stewart of Henderson, N. C., died Sunday night in an automobile in which he was being brought to Fredericksburg after he became ill while driving his car on Route 1.

Stewart stopped at a filling station about 9 miles south of here, told an attendant he felt unwell and asked to be taken to Fredericksburg. He died just as the car entered the city limits.

dulged in practically as little as possible.

Next, and equally as important, concrete proposals have been accepted on a plan fostered by Benelux of Belgium for a settlement of balances on a multilateral basis.

The problem has been this:

In a host of bilateral deals, nation "A" exported to nation "B" only in an amount it could be paid back by a precisely equal movement of goods from "B" to "A". This reduced volume trade between every pair of nations to the level of the lowest exporter.

Holland, for example, would like to import more goods from Belgium than she is able to export to Belgium. But the situation might be reversed with respect to Holland and a third country.

Therefore the new proposals contemplate two approaches. The first is a clearing arrangement so that bilateral settlements would not have to be made on the spot. Instead, differences would be allowed to run unsettled over a longer period of time in hopes that they would more nearly balance each other out with the passage of time. The second approach is essentially a broader base for trade away from strictly bilateral transactions in favor of multilateral trading, so that "A's" surplus of export to "B", and "B's" surplus of exports to "C" can be settled—paid for—by a hoped-for surplus of "C's" exports to "A."

The second major goal of the Paris conferees in this field, the goal of an eventual customs union, raises much more difficult problems. France, it is known, is very receptive to the idea, but Britain is much less so.

But a customs union without Britain is none at all.

The complicating factor from the English viewpoint is, of course, the policy of empire preference. It would have to go by the board, or at least submit to serious modification if England undertook participation in a customs union.

The plan sought by proponents of a customs union is to get all nations to make commitments to put the arrangement into operation at some future date—say 10 or 20 years. Meantime, all would agree on immediate steps, perhaps a 10 per cent reduction of all European tariffs beginning at once, to be followed by a certain percentage cut each year until finally there was complete west European free trade.

The customs union question has been under study by the conference executive committee for two weeks. It is too early to be sure of its outcome.

The big problems boil down to the fact that there exists at the Paris conference table what one expert termed "17 (including western Germany) uneconomic principalities." No one alone can be selfsufficient. If brought together on a sound basis they have hope of prosperity by economic cooperation.

Fraudulent Election

Interest in the Hungarian election, so far as the United States was concerned, was confined almost wholly to the method by which the Communists would bring about their victory. That they would win was taken for granted. With a Russian army of occupation still in Hungary, with the government and the police dominated by Communists, the balloting might have been dispensed with, except for the inexplicable passion of the Commies to prove their devotion to democracy.

Of course, their policy always calls for adherence to the democratic pattern only so far as that is compatible with continuation of Communist control. Thus the comrades in Budapest first purged the voting lists to dispose of many thousands of their opponents. Then on election day they resorted to the immeasurably crude scheme of letting favored party members vote anywhere from twice to 26 times. One report from Budapest says that all day long truck loads of soldiers, policemen and civilians roared out of the cities and into the country towns to vote in as many polling places as they could reach during the day. This form of fraudulent voting was so open that hundreds of citizens and journalists reported it. Even the Communists' allies, the Social Democrats, protested.

Returns from such an election mean nothing. Perhaps the most shocking insult to the intelligence of the people of Hungary and of the rest of the world is the Communists' naive assumption that such a shabby piece of trickery will be accepted as compliance with democratic principles.

On Naming Wars

In case you are looking about for something that will take your mind off the weather, the difficulties of European reconstruction, the price of bacon and the hopelessly ignominious status of the Washington Senators, we respectfully remind you that the squabble about what to call the domestic unpleasantness of 80-odd years ago is raging more fiercely than ever. This, as we understand it, is still a public controversy conducted on strictly democratic principles and open to all comers without regard to age, sex, race, color, religion, political affiliation, intelligence quotient, occupation or income bracket and with no charge for admission—except, of course, postage for letters-to-the-editor and printers' bills for whatever pamphlets or monographs the controversialist may be impelled to write.

For example, Mr. Neil D. Cranmer, commander in chief of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, has spent a good many dollars on the printing and posting of letters to all members of the congressional press galleries exhorting them in the name of logic and historical accuracy never to commit the solecism of calling it the War Between the States. Enclosed in Mr. Cranmer's letter are nine theses prepared by a department historian, Mr. Michael G. Heintz, who, as we gather, is prepared to defend them against all comers.

A War Between the States, Mr. Heintz argues, would be manifestly unconstitutional, for such a thing is explicitly forbidden in Article I, Section 10. Again the Supreme Court has taken the position in several decisions that it was nothing more nor less than a Civil War. Or, if it was just a War Between the States, why did the States of the late Confederacy repudiate their war debts as they are required by the Fourteenth Amendment to do in cases of "insurrection or rebellion against the United States?" Why did so many Confederate generals contribute articles to the Century Magazine under the title "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War?" And why wasn't the war terminated by a peace treaty, which is the usual method of concluding wars between sovereign states?

What answers, if any, the opposition may have to the somewhat legalistic points raised by Mr. Heintz we must wait and see. Meanwhile, however, we are inclined to take the Cranmer-Heintz side of the argument, though for somewhat different reasons. First of all, it seems to us that if there must be wars, a three-syllable war is to be preferred to a five-syllable one. Wars whose names make too much of a mouthful have a way of becoming very dull going in schoolbooks, which, we suppose, is why nobody really cares much about the War of the Spanish Succession or the Second War Against the Samnites. Moreover, since there were 11 States on one side and 23 on the other, a decent usage would at least require that it be called the War Among the States. Finally, where civil war has a bad name among the writers of all ages, who are almost unanimous in describing it as the worst evil that can befall any people or state, names like the War Between the States seem to encourage those who like to pretend that the business of 1861-65 was somehow a romantic and glamorous affair instead of the grandiose carnival of blood, agony and destruction that it was.

Security With Freedom

The Inter-American Conference for Maintenance of Continental Peace and Security will close with President Truman's address today in an aura of good feeling. In spite of some spirited differences, chiefly between the Argentine and United States delegations, unanimous agreement has been reached. And the proposed treaty which has emerged is a model regional security pact which stands out in sharp contrast to the turmoil and tyranny that mark the postwar efforts to attain regional security in some other parts of the world.

The unanimity that was finally attained at Rio is by no means the unanimity of intimidation or dictatorship. The distinguished delegates assembled there would laugh scornfully at any suggestion that they had been coerced by the United States. Precisely the reverse is true. Most of them have eagerly joined hands with this country in setting up a security system for the Western Hemisphere because they see no danger of being coerced. Realism must indicate to them that, if it came to a showdown, all the Latin American nations acting together would be unable to muster sufficient military force to put down aggression on the part of the United States. Yet they welcome United States participation in common action against any other aggressor that may challenge their rights from within or without the hemispheric defense zone. This can mean only that they no longer fear aggression from us.

That spirit of mutual trust is happily embodied in the language of the proposed treaty. It sets forth that "the obligation of mutual assistance and common defense of the American republics is essentially related to their democratic ideals and to their will to cooperate permanently in the fulfillment of the principles and purposes of a policy of peace." There has been no hesitation about invoking stern repressive measures against aggressor nations because the system is "founded on justice and the moral order and consequently on international recognition of human rights and freedoms." Great power to keep the peace and an impeccable sense of justice have been combined in a single agreement. The result is an inspiring sample of international democracy in action.

It is well to remember, too, that the treaty does not begin with the recital of what shall be done to put down aggression. Its first article condemns war as an instrument of international policy and its second binds the signatories "to submit every controversy which may arise between them to methods of peaceful settlement" within the American system before resorting to the United Nations. Resort to force to subdue an aggressor from within, if that becomes necessary, can thus come into the picture only after the aggressor has violated his sacred pledge to all the other American states.

In defining aggression the treaty specifies only two acts that will bring the "organ of consultation" into prompt action. These are an unprovoked armed attack against the territory, people or armed forces of another nation and an invasion of one state by another. The door is left wide open, however, for joint resistance of aggression of other types. Article VI says: "If the inviolability or the integrity of the territory or the sovereignty or political independence of any American state should be affected by an aggression which is not an armed attack or by an intra-continental or extra-continental conflict, or by any other fact or situation that might endanger the peace of America, the organ of consultation shall meet immediately in order to agree on the measures which must be taken in case of aggression to assist the victim of the aggression or, in any case, the measures which should be taken for the common defense and for the maintenance of the peace and security of the continent." In other words, the Conference of Foreign Ministers will have power to define, within specified limits, other acts of aggression against which joint international action could be taken. And these decisions will be made, not by unanimous vote, but with the approval of two thirds of the signatory states.

We venture to suggest that this democratic security system will afford better protection to the Western Hemisphere than will the web of tyranny that Soviet Russia is weaving about her satellites. The Rio conference clearly indicates that a group of nations can set up effective means of keeping the peace among themselves when each is willing to adhere to the principles of justice and good neighborliness. If the Americas can prove to the world that good faith is a stronger bond of security than intrigue and dictation, the Rio conference may well become a landmark in history.

Terminal Leave Bonds

Beginning today veterans will be able to turn their terminal leave bonds into cash by presenting them for redemption at any one of the 16,000 banks and financial institutions that have agreed to act as paying agents for the Treasury. Secretary Snyder urges veterans not in immediate need of cash to hold their bonds and continue to draw interest on them until maturity. But if the Army Times' estimates are correct, more than 70 per cent of the veterans intend to disregard this sound advice. Some of them undoubtedly have little choice in the matter; in fact the Army Times' poll indicates that a considerable percentage of the cash from bond redemptions is already earmarked for debt payments, while many veterans plead the high cost of living as an excuse for redeeming their bonds.

Despite the plea of need, we think it is safe to conclude that a great majority of veterans are under no immediate compulsion to convert their bonds into cash. Congress has done them a grave disservice by passing legislation that permits them to do so. Not only will they lose interest if they cash their bonds, but they will be deprived of reserve funds for use when and if emergencies arise.

Another and more serious objection to legislation which encourages veterans to use savings to finance current purchases is that the encashment of these terminal bonds will contribute to the inflationary upswing of prices by adding to the amount of purchasing power in the hands of consumers. For instance the Bureau of the Budget estimates that redemption of terminal bonds will increase Government payments to the public by 1.4 billion dollars during the current fiscal year. Thus the veterans who complain of high living costs will be helping to raise those costs, if they cash their bonds and spend the proceeds. Their outlays will temporarily swell the profits of businesses that they patronize, but even immediate business gains will be offset by drafts on savings that dissipate reserve purchasing power that might sustain buying later on. And of course all the rest of us will be injured by the inflationary effect of any sudden increase in consumer buying financed by drafts on savings, whether those savings are represented by terminal bonds or some other form of investment.

Glass Of Fashion

In Chicago the other day the members of the National Catholic Women's Union adopted a resolution which declared that immoderate drinking has now become a national vice of Americans of both sexes. In other times, said the resolution, "the victims of drink were chiefly adult men, but nowadays it is frightening to see women, boys and girls falling victims to this dreadful menace." Some ten or twelve days earlier, Cardinal Dougherty, in a letter to the president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, deplored the fact that drinking by women has become a fashionable habit. Where formerly, said the Cardinal, "if a woman was known to be a drinker of intoxicating drink, and especially if a young lady was addicted to the practice of partaking of cocktails, whether privately or in public, her reputation would be smirched." Today, he went on, "it is not uncommon to find both girls and older women under the influence of drink."

What gives these statements special significance is, of course, the fact, that while American Catholics have included a considerable proportion of teetotalers and even some supporters of prohibition, they have not as a group hitherto favored drastic efforts for the discouragement or suppression of the liquor traffic.

There is no doubt that the condition of which they complain is both real and widespread and that it includes all classes of the population. It might be difficult to prove that actual drunkenness is any commoner nowadays than, say, a century ago, but that the per capita consumption of liquor is enormously greater than at any previous time in American history, there can be no doubt whatever. In the year 1945, it is estimated, nearly 8 billion dollars were spent on alcoholic beverages, or about $56 for every man, woman and child. In the past decade the price of liquor has, of course, risen enormously, as the result of steadily heavier taxation, and its quality has progressively declined, due to the willingness of an abnormally thirsty public to be satisfied with "blends" concocted of "neutral spirits," which is to say grain alcohol, and coloring and flavoring materials. The quality of beer is also said to have somewhat deteriorated, and only a few American wines even approximate European standards. Thus it is clear that the great extension of the drinking habit has not been accompanied by any development of the national palate.

Again, drinking has ceased to be a purely festive custom and has extended into virtually every phase of life. The recent revelations of Mr. Johnny Meyer before the Senate inquiry into the Hughes airplane contracts gives some idea of the extent to which drinking has become an accompaniment of business transactions. It has become an almost universal custom to conduct the more delicate business negotiations over liquor glasses. Even in families which do little entertaining the daily "cocktail hour" has become an institution. Many business concerns give little parties for their employes at which liquor is served, and the advent of a successful new author is usually celebrated at what is called, rather quaintly, "a publisher's tea." On passenger trains drinks are served not only in the dining cars but, between meals, from bars in the club cars. A considerable number of the less affluent passengers bring bottles of their own whose contents they consume at their seats in the day coaches. The Hollywood picture which does not have at least one scene with highball or cocktail glasses as properties is rare indeed.

It seems to us that the women at Chicago were right in arguing that all this denotes a dangerous degree of national hedonism, although similar social phenomena have occurred at various places in times of general apprehension, insecurity and inflation, as, for example, in France under the Directoire. Sooner or later, however, it is certain to produce a reaction, and unless we are mistaken, the first symptoms of reaction are now showing themselves.

BOTANY PROFESSOR, WORKING ON HIS THESIS

Here in the quiet of his room,
He brings his papers into bloom,
Inscribing more than what he meant
Of moss and flowers for his content.
What of the thoughts that find their grooves?
He stares ahead and his pen moves,
Forgetful of the world of praise,
Lost in the substance of his days.
He leans upon his desk and sees
The spread of petals, seed and trees.
Within the field of his delights,
Old Time is moveless as he writes.

Rent Increase

Demands for across-the-board increases of 15 per cent of Washington landlords are unjustified when the facts about the rent situation here are considered. Rents in the District are among the highest in the country. National studies show that landlords are making large profits over net operating costs. Therefore, it is reasonable to conclude that District landlords are managing very well indeed.

It is also true that rent adjustments upward on landlord petitions have been especially liberally granted in Washington. Whenever the landlord has been able to demonstrate that an increase was warranted, it was always granted.

The impression that the Building Owners and Managers Association is trying to create, that the new Federal Rent Act permits a general, unqualified increase, is entirely false. The new act allows individual bona fide and voluntary leases to be signed permitting up to a 15 per cent increase provided that normal services are continued and that the lease extends to the end of 1948. This is not a general increase and it is not permissive of such a general increase.

It is significant that the residents of such large cities as New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and Denver have found it extremely urgent to demand and succeed in getting legislation passed to plug up the many loopholes in the Federal law by local ordinance.

With the majority of the District of Columbia residents on fixed salaries, rising costs present a dire situation for consumers further made desperate by threatened rent increases with which they will be unable to cope without seriously impairing health and the ability to secure the bare necessities of living, such as food, clothing and medical care.

We reaffirm that the landlords' appeal is unjustified, illegal and dangerous to the economy of our city. MILDRED D. NETREBA, Executive Secretary, Washington League of Women Shoppers.

"Free Sickness"

In the Boston Herald of August 8, the leading editorial voiced some of the opinions which we who are practicing physicians have had for a long time. The editorial was entitled, "Free Sickness" and contained the following paragraphs:

"If to be sick means a vacation from work in a hospital bed with nursing service and medical supervision, all for free, then why not be sick?

We have something like "free" sickness now in the Blue Cross and the Blue Shield. We shall have something very much like it if Congress puts through a socialized health plan . . .

There is no doubt little actual malingering under this system, but there is evidence that there might be a great deal if the Government took over the whole business and made contribution compulsory under a wage tax.

The present financial difficulty of the Blue Cross arises partly from a greatly increased demand for its benefits . . . "When sickness is 'free' then borderline illnesseses become hospital affairs."

We who practice medicine know that socialized medicine will never work in America. Under any socialized or State medical program of any kind it pays to be ill. It increases absenteeism, it increases the number of psychoneurotics tremendously, it forces people into the habit of being malingerers unconsciously. It definitely increases the illness rate.

In America, we have operated under a free enterprise system which has been a real success. For 300 years the doctors and patients have been free agents. Today no other country has as good a brand of medical care. For the State to meddle in medical affairs is as unnecessary as it is unwanted and avoidable. When the patient-doctor relationship is simple, direct and uncomplicated, it is at its best.

To desert the proven successful ways of our fathers means giving to America a tremendous increase in medical bills and a disastrous decrease in the quality of the doctor's services and in his interest in his patients. Under our present system if we do not give our best efforts to our patients, they do not think well of us and we cannot be successful.

"This Happy Breed"

Your critic's review of "This Happy Breed," the Noel Coward film now showing at the Hippodrome, would seem to deny the English the right to picture themselves. After all, it was made for English consumption, and here in Washington it is relegated to a small theater that specializes in foreign films. But the critic, viewing it through Yankee Doodle spectacles, writes as if furious that the English middle class appears to think well of itself.

An American who knows his own country and the manner of life of the kind of people who give it character and substance only wishes that Hollywood could do a picture of the American scene with the simple fidelity of this. Our plain ordinary folk, like the kind that Coward portrays, go along, to quote your critic, "at exactly the same level of materialism, saccharine myopia and tear-stained mediocrity." If they could rise to the level of lofty emotion with the words to express it, they would cease to be mediocre.

When it comes to the material, the saccharine and the mediocre, the British producers still have something to learn from Hollywood.

Noisy Horns

On August 26, in San Diego a 7-year-old girl died of shock resulting from the blast of an automobile horn. There is a traffic regulation in the District, and I suppose in most States too, to the effect that "the making of an unnecesary or unreasonably loud or harsh sound by means of a horn except for emergency vehicles is unlawful."

Now that at least one death has resulted—and no telling how many unnecessary frights, shakes, and palpitations, from the blatant and sudden application of hyperthyroid auto horns, I should like to appeal to the sadistic or insensitive drivers who use them to either get off the road or turn their noisemakers in for a gentler variety.

Personally, I never had the slightest objection to those melody-making numbers at the 1939 World's Fair (some of which are still around) that get off a firm but gentle warning to the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York."

Sloppy Skirts

The August 24 issue of The Washington Post carried a style article stating that despite some protests women were buying and wearing the new styles. The writer seemed to believe that this was proof positive that these styles would soon be widely adopted and well liked.

Surely the new styles are being bought and worn—but why? Most women, like me, have neither the time nor the skill for home dressmaking or even extensive alterations. We must buy what the stores offer or go clothesless. The new styles will be adopted for that reason and probably for that one alone, as these styles are wasteful as to material, budget breaking as to price, and unbecoming and aging to most younger women.

If a designer with initiative and daring would offer styles with fuller skirts than those worn during the war years and short hemlines for the young and slimmer figure and slightly longer ones for the more mature figure, I imagine these long, sloppy styles that women "are buying and wearing" would soon be offered at clearance prices for lack of buyers.

British View Of U. S. Help

The British press reports that the United States Government has stated that any further loan, even under the Marshall Plan, will be subject to a definite understanding from the British government as to its future policy.

It is essential that it should be generally known in the United States that there are thousands of "thinking" Englishmen, who, while appreciating United States help in the past, sincerely hope that at the present juncture, the United States will give very careful consideration to any further loan, in view of the issues involved in this country and possibly repercussions in Europe.

Many people feel that this country has been sacrificed on the altar of party politics—perhaps one of the few snags of a democratic system,—in that our Socialist government made promises of social legislation to enable it to get into power, which our present economic position does not permit. While many of the social schemes in question are highly commendable, our government should have deferred these schemes and concentrated on "feeding the people" and putting our financial house in order after the strain of six years of war.

Perhaps the worst example of this Socialist legislation is the general granting of a five-day week, which, while in principle is perfectly correct, should not have been introduced at a time when the key to recovery is increased production.

Nationalization or the threat of nationalization to key industries naturally places these industries in a position of uncertainty and confusion which retards schemes of development and the replacement of war-worn plants. If a referendum were taken in this country, it would possibly show a large majority against nationalization, as a great number of the electorate who voted Socialist at the general election were not necessarily in favor of nationalization.

Free the country of countless rigid controls on industry, which clog and destroy its mechanism, encourage private enterprise to function normally and provide both employer and employe with the incentive to work, and the crisis will soon pass us by.

Is a further American loan to be used to bolster up existing conditions? We want your help, but many of us wonder whether it will prove to be to our benefit under present circumstances.

German Unions

BERLIN.—Of all the difficult tasks being undertaken by Americans in Germany, none is tougher than trying to sponsor the growth of free trade unions. Trade unions before Hitler leaned heavily on the state and they were instruments for political action rather than agencies for collective bargaining. There were Communist unions, Catholic unions, Social-Democratic unions. The American idea of a holiday in tribute to all labor—a Labor Day—is utterly alien to the German approach.

Even under the Weimar Republic, which lived under a kind of oxygen tent from 1920 to 1933, the trade unions were narrowly circumscribed by law, as was the whole process of collective bargaining. Union elections were hedged around by laws. In the initial stages of a labor dispute, the official labor courts took over.

The crutch of state authority was always at hand. Therefore, the Nazis found it fairly easy to take over the trade-union movement when they came into power. That is a striking fact which has impressed itself on the Americans who are working at encouraging free collective bargaining through free trade unions in the American zone.

Law No. 22 of the Allied Control Council is the legal base of their efforts. It provides for freedom of contract between management and labor, and it defines the bargaining agency within the individual plant. Under Law No. 22, labor gets nothing that it does not win by contract.

IN THE tradition of the pre-Hitler past, labor leaders insist on getting many things which are not provided for in labor contracts in the United States. Model contracts being widely accepted provide, for example, that labor shall sit with the directors of the plant in passing on the problems of management.

The Americans who have helped to nurse this program along believe that the principle of free collective bargaining under Law 22 is beginning to be widely accepted. They recognize, however, that the ancient habit of public authority asserting itself will not be cured in a hurry. Thus, the new constitution of Weurttemberg-Baden provides that labor shall be paid just wages and given vacations with pay. In the state of Hesse, the constitution provides that management and labor shall have an equal voice in the operation of the factory, with a neutral third party passing on all controversies.

Head of the manpower division in the Military Government is Leo R. Werts, who was formerly with the War Labor Board in Washington. On his staff are two union men, Joseph D. Keenan of the AFL Electrical Workers and Maj. F. Mullaney, who was active in the same union in Seattle.

AS WITH every phase of military government, there is a sharp contrast between theory and intention on the one hand and practice and performance on the other. In this instance, it grows out of the fact that money wages mean less and less as the currency becomes more and more inflated.

Take the manager of a plant making bricks. He wants to hold his workers and so he supplements their wages with bricks, which they can sell on the black market. In the spring and early summer, this had become very serious in the American zone.

An elaborate system of barter was growing up. It covered an estimated 20 per cent of the whole economy. What made it serious was that it upset plans for building desperately needed houses and otherwise moving to restore some order in chaotic Germany. It meant that materials filtered through the gray market by barter and went into building bowling alleys and movie theaters instead of homes.

In northern Bavaria, an estimated 60 per cent of all building materials went into this market. The British reported officially that 30 per cent was being drained off in their zone.

An order was issued forbidding this practice of extra compensation in goods. Enforcement is, of course, difficult. At the same time, currency reforms have been initiated.

It is much too early to say whether any part of Germany will ever have free trade unions and something like free collective bargaining. All the tradition and precedent are against it. But even though they know the handicap to be very great, a small group of Americans are working hard to make German labor leaders grasp a concept of action that does not depend on the state.

Blood Donors

The other day an urgent call came to the emergency hospital room of the Government department where I am employed for blood donors to give of their blood for patients at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

"We are in desperate need of blood," was the plea. "Even if only one person will come, we shall be glad to send for him."

All day the nurse in the emergency room called employes in the department, which has a personnel of some 8000, and at the end of the day she had a list of five persons who could and would render this life-giving service.

We relapse too easily into a state of indifference to these matters when the exigencies of war end, and yet every day—perhaps every hour—some one needs the pint of blood which it is so easy to give.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War: Study Of U. S. Policy

AN ANONYMOUS article on "The Sources of Soviet Conduct" appeared in the quarterly journal Foreign Affairs for July, 1947, and shortly afterward it was republished by Life magazine. By its quality alone it would have commanded wide attention. For it was manifestly the work of a man who had observed the Soviet regime closely with a trained eye and an educated mind, and had arrived at a theory as to why the conduct of the Soviet government reflects "no abstract love of peace and stability, no real faith in the possibility of a permanent happy co-existence of the socialist and capitalist worlds, but rather a continuous, persistent pressure toward the disruption and weakening of all rival influence and rival power."

Lippmann

ALMOST IMMEDIATELY several of the leading correspondents in Washington identified the author, who signed himself "X," as being Mr. George F. Kennan, who, after a tour of duty at the Embassy in Moscow, had recently been appointed by Secretary Marshall to be the director of the policy planning staff of the Department of State. The attribution was not denied. After that Mr. X's article was no longer just one more report on the Soviet regime and what to do about it. It was an event, announcing that the Department of State had made up its mind, and was prepared to disclose to the American people, to the world at large, and, of course, also to the Kremlin, the estimates, the calculations, and the conclusions on which the department was basing its plans.

Mr. X's article is, therefore, not only an analytical interpretation of the sources of Soviet conduct. It is also a document of primary importance on the sources of American foreign policy—of at least that part of it which is known as the Truman Doctrine.

AS SUCH I am venturing to examine it critically in a series of articles of which this is the first.

My criticism, I hasten to say at once, does not arise from any belief or hope that our conflict with the Soviet government is imaginary or that it can be avoided, or ignored, or easily disposed of. I agree entirely with Mr. X that the Soviet pressure cannot "be charmed or talked out of existence." I agree entirely that the Soviet power will expand unless it is prevented from expanding because it is confronted with power, primarily American power, that it must respect. But I believe, and shall argue, that the strategical conception and plan which Mr. X recommends is fundamentally unsound, and that it cannot be made to work, and that the attempt to make it work will cause us to squander our substance and our prestige.

WE MUST begin with the disturbing fact, which anyone who will re-read the article can verify for himself, that Mr. X's conclusions depend upon the optimistic prediction that the "Soviet power . . . bears within itself the seeds of its own decay, and that the sprouting of these seeds is well advanced"; that if "anything were ever to occur to disrupt the unity and the efficacy of the Party as a political instrument, Soviet Russia might be changed overnight (sic) from one of the strongest to one of the weakest and most pitiable of national societies"; and "that Soviet society may well (sic) contain deficiences which will eventually weaken its own total potential."

Of this optimistic prediction Mr. X himself says that it "cannot be proved. And it cannot be disproved." Nevertheless, he concludes that the United States should construct its policy on the assumption that the Soviet power is inherently weak and impermanent, and that this unproved assumption warrants our entering "with reasonable confidence upon a policy of firm containment, designed to confront the Russians with unalterable counterforce at every point where they show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a peaceful and a stable world."

I DO NOT find much ground for reasonable confidence in a policy which can be successful only if the most optimistic prediction should prove to be true. Surely a sound policy must be addressed to the worst and hardest that may be judged to be probable, and not to the best and easiest that may be possible.

As a matter of fact, Mr. X himself betrays a marked lack of confidence in his own diagnosis. For no sooner had he finished describing the policy of firm containment with unalterable counterforce at every point where the Russians show signs of encroaching, when he felt he must defend his conclusions against the criticism, one might almost say the wisecrack, that this is a policy of "holding the line and hoping for the best." His defense is to say that while he is proposing a policy of holding the line and hoping for the best, "in actuality the possibilities for American policy are by no means limited to holding the line and hoping for the best."

The additional possibilities are not, however, within the scope of the authority of the Department of State. "The aims of Russian communism must appear sterile and quixotic, the hopes and enthusiasms of Moscow's supporters must wane, and added strain must be imposed on the Kremlin's foreign policies" if "the United States can create among the peoples of the world generally the impression of a country which knows what it wants, which is coping successfully with the problems of its internal life and with the responsibilities of a world power, and which has a spiritual vitality capable of holding its own among the major ideological currents of the time."

THIS SURELY is a case of bolstering up the wishful thinking of "hoping for the best"—namely, the collapse of the Soviet power—by an extra strong dose of wishful thinking about the United States. There must be something deeply defective in Mr. X's estimates and calculations. For on his own showing, the policy cannot be made to work unless there are miracles and we get all the breaks.

In Mr. X's estimates there are no reserves for a rainy day. There is no margin of safety for bad luck, bad management, error and the unforeseen. He asks us to assume that the Soviet power is already decaying. He exhorts us to believe that our own highest hopes for ourselves will soon have been realized. Yet the policy he recommends is designed to deal effectively with the Soviet Union "as a rival, not a partner, in the political arena." Do we dare to assume, as we enter the arena and get set to run the race, that the Soviet Union will break its leg while the United States grows a pair of wings to speed it on its way?

Off The Record

Help For Italy

By Sumner Welles

Cause For Optimism

THE PROGRESS made by the Italian people since the reorganization of the De Gasperi cabinet two months ago provides one reason for encouragement in an otherwise darkening international scene.

The elimination of the Communists prevents their leaders from continuing their sabotage of the reconstruction program from within the government. It has lessened the immediate danger of internal disorder. It has made it more likely that the democratic parties will obtain a majority in the national elections next spring.

There is no occasion, however, to underestimate the gravity of the obstacles that the Italians still confront. Inflation is increasing. There is no prospect of any early reduction in the staggering total of Italy's unfavorable trade balance. Italy remains an occupied country, as yet uncertain of the kind of future which the contest between the major powers will permit her to have. The resulting lack of confidence vastly complicates the task of government.

I have often previously in this column criticized the failure of this country to offer Italy the moral and material help needed if social and economic chaos was to be avoided and if a Communist dictatorship was not to overthrow the democratic government which a majority of the Italian people support. Now at last the United States has given ample and comprehensive assistance. Our help has been material as well as moral. There is reasonable ground for hope that it has not come too late.

The Italian government has obtained in Washington the credits needed to begin industrial reconstruction, to balance temporarily Italy's international payments, and to feed the destitute. The United States has forgiven Italian debts totaling one billion dollars, has agreed to release 60 million dollars held by Italian nationals in the United States, and has transferred 28 merchant ships imperatively required if Italy is to be able to procure food and raw materials abroad and to regain her foreign trade.

Our enlightened and generous assistance now puts the issue squarely up to the Italian people themselves. The Italians realize that without such help they would have no chance of recovery under present world conditions. Only the Communist rank and file will take any stock in Moscow's charges that the Italian people are being exploited by Yankee imperialism, when the the United States has not only refused reparations, but has canceled an acknowledged debt of a billion dollars, while the Soviet Union is exacting yearly 100 million dollars of reparations from the same ruined and distressed people whose interests she pretends to uphold.

The Russian veto of Italy's admission to the United Nations has also had tonic popular repercussions. The Communist Party has been hard hit. The hysterical attempt of such Communist organs as Unita to persuade the Italians that Russia's action is only due to their failure to show proper gratitude for Moscow's "favor," and to the "policy of anti-Soviet hatred" of the De-Gasperi government, has been singularly unsuccessful.

The Kremlin's tactics have been accurately interpreted by the press as a whole. It is recognized that they represent a determined effort to prevent economic recovery and the growth of liberal democracy in Italy, and that they are part of a plan, as one Italian paper puts it, "to keep the whole of Europe in a state of war."

IN VIEW of Russia's refusal to permit Italy to enter the United Nations her sudden ratification of the Italian peace treaty places the United States in a serious dilemma. This Government has 15,000 troops in Italy and 5000 more in Trieste. Under the agreements reached by the major powers all occupation forces in Italy should now be withdrawn. Yet because of the increasingly precarious situation in the eastern Mediterranean, the temporary retention of these occupation forces would not only be a guaranty to this country but also a guaranty to Italian democracy.

Under the brilliant leadership of her Foreign Minister, Count Sforza, Italy, notwithstanding Russia's opposition, is rapidly becoming a major factor in the councils of western Europe. Count Sforza saw clearly long before the end of the war that, while American help would be essential to European recovery, no amount of help from this side of the Atlantic would be of any permanent value unless the European nations were willing to pool their resources and work toward economic federation. The offer of economic union recently made by Italy to France, and the leading role that Count Sforza himself has taken in shaping the implementation of the Marshall Plan, afford proof of the constructive part that Italy can play in world reconstruction if she is given a fair chance.

There are no more hard-working people in western Europe than the Italians. They can now work for their own interests rather than for the glory of a grotesque dictatorship, or for the selfish advantage of such corrupt and inefficient governments as those with which they were so often afflicted in pre-Fascist days. They are at last being given the chance, because of the help given by the United States, of making their country a liberal and progressive democracy, fitted to fill the position which Italy should rightfully occupy in a regenerated Europe.

The Peace Treaties

By Barnet Nover

Russia Finally Ratifies

ONLY NOW, two years and four months after the fighting ended in Europe, are the peace settlements with Germany's former satellites about to go into effect. The German and Austrian peace treaties have not even been drawn up.

NOVER

We may be living in a fast-moving age, mechanically speaking. It is actually possible to fly around the world in just over three days. When it comes to diplomacy, however, the trend of the times has been reversed in certain important respects. It now takes much longer for the great powers to reach agreement, particularly if one of them is Russia, than it ever used to.

THE GROUNDWORK for the treaties with Italy, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland was laid at the Potsdam conference in August, 1945. Preliminary discussion of the terms began in London the following month.

However, it was not until the New York meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in the autumn of 1946 that the five treaties were finally buttoned up. And only last week did the Soviet Union finally get around to ratifying them.

Many reasons can be cited for the glacial slowness of peacemaking in our day, in sharp contrast to the speed with which the peace settlements that followed World War I were hammered out.

Perhaps the most important reason, however, was that delay suited Russia's purpose and was used by her as a weapon with which to achieve her ends.

This is clearly brought out if we look at what has happened in Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria during the two years that elapsed between the beginning and the end of the ratification process.

In that time every one of the three countries has been tied hand and foot to the Soviet chariot. Every one has been transformed into a satellite of the Kremlin. And in every instance, the armistice arrangements which gave Russia a dominent position in those countries and the presence of a Russian army of occupation helped to transform the local Communist party from a minority group to the dominant and unchallanged political force.

IN BULGARIA and Romania the process has now reached the point where the regime felt strong enough to lay hands on such democratic leaders as Petkov and Maniu. Petkov was tried and sentenced to death. Maniu's trial at the hands of Moscow's Romanian stooges is yet to take place.

In Hungary, which had the distinction of holding the only truly free elections permitted in the Balkans since the war, the majority Smallholders' Party has been cut to ribbons. The Communists are now completely in the saddle. The rigged election of August 31 only gave the sanction of fake legality to what, long before the Hungarian voters went to the polls, was already an accomplished fact.

THE TREATIES provide that 90 days after the ratifications have been deposited, Allied armies of occupation are to be withdrawn.

In the case of Romania and Hungary this means a good deal less than it seems to mean. As long as no settlement is reached with Austria, Russia has the right to maintain lines of communication to that country via Romania and Hungary. It is entirely up to Russia herself to determine just how many troops she requires for that purpose.

In other words, it will still be possible for Russia to exert military pressure on those two countries even when peace is concluded. Actually, Russia has seen to it, by manipulating the political life of Romania and Hungary, to make such direct military intervention unnecessary.

There are no strings to the withdrawal of British and American troops from Italy.

IN PART II, Section 1, Article 2 of the Hungarian treaty (a similar provision is to be found in all five settlements) it is stated that:

"Hungary shall take all measures necessary to secure to all persons under Hungarian jurisdiction, without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion, the enjoyment of human rights and of the fundamental freedoms, including freedom of expression, of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion and of public meeting."

In view of what has been happening in Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria to such men as Kovacs, Petkov and Maniu, there is no more likelihood that this pledge will be honored by Russia's satellites any more than the provisions of the Yalta declaration that inspired it have been honored by Russia herself.

Postmasterships to High Man —Langer's Object in Inquiry

By The Associated Press

Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) said yesterday he was trying to find "some way to take politics out of all postmaster appointments" as head of a special $35,000 Senate investigation into the patronage system.

The chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee told a reporter the special probe to date shows that "many appointments are clearly against the intent of the law, that Democrats have been nominated regardless of grades in civil service examinations, and that when Republicans ranked first in these tests new examinations usually have been requested."

At the same time Langer said "very few" of 135 postmaster nominations delayed by the special probe "will require public hearings."

"Most of them can be settled by investigation in the field without a hearing," he said.

The postmaster investigation touched off one of the sharpest Democratic-Republican fights during the recent session of Congress. It was approved finally by a 44-35 roll call vote that closely followed party lines.

Langer, with support of the Republican majority on his committee and Senate Republican leaders, delayed Senate confirmation of more than 1000 postmaster nominations by President Truman for months until the Senate agreed to the investigation and provided $35,000 for it.

Senator Hayden (D., Ariz.), veteran Democrat who led opposition to the postmaster probe, said yesterday he would delay comment until Langer had filed his report, which is due before next January 15.

In 1938, when Democrats were in control, Congress removed the four-year limit on postmaster appointments and Langer and other Republicans complain this "froze" Democrats in the jobs for life.

Langer said he had conducted three public hearings on postmaster appointments at Oak Park and Benton, Ill., and Marshall, Tex.

President Truman sent 1285 postmaster nominations to the Senate during the recent session. Of these 935 were confirmed after the special inquiry was approved, 116 were withdrawn by the White House, and 234 were not acted upon when Congress adjourned.

Langer said that 99 of these were delayed on personal request of Senators rather than because of the special investigation. Normally an objection by a Senator delays any postmaster appointment in his home State.

Democrats Consider Forrestal As Truman's Running Mate

By the United Press

The name of Defense Secretary-Designate James V. Forrestal was reported to be looming large in Democratic thinking yesterday as a possible running mate for President Truman in 1948.

Four Democratic Senators agreed in separate interviews that Mr. Truman, considered virtually certain to be the Democratic candidate for President next year, will have a free hand in naming his vice-presidential ticket-sharer.

The Senators expressed belief that Mr. Truman's choice would be determined largely on a "vote-pulling" basis. One Senator declared that the name of Navy Secretary Forrestal, soon to assume the new role of Secretary of Defense, was looming large in inter-party speculation.

Likes Private Life

The 55-year-old New Yorker has insisted to associates that he desires to return to private life as soon as armed service unification is an accomplished fact.

But one of these associates told a reporter that "any citizen" would welcome a chance to run for the important post of vice president.

In Forrestal's favor Senate speculation listed his residence in pivotal New York state, his World War record as a naval flier and his success as a government administrator.

Working against his chances, one Senator said, was his presidency of Dillon, Read & Co., New York investment banking firm, and other Wall Street connections.

Others who figure prominently in advance Senate speculation for the Democratic vice presidential nomination are Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington, a former Senator and close personal friend Millard E. Tydings, Md., Scott W. of the President, and Senators Lucas, (Ill.), Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), and Brien McMahon, (Conn.)

Senators Give Views

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) expressed hope that Mr. Truman would select the man "who will do the most to assure us of victory."

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) observed that "there is no question but what Pesident Truman will select his own running mate."

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said all "practical politicians" know that in both Republican and Democratic conventions the presidential candidate "in 9 out of 10 cases selects the vice presidential nominee."

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) agreed with O'Mahoney.

U. S. Corporation Dividends Gain

The Commerce Department reported last night that publicly reported cash dividends by American corporations in July were 13 per cent higher than in July last year.

The total last July was $444,900,000 compared with $394,500,000 in July last year. Public reported dividends account for about 60 per cent of all cash dividends paid, the department said.

For the three months ended July 31, public reported dividends were given as $1,213,500,000, 16 per cent over the $1,050,400,000 paid out in the same period of 1946.

Price Institute To Be Held Here By U. S. Chamber

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that its second 1947 Economic Institute will open in Washington September 18, to consider the relationship between pricing problems and a stabilized prosperity.

Senator Flanders (R., Va.), who is chairman of the Senate subcommittee which is to investigate prices in the East, will be one of the speakers. He will discuss, "What Business Men Can Do About Pricing for High-Level Stability."

Among other speakers will be E. S. Mason of Harvard, Alfred C. Neal of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, and Charles E. Phillips of Bates College.

The Chamber of Commerce said that more than 300 persons from 27 cities and 17 States have signified their intention to attend.

Meeting on Ruhr Deferred for Week

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP).—The three-power meeting in Berlin called by the London level-of-industry conference for Tuesday to discuss French claims for more coal and coke from the Ruhr has been postponed until September 8 or 9.

Officials said the session was postponed to give the economic experts of France, Britain and the United States more time to prepare.

Inflation Protest Staged by Italians

Naples, Italy, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Some 100,000 Italians paraded for three hours today in protest against "unjustified and intolerable" inflation.

All political parties except Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats took part in the demonstration. There was no violence.

Snyder Names Consultants To Work on Tax Program

By The Associated Press

The Treasury went outside of the Government yesterday to get three experts to help in preparation of its tax program.

Secretary Snyder announced appointment of two Columbia University professors and a Chicago banker as tax consultants to the Treasury.

The professors are William C. Warren, a 38-year-old tax attorney who worked on wartime material procurement and distribution for the Army as a lieutenant colonel, and Dr. Carl Shoup, 44, who was in the Treasury once as an assistant to Secretary Morgenthau.

The banker is Harold V. Amberg, vice president and general counsel of the First National Bank of Chicago. He has frequently served as a consultant for the Federal Reserve Board.

In reaching outside of the Government for tax advisers, the Treasury followed the example of the House Ways and Means Committee's Republican chairman, Representative Knutson of Minnesota.

Knutson appointed two former undersecretaries of the Treasury, Roswell Magill, now a Columbia professor, and John W. Hanes, Winston-Salem, N. C., banker and head of the Tax Foundation.

Magill and Hanes provided support for Knutson's much-publicized bill to cut Federal individual income taxes on a percentage basis, while Snyder pronounced undying opposition to that measure, and President Truman made history by vetoing it twice this year.

But Magill has collaborated with Warren in tax work at Columbia, and has joined with Shoup in writing a book on Cuba's fiscal setup. This indicates easy liaison for the Knutson and Snyder consultants.

Informed sources say the Truman Administration has not yet decided upon a tax program next year and is holding off for a clearer picture of European-aid costs, the budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, and the business outlook.

But Treasury technicians have turned out largely noncommittal analyses of three tax fields, including the proposal for splitting incomes of married couples, which has much congressional support, and are working on studies of about 17 other major tax subjects.

Dutch Pilots Accused of Killing 10 Chinese on Refugee Ships

Batavia, Java, Sept. 1 (AP).—The republican ministry of information at Jogjakarta charged today that Dutch planes had machine-gunned two vessels carrying Chinese refugees off the east coast of Sumatra Friday, killing 10 and wounding 42.

The Indonesian government, in a broadcast over the Jogjakarta radio, also invited six foreign consuls in Batavia to visit the republican capital and territory "at your earliest convenience" to investigate republican efforts to enforce the United Nations Security Council cease-fire order. The Security Council had requested the six consuls of countries represented on the Council to supervise the order.

The invitation was extended to the consuls of the United States, Britain, Australia, China, France and Belgium.

The Indonesian army claimed Dutch activity had been renewed in the Tengaran area, 30 miles north of Jogjakarta.

The Dutch, countering with charges of cease-fire violations, reported attacks by republicans on salients thrust into Indonesian territory.

The communique reported particularly heavy attacks on Dutch outposts and communications around the wrecked mountain city of Malang, in east Java. It said the republicans had used machine guns and mortars on a thinly held Dutch highway and rail route between Malang and Soerabaja, 60 miles to the north.

Scheduled Airlines Add 174 Planes in Year

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced yesterday that there were 174 more planes in use by scheduled airlines on August 1 than there were a year ago.

The CAA said that its statistical roundup showed an increase in aircraft operations but a sharp drop in the manufacture of new civilian aircraft. It said that the number of airports increased by more than 1000 in the last year.

Bandit Shuns Empty Till

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 1 (AP). A bandit peeked into the almost empty cash drawer of a food market here last night and left in disgust after telling the frightened clerk, "If that's all you've got, you need it worse than I do."

Gandi House Is Stoned by Irked Hindus

Calcutta, Sept. 1 (AP).—Calcutta police used tear gas early today to break up a howling crowd of about 500 Hindus who besieged the Bellighatta compound where Mohandas K. Gandhi lives with the former Moslem premier, H. S. Suhrawardy, as a practical demonstration of Hindu-Moslem amity.

The crowd became unruly when Gandhi, the Hindu spiritual leader, did not emerge to look at a Hindu allegedly stabbed by Moslems. The Hindus had brought the victim to Gandhi to show "the kind of peace prevailing in Calcutta."

A spokesman for Gandhi said the crowd began to throw stones when they learned that Gandhi, sitting cross-legged in one of his weekly silence periods, would not view the man.

New Delhi, India, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Indian defense department announced tonight that strong military or police escorts would be placed on all trains running through India's section of the Punjab as both the Indian and Pakistan dominions took over the task of restoring order in that violence-torn province.

The joint Punjab boundary force, which had been charged with the job of attempting to quell warring Moslem and Hindu-Sikh elements, was dissolved last midnight because the situation had gotten beyond its control.

The defense department said reserves were being held ready in case of need in the East Punjab and that India was working in close cooperation with Pakistan in attempting to restore order and evacuate refugees.

Delhi evening papers carried reports that two trains had been attacked by mobs within 20 miles of the Indian capital, with an undetermined number of casualties.

In Mysore, 25,000 workers in the country's only gold mines went on strike after declarations of passive resistance by the state's Congress Party to enforce demands for a complete, responsible government.

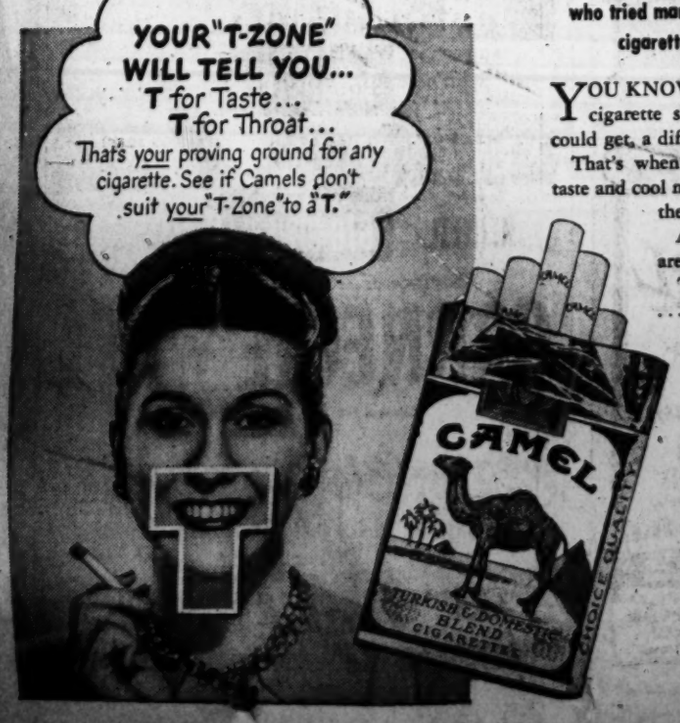
EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER!

Don Whitfield
WORLD'S OUTBOARD SPEED CHAMPION
It's only a hobby with him, but Don Whitfield has been national high point Class M outboard champion since 1940; has raised the Class M record in mile trials five times to its present mark of 41.478 mph.
EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER
IN OUTBOARD RACING... IN SMOKING TOO. THE WARTIME CIGARETTE SHORTAGE TAUGHT ME THERE'S NO OTHER CIGARETTE LIKE A CAMEL!

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!



YOUR "T-ZONE" WILL TELL YOU...
T for Taste...
T for Throat...
That's your proving ground for any cigarette. See if Camels don't suit your "T-Zone" to a "T."
CAMEL
TURKISH & DOMESTIC BLEND CIGARETTES
CHOICE QUALITY

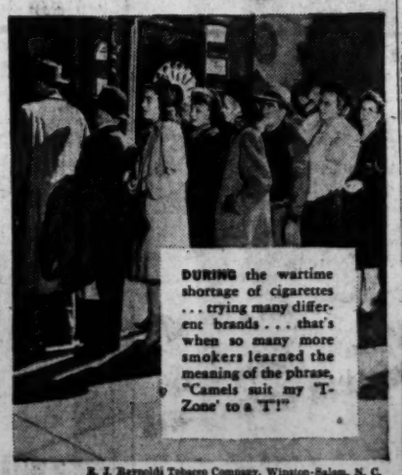
Yes, like Champion Don Whitfield, smoker after smoker who tried many different brands during the wartime cigarette shortage now smokes Camels.

YOU KNOW what it was like during the wartime cigarette shortage: people took any brand they could get, a different brand every day sometimes.

That's when smokers discovered that Camel's rich taste and cool mildness added up to a smoking pleasure they didn't find in any other cigarette.

As a result of that experience, more people are smoking Camels than ever before!

Try Camels. See how they suit your taste . . . your throat. Let your own experience tell you why, with smoker after smoker who has tried and compared, Camels are the "Choice of Experience."



DURING the wartime shortage of cigarettes . . . trying many different brands . . . that's when so many more smokers learned the meaning of the phrase, "Camels suit my 'T-Zone' to a 'T'!"

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE

When 113,597 doctors from coast to coast—in every field of medicine—were asked by three independent research organizations to name the cigarette they smoked, more doctors named Camel than any other brand!

World Statistical Conference To Open Here Without Russia

Russia is one of four nations of the world who have declined invitations to the International Statistical Conference to be held at the Shoreham and Wardman Park Hotels beginning this Saturday.

Henry Caulfield, executive secretary of the arrangements committee, said Burma, Ethiopia, Russia and Saudi Arabia will not be among the 56 countries in attendance.

No explanation was available here yesterday from either the Russian embassy or from Caulfield. Russian officials said they had received no information about the conferences.

However, countries from the Russian sphere will send delegates. Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia have all accepted the invitations sent out last March.

Americas Meet First

The 581 delegates who are expected, will register on Saturday, with the first formal meeting scheduled for Monday, September 8, at the Shoreham.

Plans for coordinating census reports of individual countries in the Western Hemisphere will be discussed today at the Wardman Park preliminary to the conferences to begin Saturday.

Sponsored by the Inter-American Statistical Institute's Committee on the 1950 census, delegates from all 22 nations of North and South America will hold their first full-dress meeting.

They hope that a comprehensive adding up of the human and economic resources of each nation in 1950, and thereafter, will result in one over-all census picture for the Americas, rather than 22 separate undertakings as now where "there are no comparable results."

World-wide Cooperation Sought

The primary purpose of the international conference, according to Dr. Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the joint arrangements committee, is to develop world-wide statistical cooperation. Representatives of nations whose records have been destroyed in World War II will learn of the most modern statistical methods.

Conference officials estimate that no statistics exist for one half of the world's inhabitants.

Participating in the conference will be the World Statistical Congress, convened by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations, and five private statistical organizations.

NICE WEATHER, for it, anyhow, though Suzi Crandall, an RKO filmlet, doesn't seem to enjoy it particularly. Last anybody heard, Suzi was going to work in an RKO Radio movie called "Tycoon." Before it's finished, she may be wearing mink

Gen. Bradley Likes Actions of U. S. Troops in Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 1 (AP).—Gen. Omar N. Bradley marched the United States Army out on its biggest military show in Germany since the war today and expressed "gratification" at the appearance, equipment and training of the occupation troops.

Among the 9000 soldiers who marched past the Veterans Administration chief in a Labor Day review at Garfenwohr training station were two units receiving intensive combat training—the Twenty-sixth Regimental Combat Team and the Fifth Constabulary Regiment.

"It is gratifying to see so many men in training," General Bradley told reporters as he stepped from a plane in Frankfurt, United States Army headquarters, after the review.

"The troops I have seen so far in Germany have looked very fine," he added. "Their equipment and quarters appear in good shape."

Navy Slated To Wipe Out Green Bowl

By the United Press

The Green Bowl, Annapolis Naval Academy secret society allegedly devoted to helping members up the Navy's professional ladder, is headed for early extinction.

The society was founded 40 years ago as a drinking club. Navy investigators headed by Rear Admiral Frank J. Lowry began inquiring into its activities in July, after Capt. John G. Crommelin, famous Navy flier, testified before a House committee that the Bowl was an "innocently started society grown vicious with the years."

Lowry is expected to deliver his final report late this month and will recommend that the Bowl be dissolved "because there is no place in the Navy for any secret society."

Self-Help Club

But he is expected to state that there are no grounds for Captain Crommelin's assertion that it was a secret self-help club.

Lowry said he had made a complete and thorough inquiry so that the Navy "won't have to do it again—ever."

He was given the task because the Navy's Inspector General, Rear Admiral Leo T. Thebaud, who normally would have made the investigation, is a Green Bowler. Thebaud said, however, that he "hadn't thought" about the Bowl since World War I, and thought it should be abolished for the good of the service.

Acted for Nimitz

Captain Crommelin's testimony was brought out during a House Armed Services Committee hearing on Army-Navy unification. The Lowry inquiry was ordered in the resultant furore, although there had been charges in years previous that only Green Bowlers won rapid promotion in the Navy.

Reportedly included among members of the bowl are 23 admirals.

Lowry questioned 200 officers. He acted on personal orders of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, who insisted that Crommelin's allegations must be proved or permanently laid to rest.

Two prominent Green Bowlers are Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, Vice Chief of Naval Operations, and Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (personnel). Both called the Bowl a "schoolboy" organization, which they forgot after their graduation.

Fechteler said he sought the inquiry because he did not want his name linked with any organization branded as "vicious."

Mexico Ruler Plans Tax Cut

Mexico City, Sept. 1 (AP).—President Miguel Aleman told his people today "We are living in a period of truce" and "the uncertainty about the future of humanity troubles the conscience of men and shakes the moral foundations of international understanding."

In the "crossing of many ways," the President told Congress in his first "state of the nation" report after nine months in office, broadcast in every village, "democratic Mexico has chosen the road to work."

The President gave his main objectives as reduction of prices, development of agriculture and industry and "to make Mexico a nation strong economically and spiritually."

Aleman told the people the Government had obtained $143,000,000 in credits from the United States which he said would be used for:

Purchase of agricultural machinery, $5,000,000; construction of two large sugar factories, $5,000,000; water power projects at Chapala, $3,600,000; a sulphate of ammonia plant, $5,600,000; development of coal mines in the Palau region and a coke plant at Monclova, $4,000,000; acquisition of railway equipment and equipment and services for meat packing and freezing plants, an undetermined sum.

He said the nation's foreign debt totaled 46 million dolars and the internal debt $212,900,000. Payments on every debt, including that for expropriated American oil properties, have been made on the due date, the President added.

The President exhorted farmers to bend their backs to the plow and factory workers to give their sweat to make Mexico industrially great. He said none of Mexico's hardships could compare "in gravity with the spread of the foot and mouth disease of cattle." That outbreak caused closing of the U. S.-Mexican border to Mexican cattle imports.

To Compensate British

London, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Foreign Office announced tonight that an agreement has been reached whereby the Mexican government would compensate British investors for oil properties expropriated by Mexico in 1938.

Compensation will be paid to British and other shareholders in the Mexican Eagle Oil Co.

The Foreign Office statement said that, in a letter to the Mexican Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the British Ambassador to Mexico expressed "deep satisfaction that a step had been taken which will cement and strengthen the cordial relations between the two governments."

Paris Nuptials Unite Doris Duke And Dominican

Paris, Sept. 1 (AP).—The fabulously wealthy Doris Duke was married today to dark and handsome Porfirio Rubirosa, honorary charge d'affaires of the Dominican Republic.

It was the second marriage for the 34-year-old "richest girl in the world," and the third for her bridegroom, who is about three inches shorter than the bride.

Miss Duke's fortune was estimated four years ago at 53 million dollars. Other estimates have ranged up to 200 million dollars.

Contrasting with the procedure at most weddings, the principals and their guests drank champagne and ate cakes before the ceremony. Rubirosa had two whisky highballs.

The guests included Mrs. Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar, and a French auto racing luminary, Jean Piete Wimille and his wife.

Taft's Western Tour Due to Make History

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson will resume writing the Washington Merry-Go-Round with the release for Friday.)

By Robert S. Allen

Senator Robert Taft's impending tour of the West will make political history in several ways.

He will be accompanied by the largest number of press, radio and camera reporters ever to cover a pre-convention trip. And what Taft will say during the course of his tour will be in keeping with his plain-talking, hard-hitting character.

Taft

That's why 35 correspondents and photographers are accompanying the Ohio leader. Originally, only half a dozen were assigned to the trip. But as inside word of the scope of Taft's plans become known, 30 others asked for accommodations.

Taft's swing will be in striking contrast to Governor Dewey's "no comment" junket. Taft will leave no doubt of his position and views on major issues facing the Nation. In a series of speeches, on which he is now hard at work, he will "lay it on the line" as bluntly and courageously as he has led his party in the Senate.

Chief issues that will be discussed by Taft are foreign policy, social welfare, taxes, housing and labor. His major speeches will be in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma and Seattle.

Numerous other stops will be made in smaller cities. Throughout, Taft will meet with local and State GOP leaders. He has already done a lot of personal and telephonic conferring in the preparation of his speeches—which he always writes himself. Taft never uses a ghost writer. He even prepares his own press statements.

On the basis of his discussions with Republican leaders and Taft's "open book Senate record, it is possible to outline a digest of what he will say on the following major issues:

Taft's Stand

Foreign affairs—Taft will denounce the Administration's record in this field as vigorously as he did its domestic policies in his recent Columbus speech. He will charge that the Administration has no clear-cut foreign policy; that the so-called Truman Doctrine is being poorly administered by small-bore political henchmen; that the Marshall Plan is no real plan at all, but a miscellany of nebulous ideas, and that the Administration's proposal to give arms to Latin America is potentially catastrophic.

Taft will make it clear that he favors supporting democratic governments against Communist aggression. But he will insist it is crucial for United States security to take stock of our resources and to plan our foreign aid on that basis. Taft will assert the Administration is subordinating the stimulation of vital foreign trade to waging in print a diplomatic war with Russia. Taft will hold that Russian imperialism, not international communism, is the real world menace. His position is that if the United States disregards Russia and puts its foreign relief and trade program in order, relations with Russia will improve.

Social welfare—Taft will vigorously advocate Federal aid to States to raise teachers' pay, improve school facilities and lift educational levels. He will favor a minimum Federal outlay of $50 per child per year. Taft also will strongly urge enactment of his health bill providing funds for States to erect hospitals and clinics, particularly in rural areas.

Housing—Taft will indict the Administration's housing record as a dismal failure. He will charge the Administration is as much to blame as the real estate lobby for the failure to develop low cost housing. He will call for enactment at the next session of Congress of his housing bill under which low cost housing would be financed by the Government. Taft will contend this is the only way such housing can be obtained.

Taxes—Taft will insist on a cut in personal taxes and further slashes in the Federal budget. He will declaare that 500 million dollars can be saved by proper administration of the foreign lending program, and that two billion dollars can be saved by eliminating widespread waste in maintaining unnnecessary military establishments. Taft favors ample funds for research and development, but he is determinedly opposed to retaining obsolete installation and useless garrisons.

'Hot Potatoes'

Taft expects to be tossed numerous "hot potatoes" by sharpshooting newsmen during his tour. He'll be ready for them.

On questions as to his attitude on the brawling Senate War Investigating Committee he has two answers: (1) He was not a party to the fracas; (2) that war is inherently wasteful and conducive to fraud, waste and extravagance. Taft holds it is the public's right to know what the war cost and what mistakes were made, and that it is the duty of Congress to uncover this information.

On questions regarding presidential prospects, Taft will take the position that he would rather be right than President and is trying to ascertain whether he can be both.

Molotovv Gets Slapped

Ambassador Edwin Pauley will shortly submit his recommendations to Secretary Marshall on a U. S. reparations plan. Reparations is one of the hottest controversial issues between the U. S. and Russia. Pauley's plan will be the basis of U. S. negotiations at the November Foreign Ministers Conference in London.

The No. 1 U. S. spokesman on reparations in Europe and Asia the past two years, Pauley has been a severe critic of Soviet tactics. However, he still thinks it possible—and definitely desirable—to work out a "formula" with them. Personally, the big Californian has got along well with Russian leaders—with one exception.

This exception is Foreign Minister Molotov. Pauley has clashed repeatedly with the surly tempered Kremlinite. On one occasion, their antipathy led to an unusual incident.

It occurred at a lavish banquet Stalin gave for General Eisenhower at Potsdam in July, 1945. Stalin started the toastmaking by proposing the health of the President of the United States. Molotov then took over and began a long round of toasts. He proposed a toast to Eisenhower, then to Averell Harriman, at that time United States Ambassador to Moscow.

By protocol, Pauley should have been next, as he held ambassadorial rank and was the President's reparations authority. But spite-minded Molotov pointedly snubbed Pauley and proposed toasts to lesser-ranking guests, finally getting down to mere brigadier generals. Pauley said nothing.

But, at that point, Stalin rose, picked up his own bottle of brandy, walked over to Pauley, poured a drink for both of them, and then, with his hand on Pauley's shoulder, said: "Gentlemen, a toast to my friend, Ambassador Pauley."

Everyone beamed and drank heartily. Molotov also drank. But he didn't beam. He stared stonily straight ahead of him.

Pa. Election Eyed for Labor Law Reaction

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 1 (AP).—Ranking political figures are watching closely a bitter eastern Pennsylvania Congressional fight for a possible expression of public sentiment on the Taft-Hartley labor law and a preview of the 1948 campaign trends.

A cross-section of the Nation's political makeup votes September 9 on a new United States representative for the Keystone State's eight district—staked out by labor as a campaign ground against the Taft-Hartley act.

This Bucks-Lehigh county district, rich in the fruits of soil and industrial plants, will choose between 37-year-old Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, Republican speaker of the State House of representatives, and Phil H. Storch, 36-year-old president of the CIO Leigh Valley Newspaper Guild carrying the Democratic banner.

The winner will fill the unexpired term of the late Charles L. Gerlach, a Republican who represented the district for five terms and came out 15,000 votes ahead in his last campaign. There are approximately 118,000 registered voters—some 72,000 Republican and 46,000 Democratic.

Organized labor rallied behind Storch in his first political outing with the former Marine combat correspondent counting in his camp such as Philip Murray, head of the CIO; Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Murray Fears Depression

collective bargaining."

Working men and women, he said, are "in a fighting mood" and are "determined that their unions will not be weakened or destroyed. They are determined to change the anti-labor complexion of Congress."

The AFL's Green, in a labor mass meeting at Soldier Field in Chicago, said that unions will aim at reelection defeat for all members of Congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley law.

Green offered a five-point program:

1. Reduction of the cost of living.
2. Full employment at "decent American standards."
3. Better housing.
4. Increase of the minimum wage above the present 40 cents an hour.
5. Broadening of the Social Security system.

Green Also Urges Production

Both Green and Undersecretary of Labor Morse said that working people should, for the welfare of the country, keep production going full blast.

Morse said:

"High production and productivity must be maintained if we are to have maximum employment and prosperity at home. They are also essential if we are to supply America and the world with the products, machines and food they need."

Morse said he believes the public at large will support President Truman's Labor Day call for increasing the minimum wage, increasing the scope of the Social Security system and establishing an "adequate system of health insurance."

Pepped Urges Repeal

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), in speeches at Wildwood, Orlando and Daytona Beach, Fla., said the people should demand that Congress, as the first act of the new session, repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

He said the act "is proving to be just what President Truman said it would be—a bill to increase industrial strife, to slow down American production, to strangle the American democratic labor movement and to impair the national prosperity and our power to keep the world peace."

Taking a tack similar to Murray's on profits and pay, the Senator spoke critically of "the biggest profits corporate enterprise ever made" at a time when he said real wages are "constantly falling."

Washington Escapes Heavy Toll Over Holiday

sw., died Sunday of complications resulting from a broken leg suffered when he was struck by a car Thursday.

Maryland's death toll stood at eight last night—five due to auto accidents; two to drowning and one in a plane crash at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxtent River, Md.

Virginia counted at least seven, all of them from auto crashes except a 16-year-old girl who was fatally burned in the explosion of a kerosene container.

Over the Nation, death claimed at least 170 motorists on the highways since 6 p. m. Friday; 36 persons had drowned, 39 died in miscellaneous accidents, for a total of 245. The National Safety Council had predicted a total motor accident toll of 250 for the three days.

Warm and humid weather and only a minimum of rain sent thousands of Washington residents to beaches and rivers; many others to their out-of-town homes. Despite the exodus, District golf courses, swimming pools, and other sports were crowded. A half day of calm, brisk winds sent scores of sailboats out into the Potomac, Anacostia and Washington channel.

Sightseers Throng Area

Sightseers, also taking advantage of the good weather, thronged Washington and nearby scenic points. Almost 14,000 persons visited at Mount Vernon, but the total for the three days was under a normal three-day holiday, officials said.

In the area, traffic injured at least two persons, one of them critically. Vincent D'Avanzo, 12, of 2147 Young st. se., a carrier for the Times Herald, suffered a fractured skull, injuries to arms and legs at 5:30 a. m. yesterday when he was struck by a car driven by Enrico Cioffi, 24, of 732 Underwood st. nw. The boy was taken to Casualty Hospital and Cioffi was charged with failing to give full time and attention to driving.

THE FLEET: 3 British slave ships
THE CREW: Modern-day pirates
DESTINATION: Hamburg, Germany
CARGO: 4,400 Jewish survivors of Nazi massacres in Europe

Reprinted from the Evening Star, Aug. 28

BEHIND BARBED WIRE . . . Some of the 4,400 Jews who attempted to reach Palestine last month aboard the Exodus 1947 shown as they packed the deck of the British transport Runnymede Park at Port de Bouc, France, last Friday. A fence topped with Barbed Wire surrounds the area where berths are located on the transport and suspended aloft is a British Union Jack with a swastika superimposed. The Jews are being transported to Hamburg, Germany, by British authorities.

On July 18, 1947, a fleet of British warships deliberately and repeatedly rammed, and almost sent to the bottom of the sea, an unarmed vessel plying the Mediterranean on a peaceful, humanitarian mission.

The rammed ship was the S. S. EXODUS 1947, carrying some 4,400 Jewish survivors of Nazi concentration camps to a promised and legal Homeland in Palestine . . . a Homeland guaranteed by International Law.

Boarding the stricken vessel like the Barbary Pirates of old, armed British forces brought death to several persons and threw the entire ship into panic. One of the dead was William Bernstein, an American citizen and a former officer of the United States Navy.

Today, against their will . . . held captives like criminals . . . in dirty, congested ships' holds with but scant food, water and medical supplies . . . 4,400 anguished souls are being transported back to Germany in Bevin's Slave Ships.

. . . ships manned by a nation that pleads bankruptcy and practices dictatorship.

. . . ships manned by men whose services are urgently needed in their own country, but instead are being used to carry on this barbarous act of oppression.

The "passengers" are homeless . . . their future almost hopeless . . . 4,400 human beings are being transported back to the land of crematories and graveyards of the 6,000,000 of their relatives and friends who perished under Hitlerism.

British Ready to Use 3 Degrees of Force In Removing Jews

By the Associated Press

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 28.—A British official said today that authorities were prepared to use three degrees of compulsion if the 4,400 Jews of the "Exodus 1947" refused to leave the three British transports bringing them to Germany. The official said these degrees were.

First: Manhandling
Second: Ship's hosepipes
Third: Tear gas

He added that compulsion would be used only as "an absolute last resort."

What Are We Going To Do About It?

We CANNOT stand by and give assent, by our very silence, to this unspeakably barbarous act.

We CANNOT stand by and allow this crime against humanity to be perpetrated by one of the mightiest powers on earth against a weak and defenseless group of men, women and children.

We CANNOT go on helping to sustain British life without demanding the death of British tyranny.

History must never record that because of indifference or neglect we supported a nation that committed such an outrage against all human decency, an act in direct violation of all the principles which we so recently and so valiantly fought to preserve.

The United Nations Committee recommended this week the admission of 150,000 Jewish Displaced Persons into Palestine within the next two years.

The prisoners of these ships . . . men, women and children . . . should be among the first to benefit from this humanitarian recommendation.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT MUST, IN THE NAME OF COMMON DECENCY AND ELEMENTAL HUMANITY, URGE THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TO REVERSE THE COURSE OF THESE SHIPS FROM GERMANY TO PALESTINE AND PERMIT THESE UNFORTUNATE PEOPLE TO GO NOW TO A LAND WHERE THEY CAN AGAIN LIVE AS FREE HUMAN BEINGS.

Yanks Retain Davis Cup by Sweeping Singles

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—I do not know why I should bring the United States Marines into this except that they are always useful and it gives me a starting point for today's theme.

One of my memories of the Marines, whom I left to mop up in the Pacific after softening up the Japs with my typewriter, is the Marines' fierce pride in the Marines. Never any question with them but what the Marines were he best fighting arm of the service. Not only that, but their particular division was the toughest division; their regiment the best regiment, and they would break it all the way down to battalions and platoons.

POVICH

There is another group that is very much smitten with themselves and they are the Californians with their fierce pride in California. Here everything is the biggest and the best including the climate. Only in California do they describe the climate as not only wonderful but large.

In California they have the best oranges; the prettiest mountains; the finest beaches and the best tennis and the biggest airplane; even if that latter has never gotten off the ground, and he positively largest expense accounts.

THERE'S A RUB, THOUGH, and Californians feel it deeply; almost shame-facedly. They don't have big league baseball, and it's a sore spot. For years the natives avoided baseball as a topic because there would always have to be the admission that California was in the bush leagues. Lately they have been articulate, however, and saying the lack of major league baseball in Los Angeles is a crying shame.

And it is, too. The country's third largest city, Los Angeles, with four million potential fans within 40 minutes' ride of the biggest stadium in the land is tethered to the Pacific Coast League, while little towns like St. Louis and Cincinnati are in the majors.

Right now, a major league committee is in California to survey the territory claim to big league status but it's just a polite tour. There isn't a chance that the Pacific Coast League will get major league rating. Too many of its towns like Sacramento, Portland and Seattle are too small to support big league franchises. The Coast's only hope of getting into the big leagues is the purchase of a franchise for Los Angeles or San Francisco.

BUT BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL for California isn't as remote at this time as the Coast calamity howlers, chiefly Coast League President Clarence Rowland, would have you believe. He says its impossible to buy a major league franchise and move it to Los Angeles because the majors wouldn't want to disrupt the Coast League by such a move. That's nonsense on all counts.

The majors have the clearly defined right to draft any territory in any minor league, providing that just and fair compensation is given the invaded circuit. Los Angeles wouldn't be lost to the Coast League, because the big league club in Los Angeles would not compel the Coast League club to move out of the city. The Coast League would remain intact despite the invasion and Rowland would still have his job as league president.

There are civic-minded Los Angeles people who are refusing to concede that it's not possible to bring a major league club here. With some of them it's a mission; notably Edwin Pauley who has tackled harder jobs with success including one stretch as tackle for the University of California.

RIGHT NOW, LOS ANGELES people who are starved for big league baseball are looking to Pauley to swing it for them. To do that, Pauley is borrowing time from his other more important interests and has been making more progress than is generally known. Hurdle after hurdle has been cleared already by Pauley who soon will lay in the laps of the big league owners his entirely practical plan for putting a big league club in this city.

He's not going to ask the Eastern and Midwestern clubs to fly either, knowing their reluctance to take to the air. He is putting it on a train-travel basis and will show them how a club can be whipped from Chicago to Los Angeles in thirty-seven hours. A team that plays in Chicago Sunday can play in Los Angeles Tuesday and Monday is usually an open date around the league anyway.

It's no selfish interest of Pauley's. He doesn't even want to own the club, particularly, although he wouldn't duck the ownership, because he's eager to see a Los Angeles team in the majors get proper direction. He'd simply like to be the man who put Los Angles in the majors—and take his satisfaction out of seeing a big league club play ball in his own town.

Hey! Look What Nats Do, Trounce Macks Twice

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Instead of receiving double time for working on Labor Day, the Athletics got a double defeat at the hands of the Nats today.

In the opener, the Nats set up a picket line around home plate, as Mickey Haefner elbowed a fancy 4-0 triumph for his eighth victory.

Scott Cary, the apprentice lefthander making his second major league start, turned in a journeyman's performance in the afterpiece with a 7-4 decision for this third wine against no defeats.

The twin losses tumbled the Athletics into the second division for the first time in almost two months. Over 28,000 partisans turned out to see them snap a losing streak which they did, but not theirs. The two wins broke a four-game Nat dearth and extended Philadelphia's losses to six straight.

Haefner didn't permit an Athletic to roam even as far as third base and scattered his seven hits admirably. The Nats belabored Phil Marchildon, who was primed for his 17th success, for eight and wrapped up the game in the first two innings when they scored three times, one in the first and a pair in the second.

Just because they were in the mood, the Nats got their last run in the sixth on Buddy Lewis' second single. Lewis batted in two runs while Haefner scored a pair himself.

Lewis Gets Five Hits

Lewis had a big day with five hits in the afternoon, but he had to take a back seat to Rick Ferrell, who got four for five—two doubles and two singles—in Washington's 17-hit attack in the second game.

Stan Spence had nothing to be ashamed of either. He whacked a couple of singles in the first game and got three more plus a double in the afterpiece as the Nats battered four Athletic pitchers.

Spence almost tied the A's himself, scoring three runs to help Cary chalk up his third victory.

Boss From First On

But he was boss man from that point on, not allowing another hit until the seventh when the A's scored their final run.

The Nats were going for some kind of a record for futility in the first four innings when the tally showed nine hits and no runs, but they finally ended their wastefulness with a run in the fifth and another in the sixth.

Mickey Vernon's triple started the victory march in the seventh as three base knocks were good for two runs and a 4-3 Nat lead.

Spence's single produced one and Ferrell's second double the other. Until that spree the Nats were spraying base hits all over Shibe Park, but the Macks were cutting 'em down with double plays. The A's made six, one shy of the major league record owned by the 1941 Yankees.

Macks Fall Short

A single, two walks, a sacrifice and two of Philadelphia's errors, paved the way for the final brace of Nat runs in the eighth and Cary held 'em in check.

The Macks started a little rally in the ninth when Mike Guerra and Hank Majeski singled with two away, but Cary put the brakes on that by fanning Pinch-hitter Jeep Handley for the game-ending out.

The Nats will probably have to string along without Sid Hudson the rest of the way, Manager Ossie Bluege fears. Recurrent arm trouble has sidelined the big right hander again . . . Lamearmed Chic Pieretti, through for the year, came up from Washington to the games. He's receiving diathermy treatments prior to undergoing an operation for the removal of bone chips from his elbow . . . Lewis' throw to cut down Pete Suder at third in the seventh inning of the nightcap was a beaut. He rifled the ball on a line to Yost who simply had to stand there and wait for Suder .

Cards Gain Game on Bums, Win Twice

St. Louis, Sept. 1 .—Combining 13 hits with eight walks for an 8-to-2 second-game triumph the St. Louis Cardinals completed a twin killing of the Pittsburgh Pirates today after pulling the first contest out of the fire with Del Wilber's tenth inning triple for a 6-5 victory.

Erv Dusak and Del Rice got circuit blows in the nightcap. The double victory cut the Brooklyn Dodgers lead to 6½ games. Brooklyn split with the Phils.

Del Wilber's triple with two out and two on in the last of the tenth gave the Cardinals a victory in the first game.

Ralph Kiner hit his fortieth home run of the season for Pittsburgh in the opener.

Dodgers, Phils Swap Shutouts As Police Quell Eager Fans

Brooklyn, Sept. 1 (AP).—The National League Leading Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Philadelphia Phils, 5 to 0, in a Labor Day morning game that attracted so many customers the police riot squad was called out to handle the throng trying to get tickets.

The Phils evened things in an afternoon comtest, at which another admission was required, beating the Dodgers, 5-0.

Besides trading 5-0 games the teams traded 5-hit hurling efforts, as Joe Hatten bent the Phils in the first and Oscar Judd doomed the Dodgers in the second.

The paid attendance of 28,153 for the first game that got under way at 10 a. m. apparently took the Dodger officials by surprise as only about half the ticket windows and park gates were manned. Thousands of would-be fans went home. Some of those who stayed were unable to buy tickets until as late as the fourth inning.

Dodger president Branch Rickey issued a public apology through a hastily called press conference late in the afternoon. Admitting the park was undermanned to handle the crowd, Rickey said:

"I am genuinely sorry for the discomfort and disappointment so many fans experienced," Rickey said. "It was an unprecedented turnout, and I deeply regret that we were unable to handle it properly."

The day's paid attendance was 63,621 for the two games.

Ralph Branca, ace of the Dodger hurling staff, was the victim in the afternoon affair. Pitching with only two days rest, Branca sought his 20th victory but gave up two runs in the sixth and three in the seventh before retiring. Judd clouted a triple and a single in the Phils' scoring innings as did Harry Walker, league leading batter.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Nationals, announced yesterday that the Nats will will bring up Cal Ermer, Charlotte second baseman, as soon as the Charlotte Club ends its season.

Ermer, a right-handed hitter, is considered to be the finest fielder in the Piedmont League, although he is hitting only .272. Born in Baltimore, the 22-year-old Ermer has been managing the Charlotte Club since Spencer left the club in midseason.

Bosox Defeat Yanks Twice

Boston, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today cut two games from the lead of the pace-setting Yankees by defeating the New Yorkers in both games of a double-header, 6-3 and 4-1, before 35,294 paid fans, the largest home crowd of the season.

Bucky Harris, manager of the American League pace setters, was ejected from the premises by Umpire Red Jones in the sixth inning of the opener for stalling. The Yanks now are 10½ games ahead of the second-place Sox.

The Sox now have won seven straight.

Joe Di Maggio's 17th home run of the season, high into the left field nets atop the wall, saved the New Yorkers from a shutout in the nightcap, which was played in one hour and 45 minutes, a speedy game compared to the opener which lasted two hours and 36 minutes.

Stymie Wins And Earnings Hit $742,210

By Sid Feder

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP).—They paacked the heaviest load of his career on Stymie's back today and practically dared him to go out and win the Aqueduct Handicap. So he did.

The Texas bargain baby did it over a distance—a mile and a sixteenth—not to his liking; and he did it against Gallorette, the Maryland mare who had whipped him six times; and finally he did it with 132 pounds aboard—4 more than he ever had carried.

He did it the Stymie way—coming from last place with one mighty surge in the last half mile. With Conn McCreary in the saddle, Stymie stuck his nose in front of Gallorette only yards from home.

With the victory, the one-time $1500 selling plater picked up another $200,500 to boost his turf earnings to $742,210.

Gallorette gave the Cindrella horse all the fight he wanted in the last eighth of a mile before he hit the finish in 1:44 2/5. She'd moved into first place three-sixteenths from home to the delight of the 53,254 customers—third largest crowd of the New York season.

Gallorette finished only a head in front of Elpis, another light-footed lady. And back of the three leaders was still another of the fair sex, Bridal Flower.

Last year's winner of the Handicap, Coincidence, finished tenth but his jockey, Toronto's Teddy Atkinson, had a virtual monopoly on the remainder of the card. After the first race, a jumping affair, Atkinson grabbed five out of seven races and tied for second in the sixth.

For Stymie, a $6.20 for $2 choice, it was the 30th win of his career.

Second money was $5000 and with it Gallorette boosted her winnings to $326,435. That leaves her just $7600 shy of passing Busher as the top gold digger of her sex.

Armed Becomes 2d Money Winner

Chicago, Sept. 1 (AP).—Armed galloped to an impressive three and one-quarter length victory in the $55,600 Washington Park Handicap today for second place in horse racing's list of all-time money winners.

The Calumet Farm's six-year-old golden gelding, with a terrific burst of speed in the closing seconds, covered the mile and a quarter in 2:02.

The surprise was the performance of the four-year-old filly, Honeymoon, in finishing second. With Pleasure, thrice Armed's conqueror this season, was third. Coverup, joint holder of the American record for a mile and a quarter, was fourth.

The purse of $37,500 raised Armed's earnings to $641,600, $100,610 less than Stymie, the pace-setter.

Armed returned $3.40, $2.80 and $2.20. The place price on Honeymoon was $7.80 with $2.40 to show while With Pleasure paid $2.40 to show.

John Marsch's Mighty Story Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing, and Hal Price Headley's Letmenow trailed in that order. At no time was Armed worse than second.

The racing scene shifts to Hawthorne's one-million-dollar meeting which opens a 35-day stand tomorrow with the 21st running of the $20,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap.

The total mutual handle for the 31-day meet was $34,433,847. The total Labor Day handle was $1,110,769. There was a 25.09 per cent decline in 1947 total wagering, compared with 1946.

Schroeder Cinches It in Hectic Match With Pails

By Gayle Talbot

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—The United States stored away the Davis Cup again as duly advertised, four matches to one, but not until after a chubby little Australian named Dinny Pails had treated a crowd of 9000 in the big Forest Hills Stadium to as thrilling an exhibition as international tennis ever has seen.

Fighting stoutly to keep his country's chances alive, the 160-pound battler from down under carried Ted Schroeder of California to five terrific sets and once was only a point away from victory before he went down after three hours and 10 minutes of herculean struggle.

The scores of the marathon that clinched the cup for this country were 6—3, 8—6, 9—11, 10—8.

Crowd Exhausted

The crowd, in a state of exhaustion almost rival to that of the two players after the brilliant duel ended, had little applause left for the concluding match, in which Jack Kramer scored a hollow 6—3, 6—2, 6—2 win over Jack Bromwich of Australia to make the final count official.

The match that left every one limp was the longest singles ever played in a Davis Cup challenge round. Its 71 games have been exceeded only once in the big play-off, and that was in 1923, when Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnston needed 81 games to subdue another pair of Aussies in doubles.

Pails, who managed to win only five games from Kramer in their match on Saturday, showed why he is the Australian singles champion.

Stays Clear of Nets

He played some great tennis today and virtually spiked Schroeder's famous net-rushing game—to the extent that the American went to the net but seldom in the closing sets and scored many more of his placements from back of the service line than from his favorite station near the webbing.

Statistics of the remarkable tussle disclosed that Pails actually scored more clean winners than Schroeder, 64 to 58. Both players employed blazing service to advantage, Schroeder rifling across 24 aces and Pails 20.

Schroeder, bothered by the slippery turf in the center court, took off his shoes and socks late in the second set and played barefoot from that point until he trailed at 3—2 in the final set, when he asked and was given permission to don spikes. He slipped and fell heavily 8 or 10 times while racing after Pails' sharply angled drives.

In the end it was a story of missed opportunities for Pails. He had the triumph within his grasp twice. In the second set, when leading at 5-4, he battled to set point five times against Schroeder's service before finally bowing. If he had won that set instead of losing it, he would have taken the match, 3 sets to 1.

His other big chance came in the closing set. Both players banged their services across without a break until the Australian held a 7-6 lead, and then he suddenly lifted his game and went after Schroeder's delivery with a vengeance.

So Near—But So Far

He won the first two points and victory loomed only two points away. But he wasn't to get them, Schroeder, playing as though possessed, squared it at 30-all and then it went to deuce. Pails blasted a clean winner to take the advantage, and the crowd sat hushed as Shroeder served. Three times the ball whipped back and forth and then Shroeder darted in to smash the ball away from overhead.

That was Dinny's swan-song as it turned out. He held his next serve at deuce, but in the 17th game Schroeder scored the first and only breakthrough of the set after four deuces, and then powered his own delivery across for the ninth straight time to close out his stubborn little rival.

His 270 Breaks Record

Palmer Wins Western Open With Nerve-Tingling 18th Hole

Salt Lake City, Sept. 1 (AP).—Johnny Palmer, 29-year-old Badin, N. C., professional, won the Western Open golf championship today with a spectacular finish on the eighteenth hole that left an audience of 3000 limp from excitement. He finished with a 69.

The Southerner, who has been a runner-up in five tournaments on the 1947 circuit but never crashed the winner's circle, teed off on the final hole needing only a par 5 to win his first major championship of the year.

Galleryites who had feared that Palmer's nerves might crack under the pressure sighed as his tee shot sailed out of bounds into a canyon.

Sacrifices Stroke

But Palmer sacrificed the stroke and his second blast off the tee was straight down the fairway. His third cleared the canyon and came to rest on the apron just three feet from the edge of the green. His pitch shot rolled seven feet beyond the pin.

Then, with $600 at stake, the young comer stepped up and sank his putt for a 54-hole total of 270 to break the Western Open record of 271 set at St. Louis last year by Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa. He took down a $2200 first prize.

Before Palmer's crowd-stirring finish, Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del., had sailed home in a first-place deadlock at 271. Locke had the best round of the trio for today, a seven-under-par 65. Oliver fired a 68.

Locke Gets $1350

Locke, the leading money winner of the year, and Oliver, fourth high on the profit list, won $1350 each. Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Edward Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., tied for fourth at 273 and took $850 each.

The $12,500 in prizes was distributed among 25 players. Next on the scoring list, at 275, were Sam Snead at Hot Springs, Va.; George Payton of Hampton, Va.; Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago; Jim Farrier of San Francisco, and Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kan.

But it was Ben Hogan who topped all of today's shotmakers. Beltin' Ben whacked out a nine-under-par 63 to tie the competitive record for the Salt Lake City Country Club course. He caught fire too late, however, to make a successful defense of his Western Open crown. He finished in a tie for fourteenth at 277.

Snead, bothered by putter trouble throughout the tournament, reached the end of his patience today and smashed his club after a miss on the eleventh green. He finished his round with a putter borrowed from Demaret.

Giants Shatter Yanks' Record by Hitting 185th Home Run

Still They Moan

Conference Tutors Meet Big Squads

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—Football's 1947 practice season breezed into the Southern Conference today accompanied by the rhythmic rumble of pounding cleats and the moans of several of the circuit's 16 head coaches.

The loudest noise as far as cleats were concerned was made at Wake Forest, where Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker began limbering up a squad of 110 candidates, largest in the Deacons' gridiron history. Twenty lettermen were among them.

Coach Skip Stahley and his assistants greeted 44 candidates as George Washington University opened 1947 football practice at Camp Letts, Edgewater, Md.

Seventeen sophomores from last year's squad and a large group of freshmen made up the bulk of the Colonials' grid aspirants. Only three seniors were on hand for the first drill.

Just who did the loudest opening day moaning, however, was debatable. It might have come from William and Mary's R. N. McCray, an old hand at looking at the dark side, who figured he would have a tough time finding players from among the 70 gridmen who reported to fill the shoes left vacant by the graduation of Bob Longacre, the Tribe's hard-to-catch halfback of 1946, and Tailback Jackie Freeman.

* * * *

"LONGACRE WAS a great kicker and passer and an all-around fine ball player," McCray said. "He and Freeman were two of the best punters in the conference."

Beattie Feathers, the old Tennessee workhorse, had 90-odd prospects around at North Carolina State, and one of his biggest concerns was whether Gwynn Fletcher, who understudied the fleet Howard (Touchdown) Turner last year, would be able to play. After recovering from a major operation on his right arm this summer, Fletcher, of Winston-Salem, N. C., developed an infected toe, and he's been ordered to remain off the foot for at least another week.

ALTHOUGH COACH Carl Snavely wouldn't admit it, the brightest spot in the league—according to most of the other 15 coaches—was at Chapel Hill, N. C., where the nonsmiling Dutchman started working his defending champion North Carolina Tar Heels for their opening game September 27 against Georgia, the team that beat them, 20-10, in the 1947 New Year's Day Sugar Bowl contest.

Snavely, whose squad of more than 90 was sprinkled with 36 lettermen, allowed "our opponents will find out our weak points soon enough and take advantage of them" but admitted "we have our strong points."

Seventy-five players greeted Coach Wallace Wade at Duke, where the Blue Devils agreed their first objective was to "get read for North Carolina State." State upset Duke last season, 13-6.

Braves Lose Both; Jansen Wins 17th

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—Setting a new major league record of 185 home runs for a season, the New York Giants swept both ends of a doubleheader from the Boston Braves today 2-1 and 12-2. Larry Jansen won his 17th game and 10th straight in the opener with a four-hitter while Rookie Ray Poat, who joined the club last week, won his second straight in the nightcap.

Jack Lohrke's sixth home run in the eighth inning not only won the opener, but enabled the Giants to break the old mark held jointly by the Giants and 1936 New York Yankees. Lohrke and Billy Rigney also hit homers in the second game.

The double win moved the Giants four and a half games back of the third-place Braves.

Reds Bounce Back After Shutout by Cubs

Chicago, Sept. 1 (AP).—Subjected to a 1-0 shutout on the four-hit pitching of Bob Chipman in the opener, the Cincinnati Reds scored 10 runs in the first inning of the nightcap to gain a 12-to-2 decision and a split of their doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs today before 39,511 fans.

Chicago scored an unearned run in the seventh on a double by Bill Nicholson, a sacrifice and Ken Raffensberger's error on Chipman's bunt to win the opener.

Terps, 97 Strong, Open Drills; Hamilton Greets Navy Squad

61 Middies Report At Whidby Island

WHIDBY ISLAND, Wash., Sept. 1.—Navy Coach Tom Hamilton greeted his band of footballers, 61 strong, at their Whidbey Island training base today and prepared to get full workouts underway tomorrow morning with calisthenics designed to loosen up the Middies before getting down to contact work. But today it was just case of acclimation for the Midshipmen's first appearance on the West Coast in more than 20 years.

Whidby Island appeares to be the idea training site with cool clear weather, countless acres of space and isolation which allows for full concentration on the task at hand preparing for the tussle with the University of California on September 27. Whidby Naval Air Station, nestled some 60 miles north of Seattle, is an elongated strip of land.

ARRIVAL of the Navy football club caused no small excitment in this part of the country. One gets the feeling that the Navy gridders have not left home but have come back after being away a long time. Physically the squad looks ready for plenty of work and although a few of the youngsters look a little heavy from lack of work, their first day at the chow table was of varsity caliber.

The entire squad is living in a single dormitory located just a long pass from the mess hall which is near the practice field.

COACH HAMILTON expressed genuine pleasure with the setup. "This is certainly ideal for what we are trying to do with such a short time to accomplish so much."

Meanwhile, the professors accompanying the team are ready to kick off on their academic schedule tomorrow morning. A four-hour period of classes will be held five days a week. Early morning workouts, afternoon stints and chalk talks in the evening will round out the day.

Golfer Gets Ace After 20,000 Fail

San Diego, Calif., Sept 1 (AP). The San Diego Union's annual hole-in-one golf tournament finally produced a winner on what the paper estimates was the 20,000th shot in the several years the affair has been held. Al Hort dropped a tee shot 3 feet from the cup on the 100-yard downhill test at Balboa Park Municipal Course. The ball bounced once and in it went. Hart was one of 535 golfers who made 1200 shots in this year's two-days of trying.

Guy Lombardo Captures Heat As Guest Pilot

Detroit, Sept. 1 (AP).—Guy Lombardo, driving as a guest pilot, sent Miss Great Lakes of Detroit over the Silver Cup speed boat course on the Detroit River today at an average speed of 71.218 miles an hour to capture the second 45-mile heat of the race from Herb Mendelson's Notre Dame, another Detroit craft.

Lombardo, who as unable to enter his Tempo-VI because of engine trouble, had the satisfaction of beating Notre Dame, but the trophy went to Mendelson's craft on points. Notre Dame, winner of the first heat last Saturday, finished with a total of 700 points.

Second place on points went to Ernie Wilson's Miss Canada III of Ingersoll, Ont., which finished fourth in today's heat; third place to Lou Fageol's So Long of Kent, Ohio, while Great Lakes, which did not finish Saturday, accumulated only 400 points for fourth place in the final standing for the two 45-mile heats.

Danny Foster, whose Miss Peps V of Detroit, Gold Cup winner this year, was forced out of Saturday's first heat, made an heroic bid for today's heat. But after leading for 16 miles, he was forced out by engine trouble.

Lombardo's fastest time around the 4½-mile course was 74.861 miles an hour.

Wild Bill Cantrell of Louisville, Ky., racing the Schaefer Special for Jack Schaefer of Detroit, captured the 45-mile Fageol trophy race for 7-litre craft by winning the last two heats at speeds of 65.890 miles an hour and 68.047 m. p. h. after failing to get the boat ready for the first 15-mile heat.

Fageol, donor of the trophy, was the winner on points by taking the first heat and finishing second in the last two, but announced before the race that he would not be eligible for his own trophy.

Tigers Take Pair, Pound Out 24 Hits

Detroit, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers swept their second doubleheader in two days by lashing out 24 hits today to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 5 and 7 to 2, before 37,480 Briggs Stadium customers.

Following up a 27-hit assault at St. Louis Sunday, the Tigers jumped on four Chicago pitchers for 12 extra base knocks, including successive home runs by Eddie Mayo and Vic Wertz in the first game. It took a two-run rally in the last of the ninth, however, to win that one.

The twin triumph kept the Tigers apace the second place Boston Red Sox as both teams gained two full games on leagu leading New York.

Fine thing to See - to Drive - to Own
YOUR heart is set, we'll say, on something really superfine.
You want smartness – a truly handsome appearance that does you proud in any crowd.
You want ability – a car that does things, and with effortless ease.
You want size – size for interior room and size for steady, level going and serene disregard for the roughness of the road.
You want fine finish – truly rich interiors in perfect taste with the unmistakable touch of quality in every detail.
Against this prescription we ask you to put the Buick Roadmaster – match it, if you will, against any other car regardless of price for all-round excellence.
We don't have to point out its smartness – you see that.
But did you know that under this bonnet is 144 horsepower of smooth Fireball power?
Have you sampled how its 4400 pounds and 18 feet of bigness – mounted as they are on four gentle coil springs – level the roads to ballroom smoothness?
Have you tried its light handling – tested its smooth, easy lift under your treadle foot – inspected the fine rich fabrics, the tasteful interior trim, the fittings executed with the precision of fine silver?

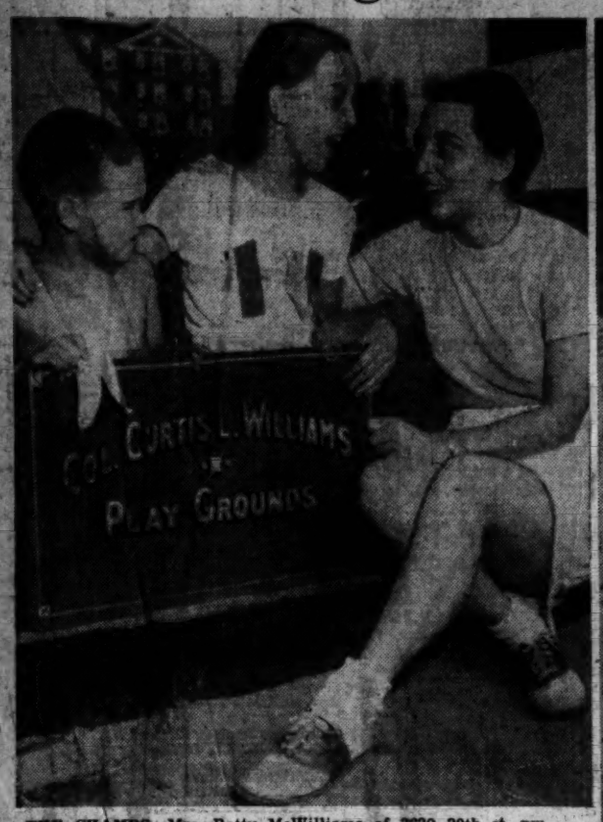
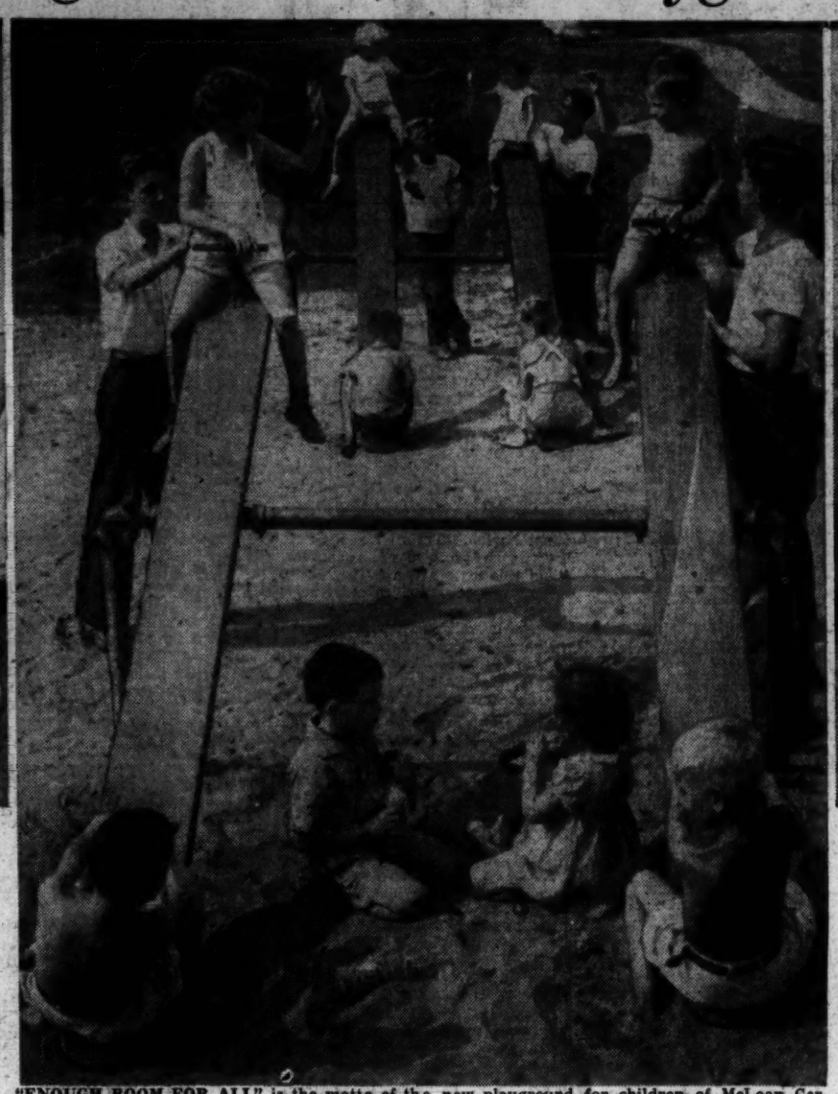
These Young Washingtonians Have a Playground In Their Own 'Backyard'



THE CHAMPS—Mrs. Betty McWilliams of 3630 39th st. nw., talks over the day's events with her daughter, Betty Ann McWilliams, 9, and Scot Williams, 5½, who were named the boy and girl "champions" of the playground, dedicated yesterday at Porter and 39th sts. nw. The playground is named for Scot's father, Col. Curtis L. Williams, of 3620 39th st. nw., who organized the building of the play center



"ENOUGH ROOM FOR ALL" is the motto of the new playground for children of McLean Gardens. The dedication yesterday climaxed about two years' work by 40 of McLean Gardens' fathers

Wife Charged In Slaying of Va. Druggist

Lawyer May Request Lunacy Test for Client Held in Woodstock Jail

Strasburg, Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—Murder charges were filed formally today against Mrs. Julia Guard Emmart, 45, accused of the pistol slaying of her estranged husband, George Allan Emmart, in his downtown drug store late Saturday.

Emmart

Meantime, Mrs. Emmart was held without bond in Shenandoah County Jail at Woodstock. Commonwealth's Attorney Ripley Walker said it appeared likely she would waive preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Emmart last night retained Lynn Lucas of Luray as her attorney and Lucas indicated he might ask that his client be examined by a lunacy commission. He said she was in a "highly nervous" state when he first talked with her late yesterday.

Police Chief Frank Tangle said witnesses testified that Emmart was shot while he sat in his drug store office talking to a lumber dealer, Raymond Borden, and again while attempting to flee through the store. He fell behind a counter after the second shot.

Tangle said Mrs. Emmart admitted to him that she shot her husband.

Emmart's father, George W. Emmart, lives at 6208 New Hampshire ave. ne. The slain pharmacist lived in Washington most of his life. He operated a drug store in Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, for several years.

400 Acres Big

Arboretum Visit Waits On Highway

Over the fence is out at the National Arboretum these days, but 'twill not be ever thus.

They're going to let us common folks in to look a tall those trees one of these days—just as soon as Congress gives them enough money to build roads for us folks to ride on.

For the National Arboretum is 400 acres big, and a drive through the grounds in search of the evergreen family, or the magnolia family, or Mr. and Mrs. Birch is going to take about 6 or 7 miles out of your tires.

Object of the arboretum is to form a living museum of all trees which can live in this climate.

That means, in effect, any tree. Already there are about 2500 specimen trees on the tract, and the arboretum officials are still looking for more.

'Lost' Tree From Georgia

There is a live oak, a member of the oak family, which was grown from seeds which Superintendent O. M. Freeman picked up on a beach in Wilmington, N. C.

There is a Franklinia, which is a "lost" tree that originally grew on the banks of the Alatamaha River in Georgia, was discovered by a Philadelphia nurseryman, and specimens sent to the arboretum. (A tree gets lost when the original wild stock disappears from the point at which the tree has been growing.)

There are crabapple trees and holly trees and magnolia trees, growing right next to each other. But by the time the general public gets in to the arboretum, the trees will be transplanted by families, and will be in attractive vistas and unconfused.

The plan is to have the specimen trees in a central portion of the arboretum, plainly labeled so that the public will know which branch of the arborea family it is inspecting.

Elaborate Roadways Planned

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has prepared an elaborate system of roads to wind through the arboretum, but so far Congress hasn't provided finances to build them.

Dr. F. P. Cullinan, assistant chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville, Md., under which the arboretum falls, says arboretum officials hope enough work will be done within "the next few years" to permit the grounds to be opened.

There will, he explained, have to be a guard house at the entrance, and there will have to be supervisory personnel to guard the trees against vandalism.

Until that time, however, the grounds will remain closed, with only arboretum employes and members of the D. C. Police Department eligible to come in. The police can get in because they practice target shooting on grounds adjacent to the arboretum.

Woman Named in Stabbing

Wayman Browner, 31, of Alexandria, was listed in fair condition at Alexandria Hospital last night where he was treated after suffering a deep knife wound in the chest yesterday morning. Browner, who police reported as living in an abandoned car of the Southern Railroad Co., said he had been stabbed by Marian Thompson, 213 S. Peyton st. Held at Alexandria police headquarters, the woman would give no explanation of the fracas.

Answer Given To Premature Death Ruling

The woman, Mrs. Fanny F. Johnson of 319 50th st. ne., actually was dead when taken to Freedmen's Hospital for certification of death by a physician, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said yesterday. An autospy disclosed she died about 9 p. m. Sunday of a congenital heart condition, he added.

A hospital physician, Dr. William H. Conyers, who was called upon to certify her death, said she was alive when brought to the hospital in a hearse and that she lived for 25 minutes.

Miss Serena Johnson, a practical nurse, found her mother unconscious and apparently dead about 9 p. m. She told Dr. Murphy she used the mirror test to detect possible breathing and had negative results. Police, called to the woman's home, also believed her dead. The funeral home came for the body, but was told the woman would have to be officially pronounced dead by a physician.

The body was placed in the hearse and taken to Freedmen's Hospital where Dr. Conyers said the woman showed signs of life.

Dr. Murphy said under such circumstances doctors are sometimes deceived and that rigor mortis would not necessarily have set in that soon after death.

Funeral services will be held at the Florida ave. Baptist Church at 1 p. m. tomorrow and burial will be in the Lincoln Cemetery. Mrs. Johnson, a native of Virginia, had lived in Washington about 50 years. The daughter, Serena, is the only surviving relative.

McLean Gardens Playground, Built by Parents, Dedicated

Approximately 100 McLean Gardens children yesterday had a bangup time at the dedication of their playground at Porter and 39th sts. nw.—and their parents ran them a close second.

Occasion was the celebration of the end of two years' work by about 40 fathers who live at the apartment development. They built the playground "determined to elliminate even the possibility of child delinquency" in the area surrounding their homes.

The kids yesterday competed in races, baseball accuracy throwing, badminton, horseshoe pitching and other contests. Their parents cheered them from the sidelines, and later entered horseshoe and badminton contests themselves.

As an example of physical prowess there was fleet, 9-year-old Betty Ann McWilliams who copped a first in the 100-yard dash and picked up two third-place prizes in the 440-yard dash and in the mile. (Distances were actually much shorter than that.)

The little miss said she "wasn't as fast as usual" when she collected her three ribbons, a bottle of toilet warte rand two "bubble baths" for her prize-winning efforts.

In the fall of 1946, Lieut. Col. Curtis L. Williams of 3620 39th st. nw., started things when he sponsored meetings of boys 5 to 12 at his home. The need for a place for the children to play led to development of the playground.

McLean Gardens furnished the equipment—slides, swings and teerer tetters. Parents of the area conributed the badminton nets, rackets and shuttlecocks, the horseshoes, and prizes for yesterday's field day.

Colonel Williams, for whom the playground is named, said the playground has a full program every evening from 4 to 9 p. m.

"Kids come out in droves," he said, "and we keep 'em busy with various sports." The colonel, who has two young children of his own, said he "gets home at 5:30 p. m. and goes right over to the playground."

Joseph R. Reilly, of 3891 Porter st. nw., a member of the playground committee, says the parents get as many benefits from the playground as the kids do.

"We have to have this cooperation," he said, "or this would never be a success." Then he pointed to the throng of adults and added—"... and we're getting it."

Another committee member said the playground had proved so popular with the small fry that they usually set up a clamor when their parents suggest a trip to the beach.

Besides Colonel Williams and Reilly, other members of the committee are Manuel Kaufman, Robert Paddock, Gordon Finley, George R. Hantzmon, Jules Vestergaard, Dick Sebastian, and Maj. Willard Woodyard.

$65 Gas Station Holdup

Joseph L. Boswell, 30, of Forestville, Md., night manager of a service station at 3201 Pennsylvania ave. se., was robbed of $65 yesterday by two men, one of them armed.

Boswell told police the men entered the station about 4:30 a. m. and asked for soft drinks. As he handed them the bottles, one of the men flashed a gun, forced him into the office and took the money.

Tierney Quits Park Police After 30 Years

Corpl. Patrick J. Tierney—"Pat" to the kids he scolded or cajoled at Lincoln Park for almost 30 years—yesterday wound up his lengthy service as a member of the United States Park Police.

The 62-year-old veteran retired in ceremonies at the Park Police squadroom yesterday afternoon before applauding members of his family and more than 50 fellow policemen.

According to Capt. Mark H. Raspberry, commanding officer of the Park Police, Corporal Tierney had the longest service of any member of the force. He was appointed to the force in May, 1918.

Two traveling bags and a wrist watch were presented to the white-haired, smiling officer.

Corporal Tierney, a native of Galway, Ireland, said he planned to "take a month off" and then look for a job.

"No, sir!" he declared, "I'm not going to loaf.

He also said he might take a trip to his native land next summer.

Most of his years as a park policeman were spent at Lincoln Park, but he is also a veteran director of Constitution ave. traffic, and he said he hadn't minded dodging the cars a bit.

He could have retired after 25 years' service, but he "got so he liked it."

In other ceremonies, two Park Police were promoted and given the oath of office.

7000 View New and Old Fire Apparatus

Many Prizes Given At Washington Grove, Gaithersburg Parade

More than 100 fire companies and rescue squads from Maryland converged on Gaithersburg and Washington Grove yesterday to display their apparatus, new and old, to a holiday crowd estimated at 7000.

It was a fire buff's delight. Equipment ranged from the latest models available to a 1921 Ford fire truck, the pride and joy of the Violetsville Fire Company. It took a $10 prize as the oldest piece of apparatus, duplicating its feat of June 20 at Frostburg, Md.

Leisurely Parade Pace

The tenth annual Labor Day parade, sponsored by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove fire department, formed in Washington Grove at 3 p. m., and then headed for Gaithersburg, a mile and a half off.

The pace was leisurely through the city streets, and finally to the Gaithersburg High School, where prizes were awarded.

Festivities closed with a dance last night in the Gaithersburg High School.

In addition to the fire company apparatus, there were six floats sponsored by commercial concerns.

Awards Are Listed

Toilet Renovation Held Up

Children entering Madison School in Falls Church Thursday will find that the renovation of toilets, authorized last spring by the school board, has not yet been accomplished. Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson gave lack of materials as reason for the delay.

Parents have long been asking for a renovation of the toilets because, they say, crowded conditions at the school have made it impossible to keep them sanitary. Woodson said that the work would be done next summer.

Federation Meeting Later

First fall meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation will be held September 9 at 8 p. m. instead of tonight. Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, president, said that all subsequent meetings would be held as scheduled at 8 p. m. on the first Tuesday of each month at the Lyon Park Community House, Pershing dr. and N. Fillmore st.

Quads' Dad Still Vainly Hunts House

Their father, Joe Cirminello, corporation analyst for the Securities and Exchange Commission, spent the Labor Day weekend here without being able to find a suitable four-bedroom house he could afford.

The husband, who moved his family to Philadelphia during the war when the SEC was sent there, will have to report back here when the SEC returns about November 1. This time there are six in the family, the quads having been born in Philadelphia three years ago.

The victim of the SEC transfers told relatives here yesterday it looked as though he might have to leave Mrs. Cirminello and the quads in their suburban Philadelphia house for the winter while he takes a room here in order to continue in his job, commuting to Philadelphia weekends.

Mrs. Cirminello's sister-in-law, Mrs. Docia Hatcher of Park Lane Apartments, had received several offers of houses for sale for the family. Cirminello spent Friday, Saturday and part of Sunday following these clews, but found the available places either beyond the $13,000 maximum he has set, or inadequate for a quad-sized family.

Relatives said Mrs. Cirminello may come to Washington in a renewed search for housing.

Parking Plans Ignore Tourist, Auto Club Says

A Keystone Automobile Club Committee protested yesterday that the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency had left the present needs of tourists and the future needs of motorists in general out of its estimate of city parking needs.

The Keystone report was based on a review of the city parking report presented to the Commissioners in June.

It was prepared by a committee headed by Melvin C. Sharpe. His committee findings were outlined in a letter to P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

Private Enterprises Encouraged

Neither Howat, nor C. T. McGavin, District economic analyst who drafted the parking program, could be immediately reached for comment on the Keystone letter.

Their official plan called for encouraging private enterprise to spend 50 million dollars on various parking projects to defeat the trend toward decentralization in the central business area.

Among the projects were off-street downtown parking garages, more express buses to encourage shoppers to leave their cars at home, more "fringe" parking lots outside the downtown section, and others.

See Future Needs Neglected

The Keystone letter said the District parking report had done a good job in appraising present-day conditions, but added "it is not apparent what consideration if any is given to the demands of the future."

The letter suggested that tourists had been left out of the parking picture in the official report, although the needs of business and Government parkers had been "well considered."

Other members of Sharpe's committee included Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chairman of the Keystone Washington Advisory Board, Arthur J. Sundlun, L. Gardner Moore, Ernest R. Brett and William S. Canning, Keystone engineering director.

Mays Buried As Probe Into Slaying Stalls

Funeral Home Crowded For Services After 2000 View Bodies

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. May 2d were buried yesterday morning in Mount Comfort Cemetery just south of Alexandria as Nebraska police still sought to pick up the trail of the couple's murderers.

More than 300 relatives, friends and others crowded DeMaine's Funeral Home, 520 S. Washington st., Alexandria, for the 11 a. m. service. One hundred more waited outside to follow the procession to the cemetery for the brief services at the graves. Funeral home attendants said that 2000 had viewed the bodies as they lay at the home Sunday.

May, son of the general manager of the A.B.&W. bus line, and his bride of less than a year, Elizabeth Piele, were found Thursday morning shot to death along the highway just west of Omaha, Nebr. They were returning to their Fairfax home from a visit in Denver, Colo.

The Rev. Edward Tate, former pastor of Immanuel Episcopal Church in Alexandria and now headmaster of St. Stephens School, conducted services for May. Robert Oakley, first reader of the First Church of Christ Scientist, officiated for Mrs. May.

Three trucks were needed to carry the flowers to the cemetery. One of the floral designs, spelling out "A.B.&W." in red roses against a white background, was inscribed "from the bus operators." Both May and his wife had worked for the company, he in the public relations office, she in the purchasing department.

In Omaha, Douglas County Deputy Sheriff Hugh Cutler told The Washington Post last night that "at the moment investigation of the case is at a standstill." Police have no suspects at the moment, he said.

The offering of a $500 reward by the Omaha World-Herald for the murderers has led to a flood of tips from hopeful citizens, Cutler said. So far all have proved false.

"We get conflicting reports which have placed the murdered couple at places as far apart as 500 miles at the same time," he added.

Children to Show Oils

A showing of oil paintings done by children mostly between the ages of 6 and 12 will go on exhibition today at Alexandria, 717 Queen st. The exhibition will extend through September 13.

The show will be sponsored by Jeane F. and William W. Roberts of the Fairfax-Gilpin House Studio, who say they are trying to dispel the theory that children cannot work with oils.

Youngest artist to show his work is 6-year-old Charlie B. Woolum, 310 Ashby st., Alexandria, who did "Still Life With Tulips." Roberts said the children started right out with oils without working up through the customary stages of crayon, charcoal and pastels.

Surplus Laborers Let Out

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 1 (AP). One hundred and thirty Bahamans laborers were released as surplus yesterday in the Crozet area two weeks before their contract with the Albemarle Fruit Growers' Cooperative was due to expire.

Brought to the White Hall labor camp August 12 to bolster the Crozet area's labor supply during the peach harvest, the laborers were declared surplus by the District Labor Office of the United States Department of Agriculture. County Agent T. O. Scott requested the action when he found the fruit growers were having to "make work" for the Bahamans.

The contract, which was to have expired September 12, provided that the islanders were to be given full day's work at a specified wage per hour as long as the agreement was in effect.

Postoffice Safe Stolen

West Friendship, Md., Sept. 1 (AP). Burglars carted off a 300-pound safe from this Howard County community's postoffice containing $155 in cash and 283 usable money order blanks, State police reported today.

Postoffice officials joined authorities in launching an investigation of the robbery. They said the safe removed from the postoffice probably contained the official stamp which would make the money order blanks usable by simply filling in forged signatures.

No Homes for Teachers

Winchester, Va., Sept. 1.—The difficulty of finding living quarters was a greater problem this year than locating additional teacher personnel, according to County Superintendent Garland R. Quarles, who released today the names of faculty members. The new school term opens September 8.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 1.—The old Cumberland Valley Railroad, which during its heyday was the chief carrier of freight, express and mail as well as thousands of passengers to former popular picnic spots at Pen-Mar, Mount Alto, Concocheague, Harrisburg and other resorts in this Cumberland Valley, has lost entirely its mail contracts and its passenger trains on this southern end of the road have been reduced to skeleton service.

The Postoffice Department has substituted "star routes"—truck deliveries—from Winchester, Va., through this city, Hagerstown, Md.; Chambersburg, Pa., and on to Harrisburg, the northern terminus for the railroad.

Lawyers Plan To Start Draft On Sex Laws

A special District Bar Association committee, set up to help draft a stronger law for dealing with sex offenders, will hold its first meeting at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

William C. Sullivan, chairman, said the group will meet in the Bar Association offices in the Second National Bank Building, 1331 G st. nw.

Sullivan earlier announced plans to set up two subcommittees.

The first is slated to work with United States Attorney George Morris Fay in drafting a new law for controlling sex offenses.

The second subcommittee would review the District's present laws on mental health, and recommend possible revisions.

Fay already has worked out in conference with local officials a tentative blueprint for a new law on sex offenses. It would set heavy penalties for criminal acts of perversion, with even stronger penalties when the crimes affect children.

It would also contain provision for sending sex psychopaths to St. Elizabeth Hospital for whatever periods are needed to fit them for a return to society.

The proposed new law is expected to be ready for presentation to Congress early next year.

Prospects Fair

Maryland Oystering Time Begins

Crisfield, Md., Sept. 1 (AP).—Maryland's oyster tonging season opened today with prospects reported from "fair to good" in most areas.

Somerset County, a center of Chesapeake Bay oystering, will not open its tonging until September 15. The go-ahead for dredging operations in the bay will be given November 1.

Numerous packing houses have been completing their annual renovations in the last few weeks and are ready to process the seasons catch.

Oystermen said indications pointed to a generally poor dredging season. This gloomy forecast did not apply to Somerset County's Tangier Sound, they added, which is expected to provide a good yield.

Pocomoke sound, also in Somerset, likewise is reported to have a "good stock of marketable oysters."

Oystermen predicted the season would bring in a "good volume of shell stock." Crisfield packers said they expected to operate at or near capacity.

The general dredging outlook in Chesapeake Bay, however, is discouraging. Oystermen spoke of greatly depleted rocks, many almost barren. Tests on rocks and bars gave promise of a smaller yield this season than during 1946, which was regarded as extremely poor.

The overall picture, however, brightened as operations began.

Due to prevailing high meat prices, packers predicted a ready market for oysters at "anything like reasonable prices."

Clark Gives Word

Antitrust Bank Action Authorized

By Thomas F. Reynolds

Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Attorney General Tom Clark has authorized the antitrust division of the Justice Department to proceed against alleged monopoly practices of principal investment banking houses and action is scheduled to be instituted in about six weeks.

The indictments, charging practices in violation of the basic anti-monopoly laws, will be sought before a grand jury in United States District Court of the Southern District of New York.

It was learned that the action was ready to be started at the beginning of this summer, before the departure from the Justice Department of Wendell Berge, from the antitrust division. After Berge's resignation, the original timetable for quick action was discarded.

Since that time, John F. Sonnett, new chief of the division, has ordered the basic complaints redrafted to sharpen up the attack on practices in flotation of securities issues which the department claims is in violation of the Sherman Act.

Justice Department attorneys now are drawing up dummy trial briefs, to work out trial techniques on the issues which they expect to be placed before the courts.

The prospective action, however, includes some embarrassing connotations for President Truman's Administration which, to a unique extent, is utilizing investment bankers in top, policy-making positions.

James V. Forrestal, former Secretary of Navy and new Secretary of Defense, is a former president of the investment banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co. Gen. William H. Draper, jr., of Scarsdale, N. Y., who was named last week as Undersecretary of War, is a former vice president of the same company, on leave of absence for war service.

W. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce, was a senior member of the Wall Street investment banking firm of Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. Robert A. Lovett, Undersecretary of State, was a partner of the same firm.

These are top policy-making officials. Lesser officials, below Cabinet rank, have freely been drawn from the investment banking field.

Importance Of Tobacco Export Cited

Charlotte Courthouse, Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—American exports of raw tobacco during the first six months of 1947 totaled 255 million pounds—81 per cent flue-cured—which represents a "great stake in world trade" that must be protected, J. B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associates, said today.

Hutson said the industry can be protected only by efforts to have trade restrictions lifted and tobacco rations to civilians in occupied countries increased.

Speaking before a farm bureau meeting here, Hutson declared:

"We cannot afford to let our export market dwindle away. Tobacco is the most important source of income in areas in which it is grown. In addition to being the chief cash income for many farmers, flue-cured tobacco has become closely intertwined with the economy of the producing area.

Current world trade involves many things, Hutson added. Discriminatory taxation, bilateral trade agreements, blocked exchange and the ability of a country to buy and pay for goods or services it wants are a few of the big problems involved, he said.

"It will be the aim of Tobacco Associates to place the facts before the people in Government in this country as well as in other countries to the end that world trade in tobacco not be restricted," he continued.

Tobacco Associates, a nonprofit organization, was formed early this year by flue-cured growers, dealers, fertilizer manufacturers, bankers, warehousemen and others interested in checking the declining export market for bright-leaf tobacco. It is supported by a 10 cents an acre assessment approved by flue-cured farmers in a referendum held last July by order of the North and South Carolina General Assemblies.

Hutson told his Farm Bureau audience that he thought it "highly significant" that the consumption of tobacco in foreign countries had increased during the past 20 years, but the value of American tobacco sold abroad had not risen proportionally.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 1.—Though Doris Duke's one of the world's richest women, her impending marriage over in Paris to San Dominican President Trujillo's former son-in-law, Porfirio Rubirosa, scarcely raised a ripple.

During the past few years Doris has managed most successfully to drop out of sight and live the kind of life which pleases her most. More or less a refugee from her first husband, Jimmy Cromwell, and his divorce suit, Doris helped run a USO club in Alxandria, Egypt. When the club was running smoothly she eased into Italy, tried to get accredited as a war correspondent. But the military powers that were, classing her as amateur, refused—and tried every means to oust her from Rome.

Doris refused to budge, got a lowly rewrite job at International News, stuck to it for over a year. She lived in a small flat managed by a single maid, bicycled the sizable distance to her office. She hung out at the press club, had a swell time stepping out with corporals and sergeants who would have folded up with embarrassment had they known friendly Mrs. Cromwell was really Doris Duke.

Once, shortly after the war ended, Doris wangled her way out of Italy. She traveled to Vienna, was invited to dine with the late General Patton and a bevy of Russian generals. The Soviets, then in a melting mood, were handing out decorations. They had one left over and, though unaware of Doris' identity, figured she was important. With solemn ceremony, they decorated one of Capital's most golden ornaments. Doris, still determined to write, is a Paris Harper's Bazaar representative.

She'll probably live abroad a long time, since she dislikes New York and keeps her enormous Fifth Avenue mansion merely because her mother likes to live in it. She's similarly unresponsive to Newport but loves her isolated Persian Palazzo out in Hawaii.

Rubirosa, who lived in Washington when he was married to Flor Trujillo, has since been divorced from French movie actress Danielle Darrieux. Flor married a French flier and over a year ago gave up her smartly furnished house on Massachusetts ave.

Thirsty Intellectuals

OVER THE weekend on Boston's fashionable North Shore, socialites pulled something new in benefits. At the Magnolia Casino an "information show" was staged to benefit Boston's Lying-In Hospital. Ted Weeks, Atlantic Monthly's slick editor, chairmaned the event and among the group of experts quizzed was John Marquand, who is seldom coaxed away from his Newburyport bower.

Dazzling idea behind the quiz was: If an expert flubbed a question, anyone answering from the audience rated a free drink. The results were somewhat unexpected since the thirsty audience often chorused replies before experts had time to collect their wits.

Washington was well represented amidst the eager answerers and among those who let down their hair, intellectually speaking, were Donna Julia Brambilla, Mrs. Christian Herter, Mme. Hendrik de Kauffman and Mrs. Thomas Wigglesworth.

Curtsey to Harvard

IN THE past decade Boston has worked out a new system for debutantes. The bigger, better parties are given in September, when Harvard students are still full of summer vim, and in late spring. Only the smaller affairs take place during the Christmas vacation, when Harvard's man pool scatters to 48 States. This September's debutantes made their bows collectively at a cotillion given at the Copley Plaza in June. Now parents are following up festivities ranging from dances and tea dances to a Hollywoodish diversion called a swimming picnic. The dances are mostly at home or in the Myopia Hunt Club.

Most glamorous on the bursting schedule is on September 24 when the Henry Pratt McKeans introduce their Florence. Of interest to Washingtonians is the debut of the Ray Athertons' Mia. Mia is to make her curtsey with the William Febigers' daughter, Lindsay. Since Ray Atherton is our Ambassador to Canada, the party is being given at the Febigers' Manchester house.

Most of the debutantes are members of old, or at least well established, Boston families, but newcomers do occasionally loom on the social horizon. Among the best-heeled is Gioia Griess, whose mama is a Sears of Sears Roebuck fame.

"Who wants to help me with the dishes?"

It's Time to Start Snubbing Hearty Vacation Appetite

By Ida Jean Kain

After Labor Day things seem to settle down to normal, more or less smoothly; that is everything except a voracious appetite built up with all that fresh air and exercise . . . and big meals. You realize in a frustrated way that something should be done about it. You fully intended to stop overeating the very minute you got back home. But you've been so hungry.

Ida Jean Kain

Well, it's this way . . . overeating enlarged your appetite by delaying the signal to stop eating. How's that again? You now have a greater capacity for food. It's true . . . the sense of fullness, which only comes when sufficient food is eaten to exert tension on the muscular fibers of the stomach, is now delayed longer and a former size meal is a mere drop in the bucket, so to speak. To put it bluntly, your stomach is actually a larger size and it takes more food to satisfy and fill the empty spaces. And food the price it is too . . .

Will Power Needed

At this point it does take firmness on your part . . . better known as will power. Of course, as I've said, will power is just a set of habits. Yes, but you've fallen into fattening habits, so naturally the pleasant habit of overeating must be snubbed up short in order to get the appetite under control.

Where to start? With the next meal. As you automatically start to reach for the second hot muffin, and realize it's not the second, but the third . . . stop! Two is the absolute cutting down limit. Dessert? Certainly, have a nice big wedge of melon. Of course it isn't in it with blueberry pie . . . but the calories differ too.

On vacation you ate an enormous breakfast . . . sometimes six hot cakes with real maple syrup, and sausages on the side. Mmm . . . of course that has to stop. But don't go back to just coffee. Have a good breakfast. It will help you to keep that grand feeling of well-being built up during vacation. Fruit, an egg or cereal with fresh fruit, a slice of toast and coffee . . . that's not too many calories. People who eat a good breakfast are seldom overweight.

Tea Will Help

Three average sized meals a day meet energy needs and are less apt to be fattening than one enormous meal at dinner.

About 4:00 in the afternoon, have a glass of orange juice, a cup of hot tea, with sugar, or a glass of buttermilk.

Start cutting down on seconds with the very next meal. If you wait until the nip in the fall air whisks away the last shred of will power along with the leaves on the maple tree, your figure will be gone with the wind, too.

Married to Ideal Husband Whose Only Flaw Is His Adamant Refusal to Make Marriage Known, Woman Asks Whether to Stay or Go

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am secretly married to my boss, an ideal husband save in one respect. He says he will have nothing more to do with me if I disclose our marriage.

We are no longer very young. Mine was a long, lonely widowhood, his a short and lonely one, before we married. He has grown children, who are fine and upstanding and who are kind to me. I must give them full credit for that.

However, they loved their mother, which I understand, and they cannot believe their father would love or marry again. But the fact is, he has; and if only he would announce our marriage, I would be most happy and proud. In many ways, his children subtly imply to me that I am only a temporary somebody in his life whom they are kind enough not to oust.

Both Suffer When Apart

LATELY something has transpired which calls for careful foresighted decisions on our part. As I see it, we could get so much further if only we would sign ourselves up as husband and wife. But as ever, he refuses emphatically.

We'd be perfectly miserable apart. Last fall I told him I was going away for a couple of weeks and that on my return we'd have to announce our marriage or else! When I returned he was lonely and heartsick, but he wouldn't give in. Instead, I gave in and we are drifting along.

His children can have what small property he has. I'm not mercenary; and anyway I may have more than he, in the long run. I only want a normal life. Should I quit being a "patsy" and get out? Or bear the humiliation of secret trysts for the sake of my love and my loneliness? Please answer soon.

B. D.

Would Legal Wife Stand for This?

DEAR B. D.: Is this a legally certified marriage, somewhere duly recorded as such? Or is it rather a so-called common law contract? At one point you say, "As I see it, we could get so much further if only we would sign ourselves up as husband and wife." Which makes me wonder.

If indeed, really and truly, you are this man's lawfully wedded wife, I think it's perfectly silly to be his consort in an atmosphere of guilty secrecy. I think you ought to blow the lid off the situation by telling the world you're Mrs. Doakes.

If, on the other hand, you are his common law spouse, I feel you'd be justified in reviewing the matter with good legal counsel in order to clarify your status and also your thinking on what to do next.

In any event, it doesn't make sense to continue subservient to his caddish policy of exploiting your devotion sub rosa. And assuming you are legally wed, I should infer that his desire for secrecy stems from stuffy dread of public censure. Hence I very much doubt that he would cast you off if you called his bluff by announcing the nuptials.

Rather I think that once the cat was out of the bag, he'd prefer to face down gossip rather than add to it,—as, of course, he would be doing if he refused to sponsor you as his wife after the marriage had been publicized via the newspapers or cards to friends.

Man's a Coward; Needs Leadership

HIS BEHAVIOR suggests that he is a caste-bound fellow, a coward of sorts, whose attachment to you is in conflict with the ingrained snob-mores of his social group. It strikes me he's afraid of "what people might think" of his mating so soon again, at his age, after losing his revered first wife.

Possibly also he fears that family and friends might surmise a scandalous liaison dating long back, if his hasty consolation alliance with you were brought to light. I suppose he feels you're not quite up to his background level on the score of breeding;—and as to that, you're giving him reason to think so, in being meekly a party to the present drift.

Doubtless you mean much to him; but in my opinion, he's the type who feels most pride and confidence in the sentimental companion or wife who charts her personal course with firmness, independence and great self respect and efficiently fetches the male along in her wake, supposing he cares for her at all.

Thus for advice: Do justice to yourself. If you're his wife, announce the fact with bland composure which signifies—To heck with the consequences; enough of this! Let him fall off the fence which way he chooses. And if you lose him altogether, it will be an improvement upon the present situation.

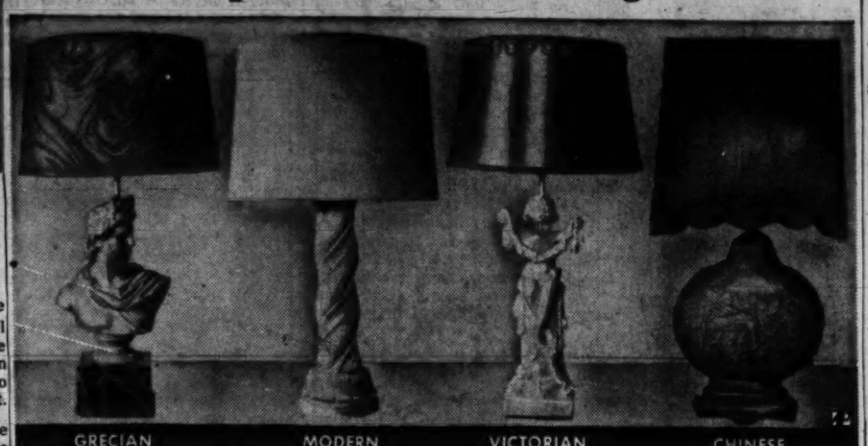
New Lamps Suit Decorating Mood



THESE lamps made of plaster have a simplicity of line. The classic bust of Apollo and the Chinese lamp are exact reproductions. The Modern spiral and the Victorian cherub are new designs

By Vivian Brown

Important-looking reproductions of old originals can give the illusion of old-beauty without straining the bank account.

New additions to colorful lamp designs which have made their appearance since the war, are some unusual plaster lamps. Creative plaster, an art form as old as Pompeii, has been given a new twist by New York lamp designer Edward Krumpe.

He has made exact reproductions from priceless originals, centuries old. He also has designed some modern lamp bases.

He has taken the classic bust of Apollo and duplicated it in a mold which is chiseled out of plaster and gold antiqued. It serves as the base of the lamp. Its simplicity of line blends well with traditional decor.

If m'lady's choice veers toward the modern she can find a lamp that is purely twentieth century in concept. One, a smooth spiral rising from a rounded base, is simple, functional and restful.

Contrary to popular belief, plaster is not fragile if properly reinforced, says Mr. Krumpe. Until recently creative plaster had been limited almost exclusively to ornamental flat pieces for walls and ceilings and casts of classic Greek and Roman sculpture. But Krumpe developed methods of reinforcing the material and now turns out chandeliers, balustrades, fireplaces console and coffee tables.

An ancient process, the carving and preparation is the most difficult step in the procedure, he says.

For small pieces, such as lamps or figures, he prepares a hinged mold and coats it with stearine to prevent the plaster from sticking. It is then filled with liquid plaster and tied together until the substance has set. Larger pieces, reinforced with wood, burlap or iron are cast in flat one-sided molds.

After two weeks of drying, the finishing process begins. Flash lines and bubbles in the surface are sandpapered, sizing coats are applied to make the surface weather-resistant.

Plaster can be finished to simulate any material and is versatile in that it can be fashioned into bulky-looking columns or scrolls or into lacy filigree—some of the reasons he enjoys working with it.

American Yams Win Youthful British Friends

English children, starved for sweets during the war, have taken with gusto to the American sweet potato which they insist is a dessert. This is the report of the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, which sent a shipment of the American yams to a group of refugee youngsters.

Expect Furs to Cost More

Winnipeg, Sept. 1 (AP).—Fur auction sales here indicate milady will pay more for her fur coat this year.

Officials of a Winnipeg fur auction company report prices strengthened 10 to 25 per cent. This is partially attributed to depleted stocks on the American market and the lateness of spring which caused fewer pelt deliveries from the north.

American buyers, anxious to obtain as many pelts as possible for their fall trade, have been bidding vigorously, particularly on short-haired furs such as muskrat, beaver, mink and weasel. Long-haired furs like wolves, red and silver foxes do not appear wanted, auctioneers report.

Muskrats with a top price of $3.55 a pelt and beaver at $54 at recent sales are down from last winter but fur officials say a generally steadier market has maintained a better over-all price level this season.

Strategy for Fall Cleaning

Before starting your fall cleaning, have the summer clothes cleaned and put away and give away that which you know will not be worn another year.

Take it easy, one room at a time, so that the whole house is not upset and disorderly at once.

If you find you are tiring yourself out, take a day off and have some diversion and pleasure. You will come back to the task with renewed interest.

When the muscles are sort and stiff from too much housecleaning take a warm bath to which a cup of epsom salts has been added. It will help greatly in removing the stiffness.

How Not to Be a 'Clothes Torch'

Inflammable wearing apparel may cost the life of a loved one.

"Be careful what you wear and when you wear it," Dr. W. E. Coughlin, Ph. D., director of the Good Housekeeping Textile Laboratory, warns in an article in the September issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. "All ordinary fabrics will burn. Most of them burn rather slowly, so the flame can be extinguished or the garment removed before any great harm is done.

"On the other hand some fabrics ignite easily and flame furiously because of their fibers or construction, or a combination of these factors. You should learn to recognize these fabrics and garments made from them, so you can be careful when you are wearing them."

Important advice on what to wear is proffered by Dr. Coughlin, who states in part: "Your chances of becoming a human torch are slim if you exercise ordinary care and common senes in wearing highly flammable garments. Don't, for example, attempt to save a few minutes by slipping down to prepare breakfast in your dressing gown. The long, loose, flowing sleeves and dangling sashes of these garments and the sheer, napped, or pile fabrics from which they are made invite disaster when you are using your range. Also be careful how you light cigarettes when you are wearing a veil or dressing gown, and never stand close to an open fire. The same advice goes for flannelette nightgowns and robes, and long-napped materials.

"Hospital records show that most injuries to small children from burned clothing come from fabrics that ordinarily are not considered to be dangerously inflammable."

For the real, finishing touch in good grooming—lovely lips. Always follow the natural lines of your mouth, first draw a clear outline, then fill in. The new, long slender lip pencil above is an aid in applying lip rouge. Its length gives perfect control and helps you eliminate a "ragged mouth"

Which Cream for You?

So many new and alluring creams and lotions appear on the cosmetic counters these days it might be well to take a refresher in what their purposes are, and what they are likely to contain.

The A B C's of the dressing table array are:

COLD CREAM—This is usually an emulsion of beeswax, mineral oil, and borax with water. Sometimes animal and vegetable fats and oils are added. In general the cold cream type of cleanser seems to be best for dry skins.

The quick liquefying creams melt quickly, and are eventually drying to the skin so are usually used to the best advantage by women with oily skin.

EMOLLIENTS—These are creams that are usually known as night cream, lanolin cream, softening cream, dry skin cream, etc. They are used for massage and softening purposes. A usual ingredient of these creams is lanolin which comes from wool. Lanolin can help keep the skin soft and therefore youthful in appearance.

Throat creams, eye creams and the other special-purpose creams are usually the emollient type creams.

New Waistbands Lash and Lace Girth to Fashionable Slimness

By Ruby Juster

New Yark, Sept. 1 (INS).—The ideal in fashions this fall hemlines go hang, for the moment) is to acnieve that look around the waistline as if a beaver's been whittling away at your torso.

New styles call for a shape which most women don't have . . . high, well-accented bustline, cinched in waist, a flat tummy line, full rounded hips.

Were the average woman to try to step into a 1947 creation as is, there would be a rending of seams, wrenching of ligaments and a rendering of blasphemous prose.

The true feminine form hasn't been fashionable since Eve snipped the first fig leaf.

This year if the woman is to appear stylishly dressed, she has her choice of a rigid formula of exercises to chisel her features to unnatural proportions or a factory molding job . . . boned, belted and bunched into a modified hour glass shape.

No Padding Please

The majority of women disdainful of being paddled into shape, will buy their figure molders. Nevertheless, they refuse to be lashed in with eight yards of lacing and 100 stiff uncomfortable bones.

So the designers of foundation garments have devised a fetching little thing that circles the midriff and distributes the extra waistline girth upwards and downwards.

It's variously labeled a wasp waist belt, waist minimizer, cinch, waistlet, and handspan.

It is styled in satin, nylon marquisette, grosgrain, or some elasticized material, secured with hooks and eyes with adjustments for the slimmer or more rotund wearer. Front lacings supply the leeway on the hookless garments.

The five-to-ten inch wide waistlet, usually lightly boned, will nibble an inch off the beltline without even trying.

But if you aren't petitely molded in the raw, it won't undo what chocolates have done. The waist nipper is styled for the figure with a slim midriff.

Not for Every Day

The Corset and Brassiere Association of America doesn't recommend a waist whittler for constant wear.

It's for high fashions only, says the association, and not for every-day use.

The idea of the waistlet, of course, is to pinch in the midriff while spreading more girth around the hipline (or at least giving the illusion of doing so) and lifting the bustline.

This must be achieved, imply the high salons of fashion, with nary a wrinkle to mar the smoothness of the contours.

Despite the fullness of fall costumes, there's no cover-up for bulges or rolls at flesh level.

To assure herself of a faultless shape, the fall shopper has her choice of four types of foundation garments . . . the all-in-one corset; the high-waisted girdle (sometimes combined with the waistbelt); the new narrow waistbelt; or the long bra.

Yes—USED FATS Are Still Needed

says CLEMENTINE PADDLEFORD, Food Editor of This Week

Here's the answer to you women who are wondering if you should still save used fats! Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson says, "It is still necessary to conserve every pound of fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year." You see, many things we use require industrial fats or their products, and there aren't enough fats in the world to go around, as yet. So every pound we women of America can save will help. Please . . . keep up the good work until we've got this situation really licked.

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

Can you tell me how to remove tarnish and specks from antique brass cornices that have been stored for years? Regular brass polish will remove part of the soil, but the raised flower designs are proving quite difficult to clean.
W. S. T.

Have you tried using a soft brush on the raised parts? That should be helpful. Also, linseed oil and rottenstone (mixed to the consistency of heavy cream) are recommended for cleaning brass with a soft dull finish, and may be more potent than the cleaner you are using. After rubbing off tarnish with this mixture, wipe the cornices with a rag dipped in linseed oil, and polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Please tell me how to remove a nail polish streak from a shiny white plastic purse.
W. I. J.

Nail polish remover should take off at least part of the streak. Try out the remover first on a hidden part of the purse to be sure it won't damage the plastic. After using it, rinse by wiping with a damp cloth. Since many plastics are porous, some of the red color may have been absorbed and be hard to remove. Bleaching with diluted hydrogen peroxide may be effective in this case.

Can you tell me how to wash a white crocheted bedspread? The spread is made of very fine crochet thread, and as it was pick-up work, it has become very soiled.
M. A. S.

Wash the spread in plenty of warm water and rich suds. If necessary, use two suddings. Rinse thoroughly in warm water. Squeeze out and rinse in fresh water. (Always squeeze instead of wringing the spread.) Shake it out and put it on a curtain stretcher of the proper size, or hang it over the line with the corners square. If it's on a line, stretch carefully several times while it's drying so the spread will shrink as little as possible.

We have some unfinished furniture to which we would like to apply a maple finish. There are four maple chairs, a pine table, and a bookcase and chairs which may be pine, although we're not sure. Can we use the same materials and techniques on all of them regardless of the type of wood?
R. S. O.

A penetrating maple stain is probably the best thing to use to get a good match in finishing this furniture. Such stains are excellent for hard woods, but may result in an unpleasant color in soft wood, and herein lies a problem. Some pine is hardwood and some is soft. (In general, Northern pines are hard, Southern soft.) Unless you're sure yours is hardwood, it would be a good idea to try the stain out first on a hidden part of the furniture. In applying the stain, follow the directions that come with it. The pieces of furniture may match after one application. If not, another coat can be applied to the lighter pieces. After the stain dries, it should be sealed in with shellac or a varnish with a synthetic resin base. To avoid a shiny appearance, rub these finishes down with fine sandpaper or No. 00 steel wool after they have dried. Finally, wax the furniture and rub to a soft luster.

Can you suggest anything that will remedy perspiration spots on the back of a dress between the shoulders? The dress material is blue and white polka dotted silk or rayon. A sample is enclosed. The perspiration has made the blue dye run into the white spots.
E. L. H.

I'm afraid there's not much way to remove the blue dye from the white dots. Sometimes you can get rid of fresh perspiration stains by dampening them with water, then holding them over an open ammonia bottle. However, in this case, it would probably only make the blue dye run more.

I am an out-of-town reader and would like to have the address of the Salvation Army or some other place in Washington or nearby where I may send some very good second-hand clothing.
G. P.

Among the agencies asking for contributions of used clothing in this area are: The Salvation Army Social Center, 526 1st st. nw., Washington, which turns clothing over to needy people in this country and abroad; the Goodwill Industries, 1218 New Hampshire ave. nw., Washington, an organization which helps handicapped persons to help themselves; and Church World Service Center, New Windsor, Md., which distributes clothing in war-torn areas abroad.

From 1939 to 1944 production of livestock and products increased about one-third. In the last two years livestock production declined 6 per cent.

Protect Your Shoes

As the price of shoes goes higher and higher it is good to review the rules for keeping shoes in good condition and thus insuring longer wear.

1—GET THE RIGHT SIZE, not only to feel better but to wear longer. And wear the right size heels, low and medium for walking, and save your high heels for dress occasions.

2—KEEP SHOE TREES in your footwear when they are in the closet. And make sure the trees fit, too. Poorly fitting trees do more harm than good.

3—PERSPIRATION and constant wear are hard on shoes. If shoes are left to dry and rest between each wearing they will last longer, retain their original shape and look better.

4—SHOES SHOULD be kept on shoe racks, in bags or away from the dust.

5—WATCH FOR SIGNS of wear. Have heels straightened as soon as they begin to turn. Have tears and rips mended as soon as they appear.

6—KNOW THE BEST CARE for leathers. Calfskin and kids need a paste polish that will lubricate the leather and not dry it out. Wipe off patent leather with a damp cloth and mild soap or a special patent preparation. Brush suede in the direction of the nap.

7—PROTECT THE LEATHER of your shoes when it rains by wearing rubbers and galoshes.

Did You Know That . . .

There is a use for leftover pieces and scraps of wallpaper. Utilize them for lining drawers, wrapping gift packages or decorating lamp shades, etc.

* * * *

White rings on furniture can be removed by sprinkling cigarette ashes (which act as an abrasive) on the stain, dampening a cloth with alcohol, and rubbing it lightly over the ring.

During the past 20 years consumption of cotton in the United States, has never fallen below 19.5 pounds per person per year.

Shortcuts on the Homefront

To prevent cleanser cans from slipping out of wet hands, place two tight rubber bands around the can an inch or so apart.

A nice hem will be turned down all ready for hemming by hand if a line is run through the sewing machine hemmer without any thread in the needle.

Grease the bread mixer well with lard before making bread and the flour will not stick to the sides or harden.

Spring clothespins are excellent to hold back the curtains in the bedroom at night and prevent them from flying in and out of the windows or against the screens.

Is Teasing Little Child in Line of Good Sport?

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is indeed difficult for a mother to stand by and watch some other person treat her child mistakenly. In this case it is a mother who deplores the fact that her mother-in-law teases her 10-month-old grandchild, and tells him stories that are not true. She wonders what I think of that and what she can do about it.

First the teasing. Teasing should be a sport indulged in by people of like ages. The small boy who is teased by the older one, the uncle who teases his small niece, put the teased ones at a terrific disadvantage. It is only when the teaser can be teased that there is any fairness or justice in it.

Just Playing

It may be, since you did not mention the exact form the teasing takes, that this is just grandma's way of playing with the baby, and so long as the baby seems to enjoy it, it would not be harmful to him. Grownups do take away a child's toys, temporarily, and then give them back when the child cries. One had best evaluate such conduct by asking oneself: Would this be a desirable way for the child to act with a younger child? If not, then it isn't a good way for the superior adult to behave.

As for telling lies, obviously it is wrong. In this case it was also a form of teasing for the grandmother told the child his daddy was coming, when she knew well enough he was not. Her idea was to make the child laugh and look excited, hoping for the appearance of the father.

Behavior Model

Every adult who comes in contact with a baby is, in a sense, a model for the child's own conduct. It puts a great burden upon adults to feel themselves in such a position, but it should act as a censor of their own behavior. In such a case there will be some questioning of their own conduct as seen through the child's eyes. Kidding, teasing, playful lying may be recognizable as such by persons of one's own age, but the child's very gullibility should be his protection against them.

In a word, it is far more satisfying to teach the child truth and fair play and justice, by dealing that way with him, than it is to gratify one's self momentarily by getting the best of him. The game is too one-sided to be fun.

Childhood Rules For Good Health

The drinking of one quart of milk a day.

The brushing of teeth both morning and evening.

The use of cod liver oil to put on weight and add vitality.

No candy and ice cream between meals. These should be eaten as a dessert after meals.

Sensible clothes. Dress the child according to the heat or cold of the day, not according to the month of the year.

First Aid for Mothers

Each season presents special problems for the home nurse. And summer's no exception. But whatever the illness or emergency, you can tackle it competently if you have correct nursing information at your fingertips.

Suppose a member of the family should collapse on a scorching day. If heat prostration is the cause, the patient will breathe rapidly and be covered with perspiration. Send for the doctor right away. Meantime, put the patient to bed and apply external heat to his feet. If the pulse is weak, give a stimulant.

Do you know what to do for that bane of every summer outing—poison ivy? Wash irritated part with brown soap and water; then apply zinc oxide ointment or calamine lotion. If irritation persists, continue ointment or lotion. For serious case, call doctor.

How to cope with family colds, fainting, nosebleed? How to take care of a bed patient? How to keep measles and other contagious disease from spreading? You'll find the answers in our Reader Service booklet No. 81.

Send 25c (coin)) for "Practical Instruction for the Home Nurse" to The Washington Post, Reader Service, 243 West 17th st., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 81.

Move Furniture Around Just for Change

If you cannot afford anything new in the home this fall and are just a bit bored with the housecleaning effect, why not change around the furniture in the living room? You will probably start a major war in the family but it might prove interesting at that.

To Keep Fruit Well

Fruit should never be allowed to touch if you expect it to keep well. If you are short of space and the fruit must be kept close together, keep the tissue paper wrappers on oranges, apples, etc., so the skins do not touch and cause decay. Fruit keeps best when laid separately on a shelf.

One of the loveliest patterns ever created by 1847 Rogers Bros. is here at Kann's . . . "Remembrance," with delicate flower motif, fine scroll-work and beading that captures the charm of a bygone day, yet with a modern simplicity of line that makes it as practical as it is beautiful . . . easy to keep clean and bright! Remembrance has the look and "feel" of solid silver . . . lustrous beauty and enduring quality. Kann's introduces it to you in this 52-piece service for eight, with a handsome walnut-grained chest lined with tarnish-resistant velveteen.

Skipper Eyes Life Ashore Since Smoky Joe Has Retired

Baltimore, Sept. 1 (AP).—With the saga of Smoky Joe a memory now, ferryboat Capt. Norman C. Taylor was ready today for a landlubber's life after 25 years sailing Chesapeake Bay.

Captain Taylor took the ferryboat Philadelphia, more affectionately known as old Smoky Joe, on her last run from Baltimore to Love Point last night.

"Like any other seafaring man, I'm kind of looking forward to settling down on shore," Taylor said. "I'm playing around with the idea of starting up a little country store."

Smoky Joe, her red paint cracking, her salon furniture beginning to peel, but her brass binnacle shining like new, disputed her retirement from active service with a defiant toot and a puff of black smoke from her stack.

Built in 1898, Smoky Joe was brought from New York and put on the Baltimore-Love Point run across Chesapeake Bay in 1931.

After 16 years of plodding back and forth across the bay, she has been put out of use by the Baltimore & Eastern Railroad Co. because her operating costs have exceeded the revenues.

The Public Service Commission authorized the B. & E. to run only one trip a day last June 1, and since then the aging ferry has carried few passengers and motor vehicles to the Eastern Shore and back.

Smoky Joe, after completing her last round trip last night, will remain tied up at her berth for some time, Captain Taylor said, until the company decides how to dispose of her.

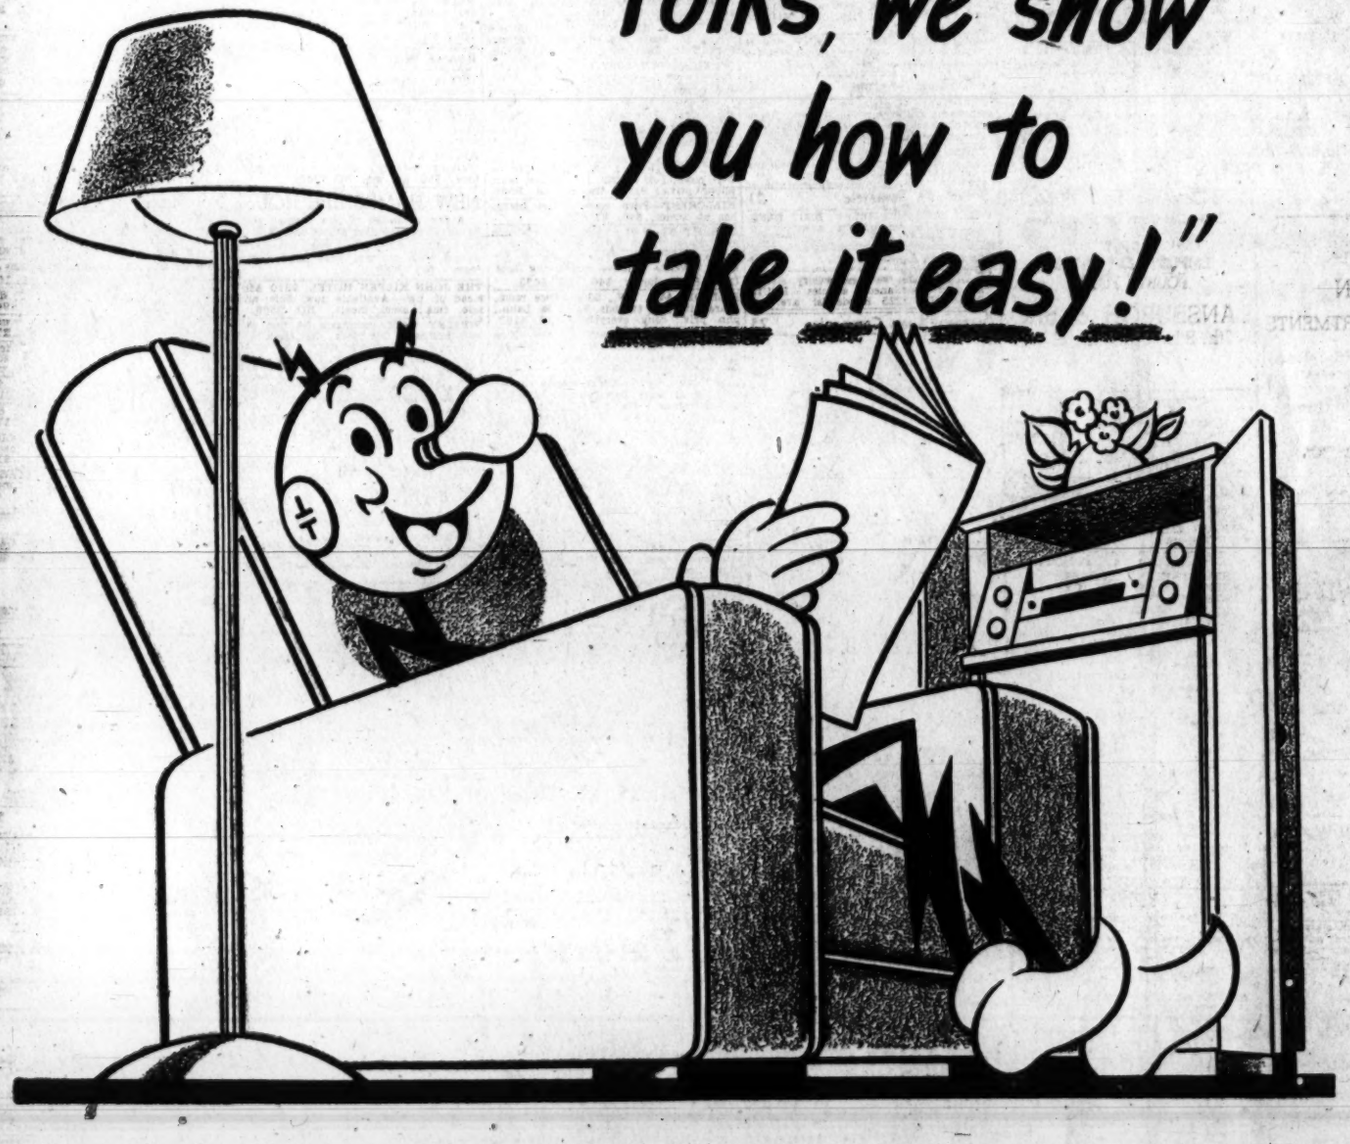
"Folks, we show you how to take it easy!"



Big, deep-cushioned, and comfortable as all get-out — that's your easy chair. You just naturally take it for granted that it's going to be waiting for you at the end of a hard day's work. And home just wouldn't be home without it! Quick as a flash, quiet and unbeatably dependable — that's Reddy Kilowatt. And he lets you take it easy, too! So naturally you tend to take Reddy as much for granted as you do your easy chair.

Waiting in your walls, Reddy snaps into action at the flick of a switch. He washes and cooks for you, safeguards your food . . . entertains you . . . cools, lights, and cleans your home (besides busying himself with industry, farming, and transportation!)

Best of all: he's the most inexpensive servant you can hire!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"Just Mention My Name," Says Fluffy the Pup

Maj. Allen G. Crist, executive editor of "The National Guardsman," shares a pleasant habit with me. He picks up stories from cab drivers.

Major Crist says he got this one from hacker Leon Hamby of 7750 Frederick ct., Hyattsville, Md.

Leon's 15-year-old daughter Nancy Lee was visiting in Columbus, Ohio, and ran out of funds. So she wired pop for more.

Leon promptly wired back the requested reinforcements, but then came disquieting word from Western Union. The money couldn't be paid to Nancy Lee, because she had no means of identification.

An imaginative clerk came to the rescue. "Does your daughter have a dog? Fine. What's its name? Fluffy? Okay, stand by."

A few minutes later another telegraph clerk in Columbus was asking the same questions. "Do you have a dog, Nancy Lee? What's his name? Fluffy? Fine—here's your money."

QUESTION

A reader wants to know whether it's true that when a popular play is booked into the National Theater, the phone in the box-office is taken off the hook.

I can't answer the question—because I called the National four times to inquire, and got four busy signals.

SHIRLINGTON COMES OF AGE

The other day I remarked that I wouldn't consider Shirlington a big town until it developed a traffic problem.

Mrs. R. W. Williams, of 4717 South 29th st., Arlington, Va., brings me up to date:

"Obviously we Virginians haven't been pouring our woes into your ears. Otherwise you wouldn't have made that remark.

"Things are so jammed that I've quit trying to do my marketing unless I can make it before 9:30 a. m. And the drug store corner, with traffic coming from five directions, is no place to relax while driving.

"Come on over some day (preferably some Saturday) and see for yourself."

SURE WAS

WILL IT GO WITH A BLUE SUIT?

In the window of a cleaning and tailoring shop at 2136 Pennsylvania ave. nw., there's a heavy metal and glass diving helmet.

A District Liner wonders whether somebody brought it in to be cleaned and then failed to claim it.

TAXI POST PREVIEW

The D. C. Taxi Post (No. 51) of the American Legion is holding a moonlight cruise whinging aboard the S.S. Mt. Vernon Thursday night.

Maybe I ought to go along and pick up some pointers from the boys who operate those radio cabs.

SO SORRY, PLEASE

One of the reference rooms at the Library of Congress was thrown into a dignified uproar recently, but peace and quiet were quickly restored.

At first glance, it appeared that a modern Mata Hari had been caught red-handed. As a pretty young woman was about to leave, a frenzied attendant charged after her, shouting a demand that she stop instantly.

The young lady was Mrs. J. E. Turner, a local school teacher, who lives at 218 35th st. ne. She'd been doing some research for the pastor of the Washington Heights Baptist Church, and couldn't imagine what all the commotion was about.

"Let me see what you have there," demanded the attendant. "Open up that brief case."

Mrs. Turner opened her brief case, and after a cursory examination of its contents, the attendant blushed and stammered:

More British Tax Blows Impend

New York.—TRADE DEPT.: Britain's 75% tax on American movies is only a forerunner of measures which will be taken throughout the Empire. Hollywood's producers were alarmed this week by a report that Australia will follow suit and declare a similar, almost-confiscatory tax on imported films . . . The Argentine government also is indicating that it will pursue a policy of high taxation against foreign-made films. Other Latin-American countries probably will adopt the same rules—and the motion picture industry may become the most nationalistic business in the world.

MUSIC DEPT.: Ambassador Bedell Smith sent a confidential message to the State Department requesting that its Voice of America program immediately feature a broadcast by Deanna Durbin. He explained that a rumor about Miss Durbin's death had swept over Russia, and that the Soviet citizens were distressed over this . . . Miss Durbin was unable to come to Washington to make the broadcast to Russia. She made a recording in Hollywood, instead, with Benny Goodman supplying the musical background. The recording was beamed to Russia, and the State Department received a message of approval and thanks from Ambassador Smith.

FINANCE DEPT.: Jock Whitney celebrated his birthday last week. His friend, Jock McLean, was asked: "What kind of birthday present can you give a man like Whitney?" . . . "I used to send him something useless and exchangeable, so that he could cash it in quickly," said McLean. "But now that we're such close friends I don't have to buy him anything. I just send him a check."

SPORTS DEPT.: Milton Berle was stricken during his broadcast on Tuesday and now is under the care of Dr. Widgerson, his brother-in-law, who knows his condition as well as the various items which might upset him. The first thing Dr. Widgerson ordered was that all newspapers be kept from Berle's room. A 100-to-1 shot had won a race a few hours earlier. Berle bet on this horse in a race last week, and it lost. Dr. Widgerson knew that if his patient learned that the horse had won the next time out, Berle's condition would be aggravated.

BOOK DEPT.: Lion Feuchtwanger, whose new novel, "Proud Destiny," is the Literary Guild selection for October, has a collection of 12,000 volumes. Most of them are reference works in five different languages, and cover subjects in which he has a special interest . . . A visitor saw this vast collection of books and asked: "Do you really need 12,000 books?" . . . "I really do," said Feuchtwanger, "because I just don't like to work in public libraries."

LOCAL NEWS: The new Science magazine which is backed by Lessing Rosenwald, Gerard Swope and Jock Whitney, is negotiating with Scientific American . . . Artie Shaw now is finishing his novel and will return to the airwaves in a new broadcast series . . . Arthur Lesser, who brought Maurice Chevalier to America this year, is taking Lena Horne to France. He signed an agreement with Miss Horne yesterday for a series of engagements in Paris . . . Margo, the actress-dancer, suffered a throat ailment this week and is under doctor's orders not to utter a word for the next three weeks . . . Ben Hecht's recent campaigns have involved him in so many disputes that he's returning to California for rest and readjustment. "I've got to go back there," he said, "because I find that I no longer speak to four or five of my principal sources of income."

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle

REMEMBER WHEN THE MURAL PAINTERS WERE BUSY FROM COLOGNE TO CHUNGKING...
IT'S STRANGE THAT THE HOPES OF SO MANY PEOPLE COULD BE CONDENSED INTO ONE TERSE, MILITARY SYMBOL, BUT THAT'S HOW IT WAS. TO THE JOES AND JILLS WHO TRAVELED THE NIGHTMARE HIGHWAY FROM OCAN TO TOKYO, V. AND J. SCRAWLED ON A WALL ANY PLACE ON THE FACE OF THE GLOBE WAS A REMINDER THAT ONE DAY THE WHOLE ROTTEN JOB WOULD BE OVER...AND THE DAY CAME!... THEN THEY ADDED UP THE SCORE, AND THE PRICE HAD BEEN HIGH, AWFULLY HIGH. THERE WERE THE THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS OF WHITE CROSSES. THERE WERE THE LEGIONS OF COMRADES WITH HAUNTED FACES WHO LAY IN THE LONG, WHITE WARDS. THERE WERE FOUR LONG YEARS OF FRIGHTFUL EFFORT AND ENDLESS TOIL. YES, YOU DON'T BUY A DAY LIKE V. J. FOR PEANUTS.
IN TIME TO COME, HISTORIANS WILL COLDLY EVALUATE ITS IMPORTANCE AND CALMLY ASSIGN IT TO A LOGICAL RANK IN THE LONG LIST OF HISTORICAL DATES, BUT THE JOES AND JILLS WON'T BE IMPRESSED. THEY'LL REMEMBER WHEN A STUBBLE-BEARDED, TIRED JOE, SPLASHING TWO LETTERS ON A WALL, WAS ADDING UP THE SUM TOTAL OF MANKIND'S HOPES.

LOOK AT THESE FIRST DAY RESULTS FOR OTHERS!

Mrs. R. M. McM. of Arlington ordered her "car for sale" ad to be run in The Washington Post for a week. After the first day she called up to cancel the remaining insertions—her 1940 Willys had already been sold through the ad. "She seemed to be excited over the immediate response," reported the Post ad-taker.

And Mrs. C. D. of Cleveland Park had equal cause to be excited—her 3-line ad in The Washington Post rented her spare room at noon the first day. Mrs. Blanche Peacock reported first day response also, this time for a "Lost" ad describing her strayed bull terrier.

Sometimes results come the first day, sometimes it takes two or three, sometimes even a week. Depends on circumstances. But advertisers have learned that Post ads do produce quick results at low cost! That's why The Washington Post is gaining in number of ads, month after month.
